By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE AMERICAN College of Physicians heard Dr. Meakins, of Montreal, promise that within fifty years any man willing to "use his intelligence and will power" may live 100 years. Fifty years ago the average human being was through with life at forty.

Today's average is beyond sixty. Dr. Meakins' promise of "a century of vital, energetic life for every member of the human race" is encouraging. The wise would want to be guaranteed to the "vital, energetic" part. Nothing sadder than to live merely for the sake of living.

DOUMERGUE, prime minister, possessing the aggressive energy in old age that distinguished so many Frenchmen, says that France must have more allies, or more weapons. Allies being uncertain, he will rely on weapons.

He says that French conditions are improving, gold again flowing to the Bank of France, and he intends to help improvement by reducing the cost of living.

Mussolini, with the same idea, makes products cheaper, urges greater production to let the people live more cheaply.

HERE WE HAVE the other plan making everything dearer, cutting down production, plowing crops underground, paying farmers for not planting, instead of paying them for their crops, as in olden times, buying "farrow" sows, with little, unborn pigs inside them, and killing them to get rid of the pig crops

The future will tell whether prosperity is based most securely on energy, work, full production, or on restriction of production, artificial increase of living costs.

Some think our plan will work no better than a plan for making water flow up hill. Events will show. It might have been simpler to organize and encourage production and distribution, at best prices obtainable. There would be no surplus, if everybody had all he needs. DEFECTIVE, COSTLY DISTRIBUTION is the real trouble.

"Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord."

FRED LOCKHART, in the Shreveport, La., jail waiting to be executed for his brutal murder of a sixteen-year-old girl, escaped a lynching mob of four thousand only because, in Shreveport, the prison is on the upper floor of a skyscraper. He knows that the words above, from the twelfth chapter of Romans, are true.

About twenty years ago, Lockhart, under another name, was driving the car that carried Leo Frank from a Georgian prison, surrounded by a mob, that lynched him.

Vengeance has taken some time to catch up with him, but it has caught up.

CONVICTS PULLING cotton-planting machines in Arkansas, taking the place of mules, have been released from that work. It was not hard, but the Governor decided that convicts doing the work of mules represented in some way an insult to man, made in the image of his Creator.

If mules could talk, and were informed as to the character and crimes of the convicts, they might consider it an insult to honest mules.

IN THIBET, women carry heavy loads on their heads over Himalayan Mountain passes 20,000 feet high, where climbing Englishmen carry oxygen tanks. In China women carry bricks and mortar on their backs up hills too steep for horses. Two of those women could do easily the pulling work done by six Arkansas convicts.

"WE ARE ENTERING a period of sun-spot activity." Astronomers, watching giant, mysterious "spots" moving over the sun's surface, seek exact knowledge as to their effect on the earth's climate. In one of these spots now visible, 16,000 miles in diameter, our earth could be lost or hidden.

Such spots affect the earth's heat supply, as clouds do, when passing before the sun. They produce also electrical storms, rains, tornadoes. Some day men will know the exact meaning of these spots, and how to prepare for them. At present, they are as mysterious to us as are the approaching headlights of an automobile to a hoptoad beside the road.

MRS. EVELYN HOLMES, widow of John L. Holmes, one of two men lynched by a mob in California after they had kidnaped and brutally murdered a young man, sues for one million and fifty thousand dollars damages. She sues the Governor because he expressed the fairly sound opinion that lynching those kidnapers would probably discourage kidnaping.

The general opinion is that she values the life of her late husband too highly.

FROM THE SMOOTH water, at Bridgeport, Conn., on Saturday, a heavy loaded passenger-carrying airplane, built for South American travel by Sikorsky, rose from the ground in 24 seconds, climbed 6,000 feet in 7 minutes, and, using only part of its horse-power, set a new record for big aircraft, at 181 miles an hour.

This "fastest long range airplane in the world," carries 32 passengers, and a crew of 5, with 1,000 pounds of mail, or other cargo, and will fly nonstop for 1,300 miles.

None of the big, heavy birds, wild turkey gobblers, condors, can do as well, fly as fast, or rise as quickly, and this is only the beginning of man's flying. Around the world as fast as the sun seems to go is the objective.

M'LEOD FOES BLOCK VOTE ON BILL

Rainey Rules Against Action in House Maneuver

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—After House leaders spoiled attempts to bring the McLeod bank depositors' pay-off bill up for a vote, backers of the measure this afternoon launched a new drive to force a vote.

A petition signed by 145 members directed against the Rules Committee and calling the bill to the House floor will be sought.

Previously House leaders were victorious in the first fight on the floor.

The House laid on the table a resolution by Representative Beedy (Rep.), of Maine, prohibiting the Banking Committee from presenting a report on an amended McLeod bill. The report, Beedy charged, was a parliamentary maneuver to kill the measure.

Beedy's resolution was tabled by a formal roll call vote, 227 to 122.

TANGLED SITUATION

The vote evolved from a tangled parliamentary situation. By virtue of the signing of a petition by 145 House members, McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, had the right under the "anti-gag" rule to demand a vote on discharge of the Banking Committee.

The Banking Committee, in the meantime, reported an amended McLeod bill. This action, it was claimed by foes of the bill, nullified the petition to discharge.

Representative Beedy, assailing the action of the committee as illegal, presented a resolution to the House asking that a vote be taken on the question of receiving the committee report.

Speaker Rainey ruled that Beedy was within his rights despite protests from Democratic leaders, who asserted that the Banking Committee had not violated House rules.

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, Democratic leader, then moved to lay the Beedy resolution on the table and a roll call vote was ordered.

Members of the Allegheny County delegation, except Brooks, voted today to sustain the McLeod bill and were registered against the motion to table the resolution. Kelly, Muldowney, Dunn and Ellenbogen cast this vote. Brooks was not present.

You Are the Only Girl, Dickens Told Sweetheart In Effort to Rewin Love

CHARLES DICKENS, a brilliant though impoverished youth, made a tremendous impression upon Maria Beadnell, the beautiful and youngest of three daughters of Banker Beadnell. Twelve months of ardent courtship and mutual love passed, then Mr. and Mrs. Beadnell, convinced that the romantic affair of Charles and Maria was not altogether platonic, barred Dickens from their home and sent Maria to Paris, ostensibly to "finish her education."

When Maria returned, the love affair flamed again, but Maria was now so sure of him that she trifled a bit, encouraging him, then disheartening him. Dickens decided to write her a farewell letter, which was a classic of its kind, and told all the desolation and heartache that only a blighted first love can know. Mary Ann Leigh, a friend of Maria's, had designs on Charles Dickens. Maria turned to her best friend—Mary Anne—for advice. Mary Anne, with two thoughts for herself and one for Maria, advises Maria to return all his letters and cut the affair off.

By H. H. HARPER

IT IS reasonably sure that no girl in Maria's set ever received letters at all comparable to the rhetorical effusions she received from this dejected suitor. If in three short years the whole public was to acclaim him England's most popular author, what effect must these carefully composed creations from the same pen have had on a shallow unsophisticated young woman. Of course, she glorified in them, otherwise she would not have bothered to keep them.

Mary Anne Leigh, admiring Dickens herself and envying the letters her friend Maria had received from him, did what she could to bring the rift in the affair between Maria and Charles to a complete parting. Mary Anne told Dickens that Maria had made her a confidante telling her everything. Then she told Maria the same story and the lovers' quarrel blazed furiously.

Dickens then wrote this fervid appeal to Maria:

18 Bentinck Street,
Tuesday Afternoon,
(May 14, 1833.)

I do feel, Miss Beadnell, after my former note to you, that common delicacy and a proper feeling of consideration alike require that I should without a moment's delay inform you (as I did verbally yesterday) that I never, by word or deed, in the slightest manner, directly or by implication, made in any way a confidante of Mary Anne Leigh, and never was I more surprised, never did I endure more heartfelt annoyance and vexation than to hear yesterday by chance that days, even weeks, ago she had made this observation—not having the slightest idea that she had done so of course it was out of my power to contradict it before.

Situated as we have been once, I have — laying out of consideration every idea of common honor, not to say common honesty—too often thought of our earlier correspondence, and too often looked back to happy hopes, the loss of which have made me the miserable reckless wretch I am, to breathe the slightest hint to any creature living of one single circumstance that has ever passed between us—much less to her.

In replying to your last note I denied Mary Leigh's interference and I did so hoping to spare you the pain of any recrimination with her. Her duplicity and disgusting falsehood, however, renders it quite unnecessary to conceal the part she had acted and I therefore have now no hesitation in saying that she, quite unasked, volunteered the information that YOU had made her a confidante of all that had ever

AUDIT STAND OF PINCHOT REVEALED

Director Denies Owing Defunct Insurance Firm $575,000

Three startling developments came to light today in the wake of the State Insurance Department's suit to recover $5,000,000 from the defunct Pennsylvania Surety Corporation. They were:

1—Gov. Pinchot favored an independent audit of the corporation's books, it was reported, but refused to go over the head of Attorney General William A. Schnader.

2—At least five defendant "directors" of the dissolved company aver they were elected to the board and their names used without their consent.

3—In answer to an Insurance Department claim in 1931, E. M. Love, a director, said he paid $575,000 cash to the company for securities from the First National Company, of Baltimore, but never received the securities.

REVEAL STAND

It was reported in Harrisburg today by friends of Gov. Pinchot that the reason he refused to overrule the Attorney General's objection to an independent audit into the affairs of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation was that it might have meant Schnader's resignation.

Schnader's refusal to audit on the grounds that it would take $10,000 out of the assets of the collapsed company, resulted in the resignation of W. Clyde Grubbs, of Pittsburgh, as a special State Insurance Department attorney. Grubbs had conducted a five months' investigation of the surety corporation.

Revelation that five men named as defendants in the suit against the corporation were listed as directors against their wishes bore out a statement by Attorney John M. Freeman, of Pittsburgh, counsel for the defendants, among whom he is listed. Freeman said:

"The transactions claimed in the suit to have been negligent are alleged to have happened about six years ago at which

Wife on Bench Fines Husband, Broke, $25

Mrs. George Park, 48, of Maple street, McKeesport, not only had her husband arrested on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct but was given the privilege of sentencing him today by Magistrate E. M. Trich in McKeesport police court.

And she did. Aware of his lack of funds, she fined him $25—with an alternative of 30 days in jail.

Drunks Extolled Over McNair by Governor's Wife

MRS. GIFFORD PINCHOT

MAYOR LABELED LESS COHERENT

His Honor, you remember, yesterday telephoned the Governor's mansion at Harrisburg from North Side Police Court and had a couple of drunks tell the first lady of the Commonwealth all about what McNair calls Pinchot whisky.

Today, in Harrisburg, Mrs. Pinchot smiled sweetly and paid this gentle compliment to Pittsburgh's Mayor:

"It was interesting to me that the drunks the Mayor had talk to me spoke so much more coherently and intelligently than the Mayor did."

That was all Mrs. Pinchot said.

In the police-court hearing, the line of drunks wise to the Mayor's antipathy to "Pinchot whisky" chorused that that was what they had been drinking. And the Mayor declared:

"Well, let's tell the Governor about that, Sergeant, telephone the Governor."

The Governor refused to be disturbed, but Mrs. Pinchot consented to talk.

The Mayor said he called to tell her that the stuff her husband was selling is terrible. Mrs. Pinchot said she didn't believe it, and suggested the men probably had been drinking moonshine whisky; so the Mayor put a couple of the defendants on the line.

One told her he only had taken three or four drinks of the stuff and had awakened in the police station. Another explained that it caused him to go into fits.

GANG FLEES AMBUSH AT DANCEHALL; U. S. HOT ON TRAIL

ST. PAUL, April 23.—(AP.)—Outshooting a deputy sheriff, three men believed to be Dillinger gangsters escaped a highway ambush in St. Paul Park, eight miles southeast of St. Paul, shortly before noon today.

Twenty shots were exchanged.

The men were riding in a Ford coupe bearing Wisconsin license No. 92652, which is one of the three Dillinger license numbers known to Department of Justice men.

The shooting followed a St. Paul police radio broadcast ordering all squad cars to assist Dakota County authorities in the pursuit.

Some of the shots were reported to have struck the Dakota County squad car, which continued the chase. Whether anyone had been wounded was not learned immediately.

Later reports said the gunfight started when a Deputy Sheriff attempted to stop a car with a Wisconsin license near St. Paul Park. The occupants of the car opened fire without warning, one bullet piercing the top of the deputy's automobile.

The car then turned and sped away.

Throngs of Curious View Trotzky Haven

BARBIZON, France, April 23.—(AP.)—Leon Trotzky's shuttered villa was the hub of a great traffic jam as thousands of Sunday tourists crowded into the village where the Russian exile was discovered hiding a week ago.

No word came from the villa as to what efforts Trotzky is making to comply with the French government's order to leave the country as soon as possible.

CHICAGO, April 23.—(AP.)—Prowlers without literary ambitions early today looted the automobile of Miss Martha Ostenso, novelist, taking personal effects, but leaving a completed, but unnamed manuscript of a new novel.

'It's a Boy, Adorable,' Says Lina Basquette

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.—(INS.)—Lina Basquette Hayes, movie actress and wife of Teddy Hayes, former trainer of Jack Dempsey, today announced the birth of a seven-pound son April 7. Lina said:

"It's a boy, and he's simply adorable."

JOHN DILLINGER

MURDER TRIAL OF BOY BEGINS

Young Tom Davis, who wasn't so fortunate in his jail escape as John Dillinger, faced something more grim than his classrooms today; he was on trial for murder.

Tom Davis.

In a crowded courtroom the boy sat alongside his father, Thomas A. Davis, Sr., former justice of the peace, who helped to choose a jury of 10 men and two women.

State police contend that Davis has confessed, in writing, to shooting Brantlinger during a robbery at the Melrose gas station near Bridgeville one night last September.

Davis was arrested in Carlyle, Ill., early in March after a wild spell in which he was shot in the arm, accused of stealing an auto in Kansas City, Mo., and kidnaping two women and a man, and indicted at Peoria, Ill., on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

On the same day John Dillinger escaped from jail at Crown Point, Ind. Davis broke the Carlyle jail by ripping aside, with a manufactured crowbar, the bars of his cell window. He tried to make good the escape on a bicycle, but was recaptured in less than 24 hours.

Pinchot Uncertain On Audit Demand

HARRISBURG, April 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot said today he has "no clear recollection" of a demand for an audit of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation, Pittsburgh.

CAR MEN VOTING ON PAY TERMS

Eighteen hundred street car men will vote tonight and tomorrow in Moose Temple on a new two-year contract tendered by the Pittsburgh Railways Company. The present contract expires May 1.

Terms are similar to those now in effect, according to Michael Garvey, president of Division No. 85, Street Car Men's Union. He said no reduction was proposed from the present pay rate of 74 cents an hour for operators of one-man cars and 65 cents for trainmen of two-man cars. The latter constitutes less than five per cent of the total.

An effort is being made to obtain reinstatement for 250 men laid off under the National Recovery Administration. This resulted from increasing from 40 to 48 hours a week the time of employes.

The vote, by secret ballot, will not be disclosed until after the count is completed tomorrow.

Pinchot Forces Hint Backing of Shannon

By MARK SHIELDS

With advance indications of an indorsement for Lieut. Gov Edward C. Shannon, lieutenants of Gov. Gifford Pinchot in Allegheny County will meet tonight to determine the course they will follow in the Republican gubernatorial primary.

Judge Ralph H. Smith, who returned this morning from a two-day conference in Harrisburg with the Governor, will tell his associates tonight that he cannot support Attorney General William A Schnader, who has been indorsed by the Melon-Vare-Grundy alliance in Republican politics.

It will also be made known to the gathering tonight that the Governor will make no indorsement of a gubernatorial candidate throughout the campaign, though Judge John S. Fine, of Luzerne County, and Public Service Commissioner P. S. Stahlnecker, as well as some other Pinchot lieutenants elsewhere in the state, have declared for Schnader.

Gov. Pinchot will come to Pittsburgh Friday to speak at night.

M'DEVITT QUITS GOVERNOR RACE

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—President Judge Harry S. McDevitt, of the Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas, retired today from the Pennsylvania gubernatorial contest.

McDevitt acceded to the request of a committee of distinguished members of the bar who pleaded with him to remain on the bench.

His retirement from the campaign reduced to 15 the number of aspirants seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination in the May 15 balloting.

Political observers said McDevitt's action has strengthened the movement in favor of Attorney General William A. Schnader.

Judge Robert E. Lamberton, also of the Philadelphia Common Pleas Court, was expected to follow McDevitt's example and erase his name from the list of gubernatorial candidates.

ORGANIZATION TO PUSH M'LEOD MEASURE BACKED HERE

MANY LEADERS WILLING TO JOIN MOVE

Pinchot and Fisher Lauded for Support Of Bank Payoff

Organization of the widespread support of the McLeod bill to free deposits in closed Federal Reserve banks moved forward here today while its supporters in Congress were battling for the measure in Washington.

Congressman Clarence J. McLeod, of Michigan, author of the bill to pay depositors in closed Federal Reserve banks in full immediately, will speak here next week at a public mass meeting.

The Michigan representative, who has had the backing of the entire Allegheny County delegation in the House, said in accepting an invitation to speak here that much may be accomplished toward enactment of the legislation through further concerted expression of the public wishes.

He said:

"I am grateful for the privilege of speaking to the people of Pittsburgh on this important issue. Representative Clyde Kelly of that city has been one of the most substantial workers for my bill, and the fact that the Governor of the Keystone State, Gifford Pinchot, and its former Governor, John S. Fisher, are supporting the pay-off measure, makes it a double pleasure to go to Pittsburgh at this time."

HUMES TO PRESIDE

Maj. E. Lowry Humes, former Democratic United States Attorney for Western Pennsylvania, will preside at the mass meeting in the Nixon Theater at noon Wednesday, May 2.

Hundreds of businessmen and public officials and bank depositors whose funds are tied up in closed Federal Reserve banks throughout Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia have signified their interest in forming an organization to support the McLeod bill.

Congressman McLeod was invited to speak here by the Sun-Telegraph, which is urging passage of the bill. Thousands of petitions, telegrams and letters to representatives in Congress have been sent from Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia urging passage of the McLeod measure by persons who indorse its purpose.

The appearance of Congressman McLeod here will give this large group an opportunity to obtain first hand information on the provisions of the bill and to acquaint them with its fortunes in the face of attempts in Congress to kill it.

The measure has survived numerous parliamentary maneuvers described by its sponsors as "trickery," and its supporters are hopeful of bringing it to a vote in the House despite the opposition.

PREDICT PASSAGE

Congressional leaders have predicted that the measure will pass in the House if it is brought to a vote.

Concerning the opposition, Congressman McLeod said:

"I cannot understand why anyone should express fear of the cost to the government in the proposed measure to reimburse depositors in the closed banks. Compared with what we have been spending for various relief and recovery funds, it would be a mere drop in the bucket. It is the old story of crying 'wolf' when any measure is suggested for the relief of the little fellow.

"When the independent offices bill was up for the restoration of the wages of government workers and to give relief to a few suffering veterans, there was a great cry for the balancing of the budget. Now since that bill has been enacted we see that the actual deficiency is negligible. It would be the same with the plan to pay off the bank depositors.

"The government would benefit by the instant increase in buying power and restoring the confidence of the people in the banks, and in their assurance of the safety of the future."

The meeting will be held at noon on May 2 at the Nixon Theater to give the greatest number of interested persons an opportunity to hear Congressman McLeod, who will be introduced by Congressman Kelly.

CLAIMS $575,000

In 1931, while still in the employ of the Insurance Department, Attorney Grubbs filed a statement of claim in the Allegheny County Common Pleas Court against E. M. Love to collect a $50,000 promissory note listed among the assets of the company then in liquidation.

Answering the claim, which is still pending, Love said he had made an oral agreement with the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation to purchase securities acquired from the First National Company of Baltimore.

He paid $575,000 cash and gave a $50,000 note to the corporation dated March 4, 1930, but asserted:

"The Pennsylvania Surety Corporation was unable to deliver said securities and at no time since the receipt of the said moneys and note has been able to comply with its contract aforesaid."

Love then concluded that:

"Wherefore, the defendant denies that he is indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of $50,000 or in any other sum whatsoever, and avers, on the contrary, that the plaintiff is indebted to him on account of the failure of the consideration in the contract aforesaid in the sum of $575,000."

Fletcher Proposes Bank Law Changes

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Chairman Fletcher, of the Senate Banking Committee, today introduced a bill to postpone for a year the divorce of security affiliates from national banks and separation of investment and deposit banking by private bankers.

The Fletcher bill would delay for a year the operation of two of the most stringent provisions of the 1933 bank law.

FRANCE BALKS ARMS PEACE

Associated Press.

Disarmament, hanging on the ropes for months, was delivered another telling punch in Paris yesterday during a Franco-Italian discussion.

Premier Gaston Doumergue reiterated to Fulvio Suvich, Mussolini's traveling spokesman, France's refusal to approve German rearmament or restrict her own while military preparations are going on across the border.

France also is against four-power discussions, favored by Italy, insisting that negotiations be taken to the League of Nations, from which Germany divorced herself.

Suvich left Paris for London, where he will begin conversations today.

The critical armaments impasse between Berlin and Paris apparently will be the fundamental subject of the Italo-British talk, with Japan's new warning to western powers to keep their hands off China apparently relegated to second place.

Meanwhile, Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister, arrived in Warsaw on a trip intended to strengthen his country's defensive alliances in eastern Europe. He will also visit Czecho-Slovakia.

BIRTH CONTROL BILL FAVORED IN SENATE

Judiciary Committee Reports Measure For Passage

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP.)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today approved the Hastings bill to permit the circulation of birth control literature for use by physicians, hospitals, medical colleges and druggists.

The measure, introduced by Senator Hastings (Rep.), of Delaware, had been the subject of long hearings and controversy.

No record vote was taken, but it was announced that Chairman Ashurst (Dem.), of Arizona, and Senators Stephens (Dem.), of Mississippi, and McCarran (Dem.), of Nevada, opposed a favorable report.

"The provisions of this section shall not be construed to apply to any book or information relating to the prevention of conception, or article, instrument, substance, drug, medicine, or thing designed, adapted, or intended for the prevention of conception, for use (1) by any physician legally licensed to practice medicine in any state, territory, or the District of Columbia, or by his direction or prescription; (2) by any medical college legally chartered under the laws of any state, territory, or the District of Columbia; (3) by any druggist in filling any prescription of a licensed physician; or (4) by any hospital or clinic licensed in any state, territory, or the District of Columbia."

CANNON ADMITS FUND SHIFTS

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP.)—Numerous instances of simultaneous transfers of identical amounts of money between the personal bank accounts of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and the account of the headquarters committee of anti-Smith Democrats were testified to today by the Southern Methodist churchman at his trial on a conspiracy charge.

With deposit slips and bank ledgers as his references, Cannon said he "supposed" the cross check items were repayments of loans.

The bishop is on trial with Miss Ada L. Burroughs in District of Columbia Supreme Court on a charge of conspiracy to violate the federal corrupt practices act by failing to report all the money they received in 1928 to oppose the Presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith.

After Bishop had completed his testimony, Miss Burroughs testified that she had no knowledge of contributions by Edwin C. Jameson, New York insurance executive, except the $17,300 that was reported to the clerk of the House.

Goodwill Industries Extends Campaign

A week's extension in the Goodwill Industries' drive for castoff clothing was announced today by J. C. McQuiston, president of the Industries. World Monetary Control

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL
Financial Authority.

THE President's disheartening disposition to delay positive silver legislation by a fatuous reliance upon some future problematical and idealistic international silver agreements, brings to the student of finance the sorrowful realization of the incompetence of our financial immaturity.

The outspoken and significant statement of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, reciting their national recovery progress and pointing out very clearly that England has no intention of paying her war debts to America, furnishes a concrete example of England's self-centered and effective procedure in sharp contrast to our own absurd recovery program and hesitant muddling attempts at monetary and financial legislation. The Chancellor's statement ought also to dissipate forever the childish idea that America could possibly obtain by international conference any agreement NOT SHREWDLY DEVISED AND DICTATED by ENGLAND for the specific purpose of preserving her stranglehold upon international monetary affairs.

It is not to be expected that the layman at a distance from Washington, absorbed in his own problems, will catch the signficance of the powerful undercurrents which are influencing our legislative program, but it could hardly escape observant men that the energies of the present Congress have been and are being largely absorbed in financial legislation, and that each measure offered which in any way involves monetary or financial matters, brings a swift and determined controversy, the significance of which one must largely read between the lines of the press reports.

FOR two centuries England has preserved her supreme command of world monetary affairs, not only by manipulating her own currency and that of her colonies through her world-wide central banking system, but by active participation in financial legislation of every other nation, both by direct action through suave and skillful lobbyists and manipulators at the seat of government, and through powerful sympathizing local and influential channels.

In the present silver legislation the central motif for the undercover battle is not here in America, but in Europe, and the most active and determined opposition to any legislation looking to remonetization of silver comes direct and with little disguise from the English central banking group.

England controls 75 PER CENT OF THE WORLD'S GOLD PRODUCTION. America controls 80 PER CENT OF THE WORLD'S SILVER PRODUCTION.

A single international metal standard of either gold or silver would automatically and obviously throw the control of international monetary affairs respectively to either England or America.

This is the essence of what is a far more significant and bitter struggle than is apparent on the surface.

Every European embassy in Washington is a hotbed of propaganda, and every visible and subterranean channel which can affect the situation is being used by our Anglo-American international bankers, whose activities are UNQUESTIONABLY directed by the English central banking group.

THE enormous American accumulation of gold during the World War unsettled England's command. We declined to join England in a continued world policy of deflation after the war, and our prosperous period from 1923 to 1929 gave us a commanding position in world commerce.

The debacle of 1929 and our stupid, unnecessary and prolonged period of prostration gives England the opportunity to regain her financial and commercial supremacy and she will fight persistently, powerfully and shrewdly for every advantage.

If they can prevent remonetization of silver and gradually force the re-establishment of the single gold standard, or can effectively replace gold currencies with fiat sterling bank notes as they appear to be doing, England will once more assume undisputed command and we may kiss a long goodby to any hope of regaining our profitable export trade and the commercial domination to which our natural resources and our productive ability entitle us.

That is the essence of the silver controversy. It is peculiarly unfortunate that the President leans toward a policy which is playing directly into England's hands.

SENATOR KING FOR M'CARRAN AIR MAIL BILL

Four of Five Probers Support Measure Banning Politics

By DON EWING.
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Swinging into the battle to kill the McKellar-Black air mail bill, Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, today announced his support of the McCarran measure to take aviation out of politics.

King, member of the Senate air mail investigating committee, denounced efforts to picture the McKellar-Black bill as an "administration measure." He said:

"President Roosevelt has never voiced approval of the McKellar-Black bill, and to call it an administration measure is simply an attempt to put Senators on the spot and make it appear that they would be voting against the President if they opposed the bill."

COMMITTE SWAYED

King's support on the McCarran bill definitely placed four of the five members of the air mail investigating committee on record as opposing the McKellar-Black bill.

The McCarran bill places aviation permanently under federal control, a principle included in President Roosevelt's plan for a commission to study aviation and report to the next Congress.

Numerous senators privately expressed their liking for the McCarran bill, but hesitated to speak publicly for fear they might be looked on as opposing the President.

King pointed out that the McCarran bill contained no political or partisan features.

1-Year Air Mail Contract Bill Reported Favorably

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(INS.)—The House Postoffice Committee today favorably reported the new air mail bill providing for award of one-ear contracts and establishment of a commission to investigate and devise a national aviation policy.

The bill probably will be passed by the House this week, with a special rule for its consideration being sought by Chairman Mead (Dem.), of New York.

EXCHANGE BILL LOBBY SCORED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The charge that the most powerful lobby ever organized—including a link with NRA—has attempted to prevent passage of the stock exchange regulatory bill was made today by Chairman Rayburn (Dem.), of Texas, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

Rayburn charged that George H. Mead, Dayton (O.) paper manufacturer, had presented amendments to the measure purporting to be the findings of the Durable Goods Committee of the NRA. Rayburn added:

"It turned out that we had had them two or three days before—from Mr. Whitney and Mr. Rewmond. They were practically identical."

Richard J. Whitney is president of the New York Stock Exchange. Roland Redmond is counsel to that body.

Forces arrayed against the bill, Rayburn charged, had used "all the businessmen they can to pull their chestnuts out of the fire." He concluded:

DEFY PRESIDENT ON SILVER BILL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Silver bloc senators today voted to defy the White House by proceeding with legislation for mandatory remonetization of silver.

The President favors permissive silver legislation.

Seven Senators, the last of a score who remained until the end of an informal caucus of silver proponents, voted to continue a drive for the amended Dies bill, which President Roosevelt announced Saturday he would oppose. There were no negative votes cast.

Roosevelt Visits CWA Art Exhibit

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP.)—Painting and etchings of artists employed by the Civil Works Administration on exhibit here were viewed yesterday by President Roosevelt.

Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and friends, the President motored to the Corcoran Art Gallery, not far from the White House.

MACON REACHES FLORIDA GOAL

MIAMI, Fla., April 23.—(AP.)—Proud of their fast cruise across the continent, officers and men of the naval dirigible Macon were busy today reconditioning the huge craft for the Caribbean war games.

The Macon moored here yesterday after a 54-hour flight from Sunnyvale, Cal., which Commander A. H. Dresel said was probably a new transcontinental record for lighter-than-air craft.

The helium supply is to be replenished and the entire ship reconditioned before the Macon is released from its mast, about May 5, to join the fleet near the Canal Zone.

Landing here a short time before the arrival of the Macon was Rear Admiral E. J. King, chief of naval aeronautics, who is to confer with Commander Dresel.

Kin of Wordsworth Weds, Loses $50,000

LONDON, April 23.—(AP.)—It became known today that William Derek Wordsworth, great-grandson of the poet, has married a 17-year-old actress and sacrificed a $50,000 legacy.

Young Wordsworth's grandfather left him £10,000 in his will on condition that he remain unmarried until the age of 25. But Wordsworth, 23, married Miss Cecily Deeks, missing the legacy by two years.

Over 38 Millions Frozen In Banks of Two States

Over 38 million dollars would be released by depositors of closed Federal Reserve banks in Pennsylvania and West Virginia alone upon enactment of the McLeod bill, surveys of the closed bank situation in the two states disclosed today.

Representative Clyde Kelly said deposits aggregating more than 25 million dollars in 119 banks in Pennsylvania would be freed according to a check-up with the Treasury Department.

Representative Randolph (Dem.), of West Virginia, according to the Associated Press, announced that $12,753,075 would be released similarly in West Virginia.

Complete data prepared by the Comptroller of the Currency at Randolph's request disclosed there are 31 national banks in West Virginia in receivership. Those listed as under conservatorships, and the amount of unpaid deposits in each, follows:

First National Bank, Moundsville, $364,649; Farmers and Mechanics National Bank, Williamstown, $142,945; Wellsburg National Bank, Wellsburg, $594,233, and the First National Bank, Salem, $456,556.

Those listed as under receiverships, and the amount of unpaid deposits in each follow:

Alderson National Bank, Alderson, $227,852; First National Bank, Anawalt, $100,291; Amsted National Bank, Amsted, $193,581; Bayard National Bank, Bayard, $93,821; First National Bank, Belington, $125,081; National Citizens Bank, Charles Town, $246,065; First National Bank, Chester, $191,068; First National Bank, Cowen, $44,502; Union National Bank, Fairmont, $1,338,458; National Bank of Fairmont, Fairmont, $1,220,253; First National Bank, Fairview, $55,324; Gary National Bank, Gary, $305,152; First National Bank, Gormania, none; First National Bank, Keyser, $587,903; Kingwood National Bank, Kingwood, $141,624; First National Bank, Logan, $1,161,918; First National Bank, Matoaka, $87,587; Second National Bank, Morgantown, $874; First National Bank, Mullens, $148,915; First National Bank, Newburg, $216,765; First National Bank, New Cumberland, $464,215; Citizens National Bank, Philippi, $468,586; First National Bank, Pineville, $192,699; Merchants National Bank, Point Pleasant, none; First National Bank, St. Albans, $247,494; First National Bank, Shinnston, $252,196; First National Bank, Sutton, none; National Bank of Thurmond, Thurmond, $149,722; First National Bank, Webster Springs, $149,722; McDowell County National Bank, Welch, none; First National Bank, Worthington, $89,176.

Senator-Foe Breaks Date With Mrs. Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP.)—After Senator Schall (Rep.), of Minnesota, had failed to keep an appointment with her at the White House, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today arrived late at her press conference and sweepingly contradicted the statement the Senator issued yesterday against her furniture factory.

Schall said last night that Mrs. Roosevelt was charging five times what others ask for furniture similar to that produced at her Hyde Park (N. Y.) factory.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she called the Senator and he agreed to come to the White House at 10:30.

She said she waited until 11 and expressed regret that he failed to appear. She said she preferred telling him first what she was going to say in answer to his accusation, and added:

"Be sure I'll tell him as quickly as I can."

Mrs. Roosevelt said the Reedsville (W. Va.) subsistence homestead project, in which she has evinced great interest and to which Schall referred, had never even considered a furniture factory and had no connection whatever with her Hyde Park plant.

From the latter establishment, she added that neither she nor the other three women had ever made a cent of interest on their investment.

ARMY LEADERS HERE FOR FUNERAL OF COL. THAW, WAR ACE

PITTSBURGHER ORGANIZED LAFAYETTE ESCADRILLE, CITED MANY TIMES

Noted fliers who fought with Col. William Thaw II, World War ace, today attended funeral services for their former comrade.

Thaw, who died yesterday at his home in the Schenley apartments from pneumonia at the age of 41, was laid to rest in the Thaw family plot in Allegheny Cemetery.

SHOT DOWN FIVE PLANES

War fliers who attended the funeral included Chauteau Johnson, Robert Soubiran and Cord Meyer. Meyer was in the plane in which Alexander Blair Thaw, younger brother of Col. Thaw, fell to his death on the Western front.

Col. Thaw's name always will be connected with that of the Lafayette Escadrille, that band of hard-fighting American fliers whose deeds contributed many a page of glory to the history of the World War.

Thaw was the only member of the original squadron of volunteers to serve with the Escadrille throughout the entire period of its existence.

Thaw was credited officially with five victories—five planes shot down—but unofficially he was said to have brought down others.

DECORATED FOR BRAVERY

His own plane was hit by an anti-aircraft shell in June, 1915, but landed safely with the French lines with the tail shot away. He himself was potted by a bullet through the forearm in a combat May 24, 1916.

Many times decorated for bravery, having been given the Distinguished Service Cross with bronze oak leaf, the Legion d'Honneur (rosette) and the Croix de Guerre with four palms and two stars, Thaw was remembered by his comrades as one who worked for the victory of pilots under him more than for his own glory.

Those who served under him recalled that in combat he was never flustered, never excited, and cooly led his squadron against enemy fliers equipped with planes of superior engine power and climbing capabilities.

One of his greatest acts of heroism took place in August, 1915, when single-handed he fought a battle with five German planes. For this he was cited for bravery.

SINGLE-HANDED FIGHT

On another occasion he was cited by Gen. John J. Pershing, head of the American Army during the war. This citation read:

"For extraordinary heroism in action near Rhiems, France, March 25, 1918. Maj. Thaw was the leader of a patrol of three planes which attacked five enemy monoplanes and three biplanes."

Then another citation:

"The bronze oak leaf is awarded to Maj. Thaw for extraordinary heroism in action near Montaigne, France, April 20, 1915. In the region of Montaigne, Maj. Thaw attacked and brought down, burning, an enemy balloon. While returning to his own lines the same day, he attacked two enemy monoplanes, one of which he shot down in flames."

Although Thaw had defective vision of the left eye, defective hearing and a knee injury, he was appointed in command of the 103rd Pursuit Squadron in May 24, 1917. He commanded this unit during the great St. Mihial offensive.

JOINED FOREIGN LEGION

Singularly, Thaw did not enlist in the war as an airman. He was regarded as the best flier in America before the great conflict burst forth, but when he enlisted in the French Foreign Legion in August, 1914, it was as a common infantryman.

Then, in September, 1914, he was transferred to the French air service. He trained for fighting at Buc and St. Cyr. He became a machine gunner December 24, 1914. "Machine-gunning" in those days meant fighting with rifle and pistol—the only arms furnished to the fliers.

In April, 1915, he joined up with the Lafayette Escadrille. In this famous outfit his companion was Raoul Lufberry, a great air fighter. He and Thaw were said to be the "soul of the Lafayette Escadrille."

Thaw served with the Escadrille until February 18, 1913, when he was commissioned a major in the United States Air Service. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel November 12, 1918.

One of the most poignant events for Thaw during the war was the death of his younger brother, Alexander, killed in an airplane accident. The crash was attributed to engine trouble. The younger Thaw was one of the first American pilots to fly over the German lines and was a squadron commander at the time he was killed.

REPRESENTED AIR LINES

Following the war, Thaw engaged in prospecting in Lower California. He then turned his attention to air promotion and later entered the general insurance and aviation business. His last occupation was as agent and broker for several Pittsburgh air lines.

In September, 1928, Col. Thaw was injured when his plane crashed near Decatur, Ind., when he and Capt. Jack Harris attempted to set a transcontinental non-stop flight record.

Col. Thaw, born August 10, 1893, was a son of Benjamin and Elma Thaw. He attended the Groton School, New York, and later went to Yale University.

In 1921, Col. Thaw married Margary Everts Priest.

Col. Thaw was a member of the Aero Club of Pittsburgh, the National Aeronautic Association, and Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity, Yale. He was a director of the Enterprise Transit Company, the Iowa Transit Company, Iowa Railway and Light Company, Hurd Coal and Iron Company and the Pittsburgh, Youngstown and Ashtabula Railway Company.

Col. Thaw leaves his widow, a brother, Benjamin Thaw, Jr., counsellor of the United States Embassy at Oslo, Norway, and a sister, Mrs. Lawrence Slade, of New York.

Autographed Bottle Thaw's Prized Trophy

Despite the many official citations for bravery awarded to Col. William Thaw II, for his World War deeds, his most prized possession, it was revealed today, was a bottle labelled "The Famous Escadrille Lafayette Brand" and containing the record of famous American fliers in their own handwriting.

It is among Thaw's collection of mementoes, citations and medals which he modestly shielded from the public gaze in his former Morewood Place residence.

Its chief historical value is that it proves by the handwriting of the war aces themselves that Paul F. Baer was the first American flier fighting under the American colors to bring down a German plane. The date was April 6, 1918.

The label contains the handwriting of such famous war aces as Thaw, Raoul Lufberry, D. Masson, Chateau Johnson, W. Peterson, James N. Hall, Paul F. Baer and Charles J. Biddle.

MEDALS IN STORAGE

Thaw modestly kept his war decorations in a storage room of his Morewood Place home and now they will be turned over to historical societies along with other valuable war mementoes.

These citations included:

The United States Army Distinguished Service Cross, the French Legion of Honor citation, signed by the President of the French Republic; the Croix de Guerre citation, signed by Gen. Petain; the United States Army Meretorious Service citation, signed by Gen. John J. Pershing.

An interesting relic is a copy of Col Thaw's farewell when relinquishing command of the Third Pursuit Group of American fliers, November 27, 1918. Col. Thaw wrote:

"In relinquishing command of the Third Pursuit Group, I wish to take this opportunity of expressing my admiration and appreciation of the attitude of all members of this command toward the work which they have been called upon to do and the manner in which they have always performed their duties.

"You entered into our first big offensive a newly formed and untried organization, but, despite these unfavorable circumstances, and, thanks to the tireless energy and conscientious attitude of the non-flying personnel and the courageous zeal of the pilots, you were able to make of yourselves in a few short weeks an excellent combatant unit and to become a formidable and aggressive pursuit group.

"The group commander wishes to thank you all for the record you have made and to congratulate you on the glorious part you have played in bringing about our great victory."

Joan Crawford Bans Marriage For Film Career

JOAN CRAWFORD

FRANCHOT TONE TURNED DOWN

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.—(AP.)—Joan Crawford gets her final decree of divorce from Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., May 13, but she is not going to marry that young man from Cornell, Franchot Tone, she said.

The dancing daughter of the screen thinks marriage for an actress is "impossible." She says she will not marry Franchot, her constant companion, so long as she is in motion pictures, and she has no thought of giving up her career.

The supposed date of the wedding of Joan and Franchot had been forecast in the film capital as May 14 or 15. Tone admits he has proposed to Joan. Her statements about the possibility of marriage have been somewhat vague until today. She said:

"An actress should never marry; I am convinced of that.

"It is better to say now that I shall not marry, and cause a small hurt, than to say 'yes' and cause a great hurt later on. It is simply the oft-told tale that career and marriage do not mix.

"Seriously I doubt I have ever been in love. Hollywood stands in the way of any great, true love."

INSULL BARES HOPES FOR FUTURE

'Justice Will Triumph.' Ex-Utility King Declares

(Editor's Note—For the first time since his dramatic capture in Istanbul and his deportation to the United States to stand trial, Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, today tells of the future he believes is in store for him.)

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

ABOARD S. S. EXILONA, AT SEA, April 23.—Insisting that his motives were honest and that he has been misjudged for "going down with a sinking ship," Samuel Insull is going home confident that "justice will triumph."

He told me of his plans and his hopes today—described himself in almost so many words as an old man who fell victim to circumstances beyond his control and declared he was going home with chin up and asking quarter from no one. Insull said:

"I went down with my ship when the economic crisis struck America.

"Today I am broke. My fortune is wiped out, my name sullied by unwarranted charges and I am parted from my loved ones.

"I trust I can marshal my strength and fortitude to face the future."

'SANK WITH SHIP'

It was a portrait from bitter experienced, tinged with only small self-pity, that this 74-year-old, white-haired man who once ruled a two-billion-dollar utilities empire, drew from me on the deck of the Exilona as the ship hove in sight of the Spanish Main on a sunny April day.

The nightmare of flight was behind him. He had shot his last bolt in his efforts to escape the clutches of a relentless law and he found himself able to face the future with equanimity. He said:

"The agitation against me started after I left. Now that I am going back, I must confess I feel a certain sense of relief.

"It seems to me that justice will ultimately triumph.

"I am not begging for sympathy. At 74 I can still fight.

"Why should they make an object lesson of me? I think that many others went down as I did in the depression that swept the world.

"Which is worse after all—to go down with the ship, as I did, or to sell short, as others did, and make millions of dollars?

"I sank my last dollar trying to save my ship.

BLAMES NO ONE

"I made the mistake in having unbounded confidence that the United States could override the depression sooner than it did.

"It was not that I was influenced by others. Certainly what the Hoover administration was saying at the time (an allusion to 'prosperity statements, emanating from Washington) did not unduly influence me.

"What I did to meet the business crisis I did on my own responsibility and judgment and I am blaming no one.

"Circumstances beat me—circumstances beyond my control.

"And the same circumstances beat hundreds of other business men who had a reputation for sagacity, honorable dealings, conservatism and foresight."

Divorce? It's Up to Her, Says Gloria's Husband

Separation Admitted, Church Bars Action By Him, He Adds

International News Service.

PARIS, April 23.—Foreshadowing the end of another American film star's romance, Michael Farmer, husband of Gloria Swanson, tacitly admitted today the couple had separated.

Farmer would not say a divorce was pending but discussed the question of divorce frankly in an exclusive interview with International News Service. He said:

"If there is a question of divorce it will have to come from Miss Swanson. Because of my religious beliefs I could not get a divorce."

Asked why rumors of divorce persisted, Farmer's reply plainly inferred there had been at least a temporary separation. He said:

"Miss Swanson is making a personal tour now and I would only be following her around. Then she goes to Hollywood to make pictures.

"As I understand it, if Miss Swanson obtained a divorce in the United States she would still be legally married to me in Europe."

Farmer said that the child born to Miss Swanson and himself was now in Paris. Miss Swanson's two children, one by a former marriage and one adopted, are in Switzerland, he said. He declared their own child would remain in Paris.

Farmer was just returning from a hunting and fishing expedition in Norway. He said he intended to remain here about a month and "probably would accept an invitation to make a voyage around the world aboard a yacht."

3 SLAYERS, PAL FLEE PRISON

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., April 23.—(AP.)—Four prisioners, three of them serving life terms, escaped from the Michigan City Prison during the weekend, prison officials revealed today.

Leland Phillips, 26, serving a life term for murder and Noah Seals, serving a three-year sentence for second degree burglary, escaped sometime Saturday from the prison farm west of Michigan City. Both are white men.

Two negroes, Willard Butler, 37, and Charles Irwin, 38, both serving life terms for murder, escaped Sunday. Butler had been employed as cook at the home of warden Lewis Kunkel on the prison grounds and Irwin was a janitor in the prison barber shop.

Butler and Irwin had only to walk away from the prison as their duties took them beyond the institution walls.

Delaware's Alumni To Mark Centennial

The University of Delaware's one hundredth anniversary will be marked by a centenary dinner under the auspices of the university's Pittsburgh alumni chapter, in the Keystone Club, Saturday night.

Dr. Walter Hullihen, president of the university, will speak on "The First Hundred Years." Athletics and physical education at the school will be discussed by H. G. Lawson, president of the university's national alumni association.

TWO DILLINGER 'MOLLS' HELD

International News Service.

ST. PAUL, April 23.—Evelyn Frechetti and Bernice Norton, "molls" of the Dillinger gang, were to be questioned by Department of Justice agents here today as police of Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Canada hunted John Dillinger and his henchman, John Hamilton.

While federal operatives denied the Frechetti girl was being held here, local police admitted she was being held in a local jail for questioning. She was brought here by plane following her capture in Chicago.

The Frechetti girl landed here handcuffed to two 200-pound deputy marshals. She was provided with a heavily-armed escort of federal agents as she was hustled into a waiting automobile and whisked away to the jail.

Sankey Sister-in-Law Waives Extradition

ST. PAUL, April 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elvina Kohler, sister-in-law of the late Verne Sankey, confessed kidnaper, who hanged himself in a jail cell, today waived a removal hearing and volunteered to be taken to South Dakota to face charges of conspiring to abduct Charles Boettcher, II, Denver, released on payment of $60,000 ransom.

Laura La Plante In New Romance

LONDON, April 23.—(INS.)—The engagement of Laura La Plante, American screen actress, and Irving Asher, Hollywood director, will be announced as soon as suitable time has elapsed following her Riga divorce last week from William Seiter, Asher admitted today.

2 SLAIN, 4 HURT AS DILLINGER SKIPS NET

of two men and the serious wounding of four others.

Dillinger and six members of his machine gun gang were at bay in the woods of the Lac Du Flambeau resort region. They were fleeing over roads soft from melting snow, and a force of 50 was close behind.

One Department of Justice agent was among the dead and another was wounded.

CORNERED IN DANCE HALL

Cornered late last night in Little Bohemia, a Spider Lake dance hall and tavern nine miles southeast of Mercer, Dillinger had had the narrowest escape of the weeks of pursuit in which the government men have trailed them about the country.

Three young women were left behind, and surrendered when the beseiging forces filled the resort, a sprawling building housing living quarters, a bar and a cabaret, with tear gas.

The first victim, a bystander, was Eugene Boisoneau, killed outright by the federal agents' fire as he and two companions drove away from the resort.

FLEE INTO WOODS

The shots warned Dillinger and his band, who had taken forcible possession of the resort Friday, mounting a machine gun on the roof and posting lookouts.

They fled out a rear door and separated in the thick Wisconsin woods.

Three turned up a few minutes later at Mitchell's resort, commandeered a car, and drove off ahead of the federal men. One other, carrying a machine gun over his arm, ran into a nearby tavern, Turner's resort, and demanded of Alvin Turner that he furnish him a car.

U. S. SLEUTH SLAIN

W. Carter Baum, a Chicago federal agent, was killed; Constable Carl C. Christensen, of Spider Lake, Wis., was critically wounded, and J. C. Newman, of Chicago, a Department of Justice agent, was seriously wounded.

The gunplay had taken two lives and left four wounded. Two of Boisoneau's companions were struck by bullets.

John Hamilton, escaped Michigan City, Ind., convict; Tom Carroll, St. Paul bank robber, and Homer Van Meter, with a record as a kidnaper and stickup man, are reported to be with Dillinger.

Dillinger came to the camp from Sault Ste Marie, said J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Investigating Bureau. Arriving at the camp Friday, the gang and its three girl companions had held a continuous "party" since then.

Dillinger left his luggage behind. In a suitcase identified as his was found an assortment of pajamas and silk shirts.

After the three women surrendered, the agents shot out the resort windows, and as soon as the gas had lifted, searched it thoroughly. Meanwhile about two dozen others—from Chicago, St. Paul and other offices of the government—took up the hunt, confident that they were close behind the elusive Indiana gunman.

Roads in Iron and Vilas counties were in bad condition, local authorities said, and the good ones were few enough to permit careful watch.

It was because the government men learned that Dillinger was about to leave the Little Bohemia resort that they struck at night, they said.

DOG'S BARK GIVES ALARM

But the shots fired when Boisoneau was killed gave Dillinger the alarm. Watchdogs began to bark when the federal men crept close to the resort.

As they did, three men emerged, got into a car, and started to turn it around. The government men ordered them to halt, and when they failed to obey, opened fire.

It contained Boisoneau, who was 38 and lived in Mercer; John Morris, 59, an official of a CCC camp near Mercer, and John Hoffman, 28, a gas station attendant.

The volley which killed Boisoneau wounded Morris in the kidney and twice in the shoulder. Hoffman was hit in the left elbow and was cut by flying glass as the shots shattered the windshield.

Of the three on which the lone bandit opened fire at Turner's resort, Christensen was most critically wounded. He was shot five times in the body and legs, and was not expected to live. Federal Agent J. C. Newman had regained consciousness by noon.

Dance Hall Boss Plays Cards With Dillinger

RHINELANDER, Wis., April 23.—(AP.—Emil Wanatka, proprietor of the Little Bohemian Resort, dance hall, knew since Friday that one of his guests was John Dillinger, fugitive outlaw, he told authorities today. He said:

"Sure, I knew he was Dillinger."

"I played cards with him every day. Those Chicago cops couldn't find him, and in Indiana they couldn't hold him. So why should I have tried to take him?

"Say, he had a roll of money big enough to choke a cow."

Wanatka said that he and his two employes were virtual prisoners of the desperadoes and their women. Wanatka said one of the gang was always on guard.

50,000 CALLED BACK TO WORK IN MINES

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP.)—Work whistles and the appeal of President Roosevelt summoned almost 50,000 striking coal miners back to the bituminous pits today.

The back-to-work call was made because of a new wage structure for the soft coal industry and Mr. Roosevelt's guarantee of protection for the South's traditional wage differentials.

Acting to end three weeks of strikes and violence, Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, issued an executive order last night modifying the wage scale he had approved on March 31.

The new order left the 7-hour day intact for all pits but restored the differential of Alabama operators who had threatened "civil war" in the coal fields rather than pay the higher scale.

DIFFERENTIAL GONE

Johnson denied, however, the appeal of Northern West Virginia operators for restoration of their 24-cent wage differential over the Pittsburgh area and boosted their piece-rates for loading and cutting coal.

Under the new wage setup, completed after days of protracted conferences, Alabama operators will pay their miners a basic daily wage of $3.80 instead of the $4.60 rate originally prescribed. Prior to April 1, the basic wage in this region was $3.40.

In the southwestern district the rate will be $4.35 a day, an increase of 60 cents over the minimum fixed in the code and a reduction of 25 cents from that ordered in the March 31 amendment. Southern Tennessee's new rate is $4.24 a day, an increase of 40 cents over the code minimum and 20 cents less than the amendment rate.

ROOSEVELT APPEAL

In a personal appeal to the employers and employes, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"All employers are requested to respect their schedules and all employes are requested to go back to work on these rates at once."

Johnson ordered simultaneously with the wage revision the creation of a bituminous coal research unit, under the NRA division of research and planning, to study and advise on price structures in the industry.

He also ruled that NRA's investigation of rates and wage scales in the industry be continued and that the new schedule be subject to revision if justified by the inquiry.

WAGE SURVEY WELCOMED

This ruling brought commendation from the committee of the Southern West Virginia smokeless coal code authority. The committee stated:

"We are satisfied that the NRA findings will conclusively prove the fact that the miners' earnings in Pennsylvania and Ohio are shamefully low while those in the smokeless fields are much higher than originally contemplated by the NRA.

"We have been assured that the investigation will be vigorously pressed and that inequities disclosed by it will be promptly corrected. We are satisfied, therefore, that the smokeless fields may look for reasonably prompt relief from the inequitable competitive situation under which they have suffered since last September."

Rail Wage Feud Spurs Roosevelt Plan for 'Court'

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt moved today to strike a death blow at labor controversies troubling the government nerve centers.

Forced to take over personally another industrial dispute—the railroad wage controversy—he feels that the time has come for establishment of a permanent court to settle the many labor disputes.

Mr. Roosevelt was disclosed to have a committee already quietly at work on revision of the Wagner Labor Board bill. Members of the committee said its powers are being strengthened, rather than weakened.

Those appointed by the Chief Executive to whip the measure into shape include Secretary Perkins, Hugh S. Johnson, Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, Donald Richberg, NRA counsel, and Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, author of the bill.

The issue was brought to a head by the retirement of Joseph B. Eastman, rail co-ordinator, Saturday as special umpire in the railroad wage agreement.

Railway managers and labor leaders each accuse the others for failure to reach a decision.

Eastman stepped aside when the labor heads refused to accept the President's proposal for a six-month extension beyond July 1 of the existing 10 per cent reduction agreement.

Since enactment of some form of labor board bill would take weeks at best, Mr. Roosevelt is considering appointment of a special commission of inquiry to determine the facts.

As the heads of unions of the various large railroad systems assembled today to consider the next move, several courses stood open.

The avenues included government mediation; a vote by the members of the 21 "standard" unions on their wishes, and finally, but considered unlikely, a strike vote.

BOY MINE WAR VICTIM MAY DIE

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., April 23.—(AP.)—Hospital attendants today said the life of 8-year-old Donald Foyle, son of a Grindstone miner, may be the price of the latest of a series of shooting affrays in the Fayette County coal fields.

The boy was shot through the abdomen late Saturday at the same time Lloyd Hall, 33, a deputy sheriff employed by the H. C. Frick Coke Company, was wounded in the leg.

Police said several Negroes were arguing near the company store at Colonial No. 4 mine and one of them suddenly began shooting. Young Foyle, a bystander, fell. Hall was coming from the store and was struck in the right leg below the knee.

William Shaw, a company deputy sheriff, arrested William Roberts, 28, a Negro, and charged him with the shooting.

Authorities blame the incident, and other recent ones of like nature, to the tenseness between union and nonunion coal miners, which has led to many going armed.

WEIRTON FILES 819 DENIALS

WILMINGTON, Del., April 23.—(AP.)—The Weirton Steel Company today filed in Federal District Court 819 affidavits in support of its contention that it did not coerce its employes into voting for a company union under the NRA, as charged by the government.

The affidavits were from members of the state police, employes and business people in the neighborhood of the Weirton plant in West Virginia.

The government on March 20 filed action to permanently restrain the Weirton company from interfering in a workers' election to choose representatives for collective bargaining and from changing the working conditions of employes who join union affiliations.

Judge John P. Nields has fixed April 28 for the government to make reply to the company and argument has been set for April 30.

Tenant Won't Go So Landlord Takes Doors

The landlord, Charles Tuckfelt, testified in McKeesport Police Court today that a tenant, Alex Petruska, of Water street, McKeesport, had refused to move.

It was rather cold early yesterday, so Petruska borrowed the doors and windows of an adjoining apartment.

NRA TO MAKE CODES CLEARER

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP.)—Orders to take kinks, conflicts and overlaps out of NRA codes are expected from Hugh S. Johnson.

This job probably will get the "green light" ahead of the serious attempt at further wholesale shortening of work hours brought to the fore in the code authority assembly of early March.

Officials concede that the flat "ten-and-ten" plan—10 per cent reduction in hours and 10 per cent increase in wages for all but those who can show cause to the contrary—is just about out the window.

Meanwhile a committee named by Johnson to present a formula for re-employing workers in the heavy goods industry has shifted the load to Congress. It suggested in its report yesterday that the securities act and pending stock exchange bill be modified to aid the flow of money and credit.

STEEL WORKERS FACE SHOWDOWN

Leaders of the younger group today were ready to advance their four-point program when sessions of the fifty-ninth annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers were resumed in the Elks' Building, Seventh street and Duquesne way. That they would call for a showdown on their demands was evident.

The program is almost the same as the one drafted at a recent meeting of the Amalgamated delegates from the tri-state area held in Pittsburgh. It proposes a tieup with coal, automobile and railroad unions in certain activities, with a unified demand for recognition if the Wagner labor bill passes, or another active drive for recognition if that bill is amended.

A fight for a resolution to cut dues in half is being considered by William J. Long, steel leader, of Weirton, W. Va., and Clarence Irwin, head of a similar group in Youngstown, O.

10,000 IN AUTO WORK STRIKE

Associated Press.

Strike orders affecting 10,000 workers in three automobile plants darkened the nation's industrial picture today.

Calls were issued yesterday for strikes at the Fisher body factory at Cleveland, where 7,000 men are employed, and at the Chevrolet motor and Fisher body plants at St. Louis, involving 3,100 workers.

Strikes already were in effect at tool and parts factories at Detroit and Toledo. The National Automobile Labor Board meets at Detroit today in a renewed effort to settle the difficulties.

Wage and union recognition questions led to the Cleveland strike order, effective at 7 a. m. today.

The St. Louis strike, union leaders said, resulted from the refusal of the Chevrolet and Fisher companies to re-employ 118 men, most of whom had been active in union affairs.

35-CENT PANTS PRESSER FREED

International News Service.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 23.—Jacob Maged, Jersey City tailor who got himself into difficulties by underselling the NRA, bowed to the Blue Eagle today and won his freedom and a new customer.

On his promise he would never again cut the price of pressing a suit to 35 cents from the NRA's 40-cent minimum, Maged was freed by Common Pleas Judge Kincaid, who had sentenced him to 30 days in jail and fined him $100.

The judge said:

"I'll be a customer of yours."

Kump Urges Miners Return to Pits

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Kump today urged miners in the Northern West Virginia coal fields to return to work "promptly" following receipt of a telegram from Recovery Administrator Johnson relative to his decision in the coal dispute. The Governor said:

"I am glad the controversy is ended and I hope the men will promptly return to work and that quiet may prevail."

G. O. P. LEADING REGISTRATION

Tabulation of the second day's enrollment of voters in the districts under the permanent registration law today showed the Republicans leading the Democrats by 2,112.

According to Registration Commissioners Jacob Frank and Thomas A. Joyce there were 25,947 Republicans and 23,835 Democrats registered in the 407 districts.

The total registration today is approximately 51,000 Republicans and 47,000 Democrats. The final registration day will be May 2, but voters may register any day now between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. at the headquarters of the Registration Commission.

Third Class Cities Register Tomorrow

Citizens who failed to register last fall in the third-class cities of McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, may do so Wednesday, thus qualifying to vote in the primary election May 15.

Registrars will sit at the polls from 8 a. m. to noon; 1 p. m. to 6 p. m. and 7 to 10 p. m. Returns from such enrollment must be made to County Commissioners before noon Thursday.

ASSAIL BOSSES OF DEMOCRATS

"Bossism" in the Democratic party was attacked yesterday in speeches by Maj. E. Lowry Humes and Mrs. Annette Thackwell Johnson, the latter a candidate for vice chairman of the Democratic County Committee. They addressed a North Side meeting.

Mrs. Johnson, who is also a candidate for nomination to the state Senate, called attention to the recent appointment of Mrs. J. Wood Clark, Democratic vice chairman, to a city job, when she said:

"Was it democratic to bring pressure on the Mayor to force him to dismiss a man who was supporting a wife and family and give his $2,500-a-year city job to Mrs. J. Wood Clark, the present vice chairman in Allegheny County, while her husband is clerk of the federal courts at $6,000?"

Mayor McNair has declared against the policy of party officials serving in public office, and has intimated he will enforce against Mrs. Clark the same rule which caused a number of ward chairmen to relinquish their party posts to hold their city positions.

Humes said that as soon as the party became strong a small group of bosses sought dominance. He assailed indorsement by the Democratic State Committee of a slate of candidates in the primary.

McMillan Demands Reforms in Relief

Demanding a complete reformation of the state emergency relief and Relief Works Division, William J. McMillan is a candidate for Republican nomination for Legislature in the Eighth District.

McMillan, World War veteran, suggests removing the penalty from delinquent taxes during depressions and immediate reopening and compulsory insurance of all state banks.

Negro Preacher Out For Traction Board

Mayor McNair today revealed a new candidate for the Traction Conference Board—the Rev. W. W. Canton, Negro minister, of 735 Wylie avenue. Said His Honor:

"He stopped me on the street and told me he thought he could get five votes in Council for the Traction Conference Board. I told him if he could I would send in his name. What we want to do is satisfy Council."

Bonniwell Indorsed By Roosevelt Club

Judge E. C. Bonniwell, candidate for Democratic gubernatorial nomination, has been indorsed by the Roosevelt-Garner Club, claiming over 3,000 members, it was announced today. James Brennan is president.

M'NAIR SENDS WIDOW FOR LOT

Mayor McNair, hoping to revive the Pittsburgh frontier and re-open homesteading on the public domain, has instructed a widow to appear before City Council this afternoon to request a deed to a city lot.

In this way, the Mayor hopes to solve the rent question. He said:

"I have told this woman to go before Council and get a deed for a lot. There are 2,000 lots owned by the city that have been unused for years."

And the Mayor sounded a warning for all policemen and firemen to pay their rent.

Three city administrative groups were to be in session at the same time this afternoon with Mayor McNair running from one to the other.

The efficiency and Economy Commission was to convene at 2:45. At 3 o'clock the cabinet was to meet in the Mayor's office while Council meets in its chambers.

His Honor had to rush back from New Castle where, at noon, he addressed the Rotary Club on "State Taxes." He carried to New Castle an empty whisky bottle to use in emphasizing some of his theories.

MAYOR HANDED APPLE IN JAIL

Mayor McNair visited the County Jail today and of course something happened.

His Honor dropped in to see one James Attanucci, who had written him asking for help. A second prisoner, James Cooper, Negro, 59, of Imperial, saw the Mayor and told him how blind justice was. And the Mayor said, in effect, that it was a shame his old friend Cooper was in the lockup.

Nearby was Tom Oppenheim, who is doing a short bit for the numbers racket. Oppenheim, the jail librarian, ordered his assistant, Tom Dolan (late of the Three Toms), to desert the cause of literature for a moment and get an apples.

Dolan produced it in a jiffy, whereupon Oppenheim approached the Mayor courageously, handed him the apple and said, tersely:

"Here, Mayor."

And His Honor departed munching the apple.

A NORGE OWNER

$99.50

And here's one model that supports our contentions that the Norge rates high in these important electric refrigerator requirements. It is the size suitable for the average small home or apartment.

ABILITY is assured by the Rollator mechanism that keeps down operating expenses and keeps up continuous and uninterrupted freezing. It provides 4.4 cu. ft. storage space—or 8.8 sq. ft. of storage area on its three shelves. 42 cubes of ice—equivalent to 4½ lbs.—are made at one freezing.

COST is incomparably low—both for the initial investment and for the operating expense, for the Norge consumes electricity only a few hours per day.

FACTS ABOUT THE EXCLUSIVE NORGE ROLLATOR

In 1926 a standard Norge Rollator unit started running on a Marathon test at the Norge factory. It has run constantly ever since except for one 24-hour period each year when it is torn down and examined. To date no measurable wear on any part of this tireless Marathon unit is apparent. Since the Rollator operates only part of the time in average use, this continuous operation in the Norge factory is equivalent to a quarter of a century of domestic use.

That's why we know the Norge will give a life-time of service!

JOSEPH HORNE CO

PINCHOT HELP SEEN HERE FOR SHANNON

probably in North Side Carnegie Hall. It wil be one of the eight major speeches the Governor will make in a campaign lacking the fire of his former statewide automobile tours.

At the Friday night meeting the Governor may utter some expressions which will convince his local followers that he is committed to no other candidate, and that so far as he is concerned they can go down the line for Gen. Shannon, despite the presence of his Attorney General in the fight.

COUNTY PACT POSSIBLE

Before tonight's meeting Judge Smith will have conferred with County Controller Robert .G. Woodside and other county officials who are supporting Shannon, and out of this may come a reciprocal agreement, binding only in Allegheny County, that the Shannon and Pinchot forces shall work together with a combining of votes.

An agreement of this nature would ratify unofficial statements of Shannon supporters within the last few days, attacking Senator David A. Reed because his friends in the Mellon camp have declared for Schnader.

Judge Smith today said that he had made no committment, but yesterday in Harrisburg he talked for an hour and a half with Gen. Shannon.

One of the first callers Judge Smith had this morning was District Attorney Andrew T. Park. They talked politics, an effort being made to swing the district attorney to Pinchot's support in the senatorial primary. Park is also uncommitted on the governorship battle, though he is known to be friendly to Gen. Shannon.

Gov. Pinchot, it is understood, made no effort to have Judge Smith support Schnader, though Judge Fine and Stahlnecker, who early were in the Schnader movement, did.

WON'T OUST SCHNADER

The Governor has no intention of asking the Attorney General to resign because of the indorsement given him by political forces with which the Governor has been at war for years. There is a possibility that Schnader may resign to carry on his campaign, but if he does it will be accompanied by an interchange between the Governor and his attorney general expressing a mutual respect.

A boost was given the Schnader candidacy in Philadelphia when Mrs. Bessie Dobson Altemus, chairman of the Republican Women of Pennsylvania, indorsed him. It is reported the executive committee of her organization will issue a statement of approval later.

The original plan for approving Schnader by the Republican organization in Philadelphia called for individual indorsements by ward leaders. Councilman Charles Pommer, leader of the First Ward, made such an indorsement last Friday, but there were reported objections from other ward leaders, including Senator Samuel W. Salus, who is in the Shannon camp.

The Philadelphia leaders are miffed at the tentative slate because of inclusion of the name of Senator Harry B. Scott, of Centre County, as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor. They have so far refused to go along with Scott, and are divided between David E. Kaufman, of Towanda, Speaker Grover C. Talbot, of Delaware County, and Edwin R. Cox, president of the Philadelphia City Council.

RIVALS IN ERIE

Schnader started active campaigning today, opening a western tour in Erie County. He had competition from Charles J. Margiotti, independent candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, who also was billed in Erie for a speech arranged by Italian-American organizations.

Candidates on the Democratic organization slate are scouring the western end of the state for votes.

George H. Earle, of Philadelphia, candidate for the gubernatorial nomination; Joseph F. Guffey, seeking nomination to the Senate; Charles A. Logue, of Philadelphia, for Secretary of Internal Affairs, and Representative Chester Rhodes, of Monroe County, candidate for Judge of the Superior Court, started from Pittsburgh this morning, planning to spend the night in Meadville after an active day of campaigning.

Earle said he was well satisfied with the progress of his campaign, and all of the candidates were watching the warfare within the Republican party, as well as the tactics of opponents within their own ranks.

McNAIR BACKS GUFFEY

Mayor William N. McNair yesterday indorsed Guffey as a candidate for the Senate against Roland S. Morris, of Philadelphia. He said Guffey was an active Roosevelt partisan, was highly regarded by the President, and with support of Roosevelt principles as the major issue of the campaign, was entitled to preference over Morris.

At the same time the Mayor said he would vote for Francis X. McCulloch rather than David L. Lawrence as a candidate for Democratic county chairman. Lawrence, the incumbent, was largely responsible for the Mayor's election. He is being fought not only by McCulloch, but by Attorney Van A. Barrickman and John Sweeney, of McKeesport, the former supporting Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell against Earle, and the latter backing Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County.

TAXES EQUAL ONE-FIFTH OF U. S. INCOME

Federal, state and local taxes in 1932 equaled 20.3 per cent of the total national income for that year, according to the results of a study made by the National Industrial Conference Board. This is a big increase over the year 1929 when the total tax collection for the nation equaled 11.8 per cent of the national income.

In the period from 1929 to 1932 the ratio of taxes to national income, increased in three European countries as follows: United Kingdom, from 24 per cent to 28 per cent; Germany, from 19 per cent to 22 per cent, and France, from 23 per cent to 25 per cent.

The total tax collections in this country in 1932 were almost equal to the combined total of the three European countries, the figures being as follows: United States, $8,000,000,000; United Kingdom, $4,400,000,000; Germany, $2,400,000,000, and France $2,300,000,000.

The aggregate tax collections in the United States reached an all time peak of $10,300,000,000 in 1930. Of this total federal taxes accounted for $3,500,000,000; state taxes $1,800,000,00 and local taxes $5,000,000,000.

Recently the United States Department of Commerce made a report on taxes for the year 1932. This report pointed out that every man, woman and child in Pennsylvania, which has a population of more than 9,724,000, is paying approximately $70.13 each year toward the cost of operating the local government. The report stated that it cost $681,925,000 for local taxes in Pennsylvania during the year 1932.

Today, more than ever before, taxpayers are taking vital interest in the amount of taxes collected in their respective districts. Leagues and associations have been organized throughout the country to bring about lower taxes through cutting down the cost of government.

In Pennsylvania there are several hundred such organizations, all working for governmental economy, which can be brought about through the elimination of overlapping and duplicating of governmental services.

BLIGHT PERILS MAPLE TREES

Thousands of Pittsburgh's beautiful maple trees, including the hardy Norway maples, are threatened by "maple wilt," Dr. William R. Van Dersal, University of Pittsburgh botanist, warned today.

He explains that "maple wilt" is a disease of the sap wood, similar to elm blight. An infected tree usually dies one side at a time.

Dr. Van Dersal estimates that about 30 per cent of all maple trees here probably are doomed.

A sure test of the disease is a green ring showing in the sap wood when a branch is cut across. Sometimes a tree can be saved by cutting away infected branches until this green ring no longer shows.

But there is no known cure, Dr. Van Dersal says.

Careless tree trimmers, he says, can spread "maple wilt" by cutting healthy trees with tools that have not been sterilized.

Do as your dentist does—
when he cleans your teeth

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. That is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

● Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

● No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

● Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

New Japanese Defi To Bring Snub From U. S.

By PAUL MALLON

TEMPERS

WASHINGTON, April 23.—What makes this latest Japanese nose-thumbing antic so serious is not what has happened so far, but what is coming.

The Roosevelt administration will inform the Japanese, in one way or another, that it does not intend to let them tell us what kind of commercial relations we will maintain with China.

It will also permit Tokio to understand that we have no authority to stop our civilian aviators from training the Chinese in peace time, that we do not intend to ask Japan what kind of loans we shall make to China and that we consider Japan's new gatekeeping tactics in China as a flagrant violation of the nine-power pact.

That is what is known in undiplomatic language universally as a mouthful.

CHANCES

How that will be told to the Japanese remains for them to decide. It may be pleasant or it may be rough.

They passed out their preliminary statement in Tokio in a semi-official way. That is the old diplomatic trick to find out how the world chancelleries feel, before an official statement is sent out.

Our officials have been biting their finger nails keeping quiet officially. But they are not exactly making a secret of their reaction. Their view undoubtedly already has been transmitted to Tokio through the unofficial grapevine.

So the Japanese know what to expect when and if they start sending out official notices of their new policy.

BACKGROUND

It is a very silly business, viewed from the inside.

Our officials cannot understand why Japan ever took such a step at this time.

The Japanese well knew our unannounced attitude was to mind our own business and leave Japan and the Orient alone. On the Q. T. we more or less expected that Japan would extend her influence over China by economic aggression and perhaps even some mild military steps.

We were prepared to let her do it quietly in order to avoid trouble. We were willing to go to any honorable diplomatic extreme in order to avoid a showdown in the Far East.

PURPOSE

What is behind this whole thing, of course, is the campaign Japan started generations ago for the conquest of the Far East. First, it was Korea, then Manchukuo, and now all China. Eventually she will dominate all, but in her enthusiasm for a hasty realization of her objective, she sometimes oversteps herself.

When Foreign Minister Hirota's honeyed peace note came across the Pacific a month ago, our officials thought it meant a lull of a few years in the Japanese campaign. They thought that Japan's fear of war with Russia had calmed her down temporarily.

There are good reasons for believing our sigh of relief then was justified.

But the very moment that Europe became involved in a new warm disarmament squabble and our fleet left the Pacific, the Japanese statesmen seized the opportunity to renew their conquest project. They do not want war. They want to gobble up the Far East by diplomatic guile and commercial aggression, and this is part of the game.

SUCCESSFUL BLUNDERS

Chairman Steagall, of the House Banking Committee, conceived an idea of stopping the McLeod bill petition. He decided to present the bill to the House before the petitioners could force him to. Hastily, his committee met and authorized the presentation. But after the presentation was made, lo and behold, newsmen discovered Steagall had presented the wrong McLeod bill (McLeod had several).

This hasty error was no sooner straightened out than it was discovered that Steagall's committee had met in the afternoon. That is against the rules. So the presentation was illegal.

So Mr. Steagall withdrew the bill and had a morning meeting of his committee to do the thing right.

The point is that all this required nearly a week and delayed the vote on the McLeod bill that long.

POLITICS

The pressure for the McLeod bill comes from out in the country. It is as strong as the veterans' pressure recently exerted on Congress. Every person who lost money in banks appears to be writing in, demanding passage of the measure which would direct the government to pay back his money.

Its passage in Congress would enable the congressmen to gain political support back home, as on the veterans' issue.

NOTES

One thing, not generally known, which has nettled the Japanese, was the order of Commerce Secretary Roper stopping the scrapping of Shipping Board vessels. The Japanese were buying much of this scrap for munitions purposes . . . This latest Japanese situation is not an abstract international matter, but of vital interest to our cotton and tobacco growers and manufacturers. China is one of their best foreign customers . . . Assistant Commerce Secretary Dickinson smokes a corncob pipe in his home or less luxurious office . . . The cooling system in the room of the House Interstate Commerce Committee has been working too well recently. During secret consideration of the stock market regulation bill, at intervals, it nearly froze the committee members. They think it is another Wall street plot.

CONGRESSMAN HOWARD, OF NEBRASKA, LOOKS AS THOUGH HE HAS JUST STEPPED OUT OF AN ALBUM OF STATESMEN OF THE JACKSON ERA. HIS CLASSIC FEATURES, LONG SILVER GRAY HAIR, AND FROCK COAT SET OFF WITH A BLACK TIE AND BIG BLACK HAT, MAKE HIM A DISTINGUISHED FIGURE AS HE MOVES ABOUT CAPITOL HILL. MR. HOWARD WAS ONCE W. J. BRYAN'S SECRETARY, AND CALLS HIMSELF A "FREE DEMOCRAT".

...MED SOCIETY 'FEUD' WINNER DIES AT 90

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Death today had claimed Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr., dowager of the famous clan and long the leader of New York society.

The diminutive dowager, who clung to life with the same tenacity she had exhibited in the social warfare that rocked exclusive Newport in the gay nineties, was in her ninety-first year. She died last night.

Surviving are a son, Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and two daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, widow of Harry Payne Whitney, and Countess Laszlo Szechenyi, the former Gladys Moore Vanderbilt, wife of the former Hungarian Minister to Washington. Gen. Vanderbilt is on a yachting cruise in the West Indies.

SOCIETY FEUD RECALLED

Three other sons, William, Alfred and Reginald, are dead. Their father, who died in 1899, was a grandson of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, who made the family fortune in vast railroad projects after starting his meteoric career as a ferryboat opeator.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's maiden name was Alice Claypoole Gwynne. She married Gen. Vanderbilt in 1867. A descendant of William the Conqueror, she waged a bitter battle with her sister-in-law, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, for many years in New York and Newport over the social leadership of the clan.

Her first child was born in 1870 and was named William H., after his grandfather. His death, just after attaining his majority, was the first tragedy in his mother's life.

When her other children were along in their teens, the tiny dowager—she was scarcely five feet in height—set about to storm Mayfair's citadels.

SISTERS-IN-LAW RIVALS

Her husband's brother, William K. Vanderbilt, by this time had married a young woman from the South, Alva Smith.

From the beginning there was little love lost between the two sisters-in-law.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt scored first, eclipsing her sister-in-law by giving a fancy dress ball in town and winning the recognition of a goodly number of the social leaders.

Cornelius Vanderbilt then built the stately mansion that stood until a few years ago on Fifth avenue. It was decidedly handsomer than Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt's home.

Up in Newport, William K. Vanderbilt had built the marvelous "Marble House." Cornelius again put his money to work. The result was the huge and splendid edifice known still as "The Breakers," a place so large that it needed 60 servants. Then the battle was on.

Both branches of the Vanderbilts remained abroad until their respective Newport "trenches" were completed and then the battle was on.

GREAT BALL SUCCESS

The dowager Mrs. Vanderbilt decided to give a great ball to open "The Breakers," a function for her daughter, Gertrude.

It was a splendid affair. The glories of "Marble House" were dimmed. Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt later played her social trump card. She invited the then youthful Duke of Marlborough to Newport, and she married her daughter, Consuelo, to the duke. That match ended with an annulment in 1927.

Shortly after the marriage came Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt's marriage to O. H. P. Belmont and her elimination for the race for the right to be known as "the" Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Thereafter Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt reigned supreme in Mayfair until some years ago, when, because of her advanced age, she chose to retire.

EDWIN MARKHAM

I AM done with the years that were; I am quits;
I am done with the dead and old.
They are mines worked out; I delved in their pits;
I have saved their grain of gold.

NOW I turn to the future for wine and bread;
I have bidden the past adieu.
I laugh, and lift hands to the years ahead:
"Come on! I am ready for you!"

TROLLEY BOARD HEARING NEAR

The Public Service Commission was to hear arguments at 2 p. m. today in Harrisburg on the extension of the Traction Conference Board agreement to February 1, 1936.

Attorney W. G. Negley, representing the Allied Boards of Trade, will oppose the extension as against public interest.

The agreement provides fees for the use of the streets to be paid by the Pittsburgh Railways Company and sets up the Traction Conference Board as an advisory body in running the trolley system.

The railways company attorneys have asked that the petition of the Allied Boards be set aside because of delay in making it.

The city was to be neutral at the hearing, due to the fact that Council killed Walter R. Demmler's resolution which would have added some conditions to the agreement.

Schools to Observe Bird and Arbor Days

Bird Day and Arbor Day will be observed in combined celebrations by public school students in city parks Friday afternoon, according to John A. Hollinger, head of the public school department of science. The school nearest each park will conduct the program, and nearby schools will join in the exercises.

Orchid to Mrs. Cohen For 50 Years' Charity

'Appreciate Honor, But Only Did Duty,' Widow Insists

Dainty and fragile, a "Winchell orchid" today was Mrs. Josiah Cohen's, presented in recognition of more than 50 years of charity and philanthropy.

Widow of the late Judge Josiah Cohen and daughter of the Rev. L. Naumburg, one of the first rabbis of Rodef Shalom Temple, Mrs. Cohen's chief interest during a long life has been the alleviation of the difficulties of her fellow men, regardless of creed.

Possessor of excellent health and an apparently indefatigable capacity for work, Mrs. Cohen, who celebrates her eighty-fifth birthday tomorrow, has for more than 50 years been actively identified with the work of the Association for the Improvement of the Poor.

Her birthday will be the occasion of a big party joined by civic and philanthropic leaders in the new Jewish Home for the Aged.

When organized social service was still in embryo, she helped form the Ladies' Aid Society and the Men's Benevolent Society, forerunners of the Jewish Family Welfare Association, of which she is now a trustee.

Recognizing the need of Hill district housing rehabilitation in 1921, she was instrumental in the formation of the United Housing Corporation, a non-sectarian, non-profit project and the first organized housing group here. She also is a board member of the Montefiore and Homeopathic hospitals and is interested in numerous other humanitarian activities.

When receiving the orchid, Mrs. Cohen said:

"I don't think that attention should be called to the work that I do when I am only doing my duty.

"I appreciate the honor and the lovely orchid, but I certainly don't like publicity."

All of which only serves to carry out her lifelong philosophy—that "doing good loses its value when we make a fuss over it, and next to truth, modesty is the greatest virtue."

Orchids will be presented through the Florists' Delivery Association to 12 persons in Pittsburgh, on nominations sent the Winchell Orchid Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

HULL CONFIDENT IN NEW DEAL, FREE PRESS

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP.)—Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, today named a middle-course recovery policy of "sound liberalism" as the "very essence of the New Deal."

Standing before publishers and others gathered at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press, Hull tossed aside talk of dictatorship. The Roosevelt "rehabilitation" program, he said, would preserve "all the fundamentals of popular government." Hull declared:

"It is never wise, especially in a time of crisis, to hearken too much to the extreme reactionary or the extreme radical.

"We enthroned no dictators. We made no secret trades with private, self-interest groups—we merely drew together the different and scattered groups of democracy into a common effort, openly conceived, openly discussed, openly chosen."

ROOSEVELT COURSE

The tall, soft-spoken Secretary of State expressed confidence that what he called Mr. Roosevelt's middle course between extremes would result in "recovery, resoration and rehabiliation which would embrace the rights and liberties of the individual and the progressive improvement of the social and material condition of the masses."

In discussing matters of the press, Hull declared the service given by a free press was of "incalcuable value."

The gathering and dissemination of news along "right lines," he added, constituted a "powerful influence for international understanding, friendship and peace." He continued:

"The most serious threats agaist peace today are in those parts of the world where the press is controlled by government officials who have power either to declare war or to force war."

AIMS OF NEW DEAL

Most of the diplomatic chieftain's address centered upon the Roosevelt's administration's aims and hopes, and the pitfalls it hoped to avoid.

Among the recovery objectives named by him were preservation of the national credit, balancing of the budget as early as is practicable, avoidance of schemes for inflation, permanent exchange stabilization and monetary arranements, restoration of American foreign trade, relief of unemployment and general improvement in working conditions and wages, and "necessary" governmental regulation for the general improvement of business, commerce and agriculture.

TULLIO PEDRON ART DISPLAYED

By PENELOPE REDD

The boy is greatly concerned with experimentation in black and white mediums, zestful in his scrutiny of the folk about him, and explosive in his attempts to deliver the age-old revolt of the young against the ills of the day.

Miss Redd

Thus he uses people to illusstate his quests whether he be re-seeking the calm of the classics in No. 12, "Head," the vitriol of satire as in No. 17, "Illustration," or the vision of the symbolic as in No. 21, "Vain Hope."

He is at his best when he finds an inspiring subject such as his fellow artist, Betty Evans.

He has made four drawings of her head and one of her hands.

The drawing of Pedron's brother, "Young Bacchus," emphasizes the feeling that Tullio Pedron himself visualizes the person of Donatello, who enlivened the pages of Hawthorne's "Marble Faun."

MINE TRAGEDY RESCUE BALKED

SARAJEVO, Jugoslavia, April 23.—(AP.)—Rescue workers abandoned all hope today of finding any survivors in the depths of the blast-wrecked Kakanj coal mines.

Officials included in a death estimate of 146 the 86 men still unaccounted for. Sixty bodies had been recovered. Fifteen miners escaped or were rescued.

It had been hoped some of the entombed men might be found in distant galleries, but when the bodies recovered last night were found to be charred and mutilated rescue squads conceded the other miners trapped likewise died almost instantly.

Even the hope of recovering the remaining bodies faded as water welled up in the pit. Many of those who had sought to reach the victims turned their efforts to building caskets.

Laura Ingalls Back From Andes Flight

MIAMI, Fla., April 23.—(AP.)—Laura Ingalls, Brooklyn aviatrix, was "back home and glad of it" today with the achievement of her goal—the distinction of being the first American woman to fly the Andes solo.

She arrived here yesterday to complete with a short hop from Havana the 16,000-mile aerial tour of Central and South America, which she began in Miami on March 8.

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

FALLS IN HOMES FATAL TO THREE

Three men died from injuries suffered in falls in their homes over the week-end, according to Coroner's reports today. A 4-year-old child was seriously injured in a fall from a retaining wall.

Anthony Napeoles, 45, of Ellsworth avenue, Heidelberg, died yesterday from injuries suffered in a fall down a flight of stairs in his home.

William H. Robson, of 5343 Rosetta street, died from injuries suffered in a fall in his home.

Elizabeth Suhowski, 4, of 23 Kosciusko way, was injured seriously in a fall from a 14-foot retaining wall near the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at South Twenty-sixth and Josephine streets yesterday.

Job Campaign on To Help Graduates

A campaign to obtain employment for Pittsburgh graduates has been undertaken by the vocational guidance department of the public schools in co-operation with the junior division of the United States Employment Service. The department points out the recovery program has made little provision for the young starting out to seek a career.

EX-POLICEMAN AGAIN SEIZED

A former city policeman, recently held for court in connection with a holdup in Reedsdale street, was under arrest today in North Side Police Station on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, according to a police report.

He is Irwin T. White, 40, of 223 Federal street. Held with him also on a charge of keeping a disorderly house is James Chadwick, 46, also of 223 Federal street. Four other men, Lester Hartsough, 30, of 223 Federal street, Lawrence Reinhart, 32, of 6337 Crombie street, Eugene Burkett, 22, of 4 Federal street, and William Pierce, 57, of 921 Banksville Road, were charged with visiting a disorderly house.

North Side police said they were led to the place by a man whom they had arrested a short time before on a charge of drunkenness. They reported seizure of a 25-gallon still; 8 gallons of moonshine whisky, and bottling material.

As an aftermath of the holdup City Detectives Edward McEntee and John McCoy and Attorney Albert Martin were indicted by the grand jury on charges of conspiracy and compounding a felony. Other detectives said they found a diamond, said to have been stolen from L. E. Seibert in the holdup, in McEntee's possession.

McKeesport Man Cuts Throat, Dies

James Barrowman, 41, was found dead in his room in a rooming house at 115 Thirteenth street, McKeesport, with his throat cut, yesterday, acording to a Coroner's report. A razor was found near the body. The case was reported to the morgue as a suicide.

Mrs. Arthur Pearson, proprietor of the rooming house, told police, they said, that Barrowman had asked her for a gun with which to end his life Saturday night.

Mayor to Preside At College Debate

Mayor Willia i N. McNair will act as chairman of a Duquesne University-Pitt debate tomorrow night in the Camnus Theater at Duquesne University. The affair will be a "split" contest of the question, "Resolved: That the Essential Features of the NRA Should be Adopted as a Permanent Policy of the United States Government."

Dr. Elbert R. Moses, founder and president of the Pittsburgh School of Speech, will give a criticism of the debate at the conclusion.

5,000 RWD Workers May Lose New Jobs

Lack of funds may result in the dismissal of more than 5,000 newly-appointed Relief Works Division employes, James L. Stuart, Allegheny County administrator, indicated today. There are 18,400 men on the payroll, Stuart said, and the present allotment of $374,000 for each two weeks for Pittsburgh is insufficient to pay them. He estimated that at least $514,000 weekly is needed to meet the payroll.

Scout Camp Activities Planned

A program of 96 leadership training courses to be given in every part of the country this summer by Girl Scouts is announced by Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, consulting engineer, member of the Girl Scout national board and chairman of the personnel division which supervises leadership training.

This extended program is based on leaders' training needs to meet Girl Scout requirements and standards. The courses will be given in 23 camps by national staff members. Three are national training schools, of which one, Camp Edith Macy, Briarcliff Manor, New York, is under the direct management of the national organization, New York City.

A diversified program is planned for Camp Edith Macy which will open for its ninth season on May 14. Thirty-six courses will be given in this camp alone by women of national and international reputation.

Among the instructors will be Dr. Bertha Chapman Cady, of the Museum of Natural History; Miss Alice Schoelkopf, of the Lincoln School, and Miss Janet Tobitt, English member of the Folk Festival Council, New School for Social Research, all in New York. They will instruct in nature study, arts and crafts, shepherd pipe music, singing and dancing.

Other activities will include dramatics, games, and, of course, the regular courses in troop management, tramping and trailing, camp management and such essentials. Non-Scouts will be admitted to the camp, and will have full access to all courses. Another feature this year will be training in the management of day camps, to which go girls who cannot spend longer periods away from home.

Miss Hazel Allen will be director of Camp Edith Macy this year, and Miss Alice Wagner will be in charge of training.

Goodwill Group To Discuss Plans

A general meeting of members of the executive and advisory board committees of the Women's Auxiliary to the Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries will be held at noon tomorrow in Kaufmann's.

Plans for the auxiliary's share in Industries summer work will be discussed. Mrs. A. C. McMillan, who has been elected a vice president of the National Goodwill Industries, and Mrs. Charles E. Wegner, who has been elected a secretary of the national organization, will submit reports on the recent national Goodwill Institute, in Boston, Mass., which both attended.

A fine concert was given yesterday afternoon under auspices of the Tuesday Musical Club. It attracted a large attendance of women and girls of the Goodwill Settlement to the Community House, Liberty avenue and Twenty-eighth street. The artists included Alvin Little, baritone soloist; Betty Little, pianist, and Miss Janet Turner, violinist. Mrs. Marion Deuel McDade, chairman of the altruistic committee of the Tuesday Musical Club, was chairman.

Carnegie Club Elects Officers

Newly elected officers of the Carnegie Woman's Club are: President, Mrs. A. D. Loudermilk; first and second vice presidents, Mrs. Harry Garvey and Mrs. T. J. Robinson; recording and corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. A. Cox and Mrs. T. C. Graham; treasurer, Mrs. Floyd Wallace; auditors, Mrs. John Rotto and Mrs. R. J. Hardy.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled to take place Friday in the local Y. W. C. A., with Miss Mary Harris and Mrs. G. E. Hopper as hostesses.

Amaranth Group To Play Cards

Dr. Alsaker Will Speak Here

Dr. Rasmus Alsaker, health director of Sun-Diet Health Foundation, East Aurora, N. Y., will address a public meeting in Carnegie Lecture Hall Thursday evening, speaking on "The Conquest of Disease."

Many Interesting Features Included in Conference Of District Juniors

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

It would be difficult, indeed, to say which of the many features was the outstanding one at the spring conference of southwestern district juniors held at the Hotel Mayfair on Saturday. For Col. Morris Frank's refreshing talk on the blind and their guide dogs, Mrs. Richard B. Perry's program-planning conference, the fine address by Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton, State Federation president, and the demonstration of the talking book by Mrs. Ida Hirst Gifford, as well as the several other items of a purely entertainment nature, all found an attentive audience.

But to an outsider certainly the work of these younger clubwomen proved the amazing thing. Nearly all of the clubs are doing some sort of work for the blind or those with faulty vision, whether it be buying eyeglasses for needy school children, raising scholarships for the blind or even buying a guide dog for a blind person, such as the Ambridge Juniors are doing. Added to this, one heard of entertainment given for hospitalized veterans, a library established and equipped with 2,000 volumes (Evans City), hospital rooms furnished or endowed, Girl Scout activities, dresses and stuffed toys made for the poor, a musicale given for an inaccessible community, a community kindergarten, a dance that was held to raise funds for a boy crippled in a football game, and a variety of institutional work.

Mrs. Perry, a member of the State Federation's program-planning committee, conducted her forum before the general meeting began. There were solos by Miss Betty Beazell, who has a contralto voice of rich promise. Miss Marion Hornbake read a scene from "Death Takes a Holiday," and in the evening the Crafton Juniors put on an amusing musical sketch called "The Ladies' Aid."

Col. Frank, who is head of the Seeing Eye, where guide dogs are trained, was of course accompanied by "Buddy." Col. Frank remarked that calling all German shepherd dogs "police dogs" because some are trained for police work is like calling all Irishmen "policemen." Each guide dog looks upon her owner as a piece of property that must be protected, he said.

Mrs. Hamilton talked a little about the State Federation convention in Harrisburg, October 14 to 19. She paid high tribute to the work of Mrs. Joseph M. Steim, state chairman of juniors, and Mrs. J. C. Chalfant, district president of the senior organization, and asked for books for rural libraries, and for help in eliminating billboards.

There was a brief memorial service for Mrs. E. R. Davis, late district chairman of juniors, which Miss Pearl Weston conducted impressively, and Mrs. Ida Hirst Gifford demonstrated the "talking book," records for which may be had upon application as to a circulating library. The blind persons wishing the records need only the machine, which is comparatively inexpensive and has a radio attached. This is part of the work done for the blind by the Congressional Library in Washington.

Glenwood P. T. A. Play Tomorrow

Fifteen members of the Glenwood Parent-Teacher Association will give a play entitled "The Benevolent Society" at tomorrow's meeting.

In the cast are Mrs. Edgar Hays, Miss Shirley Considine, Mrs. Carl Foster, Mrs. Estella Sherlock, Mrs. Elizabeth Shannon, Mrs. John Williams, Mrs. Matilda Fleming, Mrs. K. Handlin, Mrs. Parker Kuhn, Mrs. Albert Kearns, Mrs. Ernest McGrew, Mrs. Helen Lower and Mrs. William Koester.

Reserves to Hear Mrs. McBride

Mrs. Lois McBride will speak before the girl reserves of Westinghouse High School on the subject of "Juvenile Delinquency" Wednesday at 12:55 o'clock.

Gowns Claim Interest of Juniors

Bradford Woods Juniors are centering all their interest just now in the bridal pageant which they are to give in co-operation with the senior Civic Club on Friday in the Bradford Woods schoolhouse.

Mrs. Clara Schick and Miss Dorothy Morozowicz, of the junior club, comprise the committee on arrangements and are being assisted by Mrs. Raymond A. Marter, Mrs. Robert L. Aeberli, Miss Kathryn Hannan, Mrs. LeRoy A. Hock and Miss Anna Mary Scott as aides.

Wedding gowns will be modeled by members of both clubs, the oldest gown being one which Mrs. J. Campbell Robers will wear and which dates back about 80 years. Music will be played throughout the pageant by Mrs. Harold D. Cochrane, piano; John C. Glomb, Jr., 'cello; Joseph Glomb, violin, and Miss Alice Smith will sing.

Alumnae Club Plans Luncheon

The Pittsburgh Alumnae Club of Pi Beta Phi will meet at the Twentieth Century Club for luncheon on Saturday in celebration of the sixty-seventh anniversary of the founding of the fraternity. Mrs. George W. McClure, toastmistress, will be assisted by Mrs. Ray H. Finger and Mrs. Walter F. Pittman. Mrs. Carolyn Hunt Mahaffey will sing.

OLD FASHIONED HOUSE CLEANING!

To-morrow begins the first day of a solid week of intensive, spectacular house cleaning at Meyer Jonasson's, in every shop, on every floor! A new general manager means a new policy. No ready-to-wear can stay in stock over 30 days. Hence this UNPRECEDENTED clearance of all odds and ends, broken sizes, leftovers, etc. though in some cases they are late arrivals. Come early and see the fun. No returns—no exchanges—but Oh, what markdowns!

Miss McClinton At Harvard Reunion

A Duquesne University freshman, Mary McClinton, Thomas boulevard, attended the 1904 Harvard class reunion which President Roosevelt gave at the White House Saturday afternoon for his classmates and their families.

Miss McClinton's father, D. N. McClinton, was graduated in the same class as the President.

Charles Schindel, Miss Barton Married

Instead of the usual white satin and tulle, a bride of Saturday night wore a suit of blue crepe at her wedding, and a double corsage of gardenias. She was Miss Gwendolyn L. Barton, daughter of M. E. Barton, of Ebbert, Pa., and the bridegroom was Charles Schindel, of Edgewood, son of Mrs. Mary Schindel.

The ceremony took place in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, with the Rev. William Porkess as the officiant. Miss Harriet Wareham was the maid of honor and her ensemble was of wood brown crepe with which she wore a corsage of yellow roses and marguerites. Manley Potter was the best man.

The reception after the ceremony was held in the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Schindel will be at home after May 1 in Wood street, Wilkinsburg.

B'nai Brith Card Parties Are Arranged

In addition to a series of neighborhood benefit card parties on Wednesday, the Ladies' Auxiliary to Pittsburgh Lodge No. 44, B'nai B'rith, will sponsor a party Monday afternoon, April 30, in Mrs. A. B. Montrell's home, Hillsdale avenue, Dormont.

Wednesday's hostesses are Mrs. S. Adler and Mrs. M. Golomb, Hollenden place; Mrs. D. Reichman, Guarion road; Mrs. J. Melnick, Douglas street; Mrs. Sadie Berer, Hobart street; Mrs. S. Wolf, South Pacific avenue; Mrs. B. Weinberg, Greystone drive; Mrs. Max Blank, Jackson street; Mrs. H. Schuchman, Center avenue; Mrs. B. Adelman, Juliet street; Mrs. N. Goldstein, Catoma street; Mrs. J. Robinson, Greensburg pike, and Mrs. D. Sulzbacher, Corry avenue, Braddock.

Hazel Oakes Bride Of Frank Nelson

Announcement is made of the marriage on Easter Sunday of Miss Hazel Oakes, daughter of Grant L. Oakes, of Lessing street, Crafton Heights, to Frank Nelson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nelson, of Sheraden.

The Rev. Charles Cribbs, of Ingram, officiated in his home. After May 1 Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, Jr., will leave for Santa Monica, Cal., where they will make their home.

Change W. C. T. U. Meeting Place

As Mrs. S. H. Augustine, president of Foster Women's Christian Temperance Union, is in the Montefiore Hospital as the result of injuries received in a motor accident, the union's meeting tomorrow will not take place in her home, but will be held at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at 12:30 o'clock.

Alumnae Group Will Give Dance

In honor of the graduating class of the Ohio Valley Hospital, the Alumnae Association will give a dance at the Mayfair Roof Garden on Friday evening, May 11. Miss Helen Dunczyk is general chairman. The class will be graduated at exercises to be held May 10 in the Miles Bryan High School, McKees Rocks.

Catholic Women Plan Card Party

The membership committee of Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women has arranged a complimentary affair in honor of the new members registered in the first quarter of 1934. It's to be a card party and tea at Council House on Saturday, with Mrs. John Murray as chairman.

Hazel Cole Shupp Alumnae Speaker

Hazel Cole Shupp, Pittsburgh novelist, presented her evaluation of Sinclair Lewis in an address Saturday afternoon before the Pittsburgh alumnae of Alpha Xi Delta, national social fraternity. The occasion was the Founders' Day luncheon at the College Club.

Mrs. D. E. Miller Welfare Speaker

Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, head of the women's division, Salvation Army, will address the Friendly Welfare Club tomorrow afternoon in the Hotel Henry. Her subject is "Life's See-Saw."

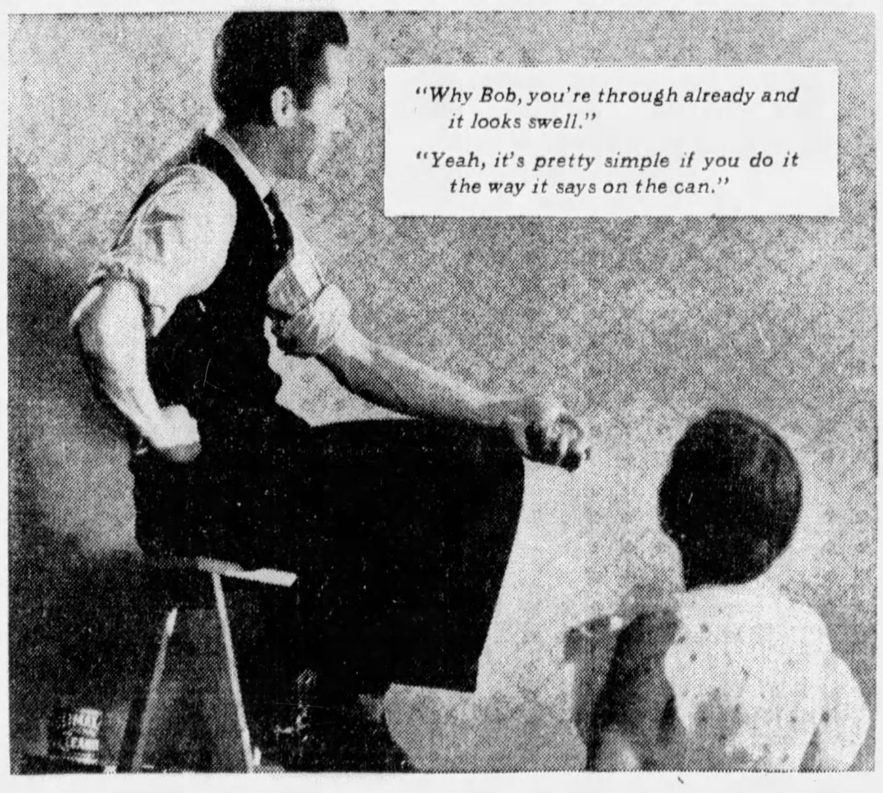
'Baby' Borough To Elect May 15

Churchill borough, the state's baby municipality, will choose its first officers at a special election May 15, in connection with the primaries.

Offices to be voted on include a burgess, three councilmen for two years and four for four years, a tax collector, two constables and three auditors.

Students to Honor Departing Professor

Prof. Q. A. W. Rohrbach, of the school of administration, University of Pittsburgh, will be guest of honor at a banquet by students of the university in Webster Hall next Saturday. Prof. Rohrbach leaves soon to become president of the Pennsylvania State Teachers' College at Kutztown.



THERE are no deep, dark secrets in cleaning walls and ceiling decorations with Climax Cleaner. Anybody can follow the simple, easy directions which are given on the can and do a good job.

Don't try to work too fast, don't take too long strokes, and when working on a ladder move it frequently so you don't have to reach so far. Rest a minute now and then—and you'll find that cleaning walls is not such a bad job after all. And you are saving forty or fifty cents an hour—to spend for something else.

Remember—Climax Cleaner is still the leading brand, 33 years old, because it is made right to clean thoroughly with least work. Climax is always dependable.

Don't accept substitutes—don't take a chance to save one or two cents a can. Insist upon fresh, reliable Climax Cleaner, in the blue-labeled can.

CLIMAX
WALL PAPER CLEANER

Through the Spyglass
Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply . . . THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

Just a mention of one hot-sy item we picked up for you the other day and have been unable to cram into our wordiness until now. For . . .

Eleven to seventeeners! These pickups are for you! News about corded sheers that one of the town's fairy godmothers has garnered together and herded into a big bunch for $17.50!

Such eye-delighting little numbers as navy with beige belting ribbon doing up and down its bodice and waist . . . such as black, with white ditto running races around its telling spots! Just the sort of frocks that you buy now . . . and wear until, well until they can't be worn any more! That's how it is with them. How's it with you?

* * *

Now we go into our song and dance act about the Grri-and Glooo-rious Sale of dresses and suits that one of the town's finest shops has to offer!

The "w h y" and wherefore of it all being that this shop doesn't like to have a single solitary spring model in stock when they buy summer creations. And hence you and I, little Spyglassers, are going to profit by it all and be able (for once!) to satisfy our champagne tastes as well as our beer pocketbooks!

* * *

Especially when dresses that sold from $29.50 to $69.50 are going-going-gone for the sums of $15 to $32.50! Among them, two numbers we could love with all our shopbound heart. Navy or black, these, with knowing bits of white pique plastered at the neck and wrist lines. The one with a tre-mendous collar ending in a wisp of a bow and having violent red or green prystal safety pins (a la Schaparelli) boop-boop-a-dooping up the front and on the matching patent belt! The other, all ritzed up via rhinestone buttons with little tails of the pique pulled through them by some amusing soul! And these costing $16.50 now . . . which gives you a chance to really DO something for yourselves!

* * *

And going on in the same vein . . .

There are suits! But what suits, say we. Domestic and imported woolens that were $25 to $65 . . . now bowing their heads to the axe that has chopped them down $15 to $32.50. One of the most lovable of them being a brown and strange blue check with brown taffeta lining and blouse. The kind that you just don't find standing 'round on every curbstone! And the kind that any bright child would willingly part with $32.50 to own.

* * *

Then of course there are the chiffons and crepes that are VERYVERY SWANK . . . but not quite, not EX-actly Summer ones . . . and therefore they're suffering from the same bargain-price fever.

Meaning that you can get them now for such sums at $15 to $35 . . . whereas $29.50 to $69.50 were the figures before all this happened. A fine chance to grab something swellish.

(Sizes range all over the landscape.)

Mendicants' Ungratefulness Disillusions Writer

"Dear Miss Brunot:

"For years I have lived in a marked house," writes Henriette Sayre Miller, of Sewickley, "I read your article on your mendicants and Janey the ever-kind, and I am going to add my experiences although they may not be the reaction you want. Yet one hundred per cent true."

Henriette Sayre Miller, as you may know, is a well-known writer of short stories. And I feel very happy that my column has come under her notice.

So here goes, Mrs. Miller, and may my Speak Up, Sisters, be as interested as I:

Miss Brunot

"I have entertained from the wandering tribe coming to my kitchen table, a descendant of a Welsh king, a member of the Hapsburg dynasty, and various and sundry 'bums who were jus' walkin'. If they arrived too late to share the family edibles it was always an easy matter to scramble eggs, throw in a slice or two of bacon, and add thick sliced bread. But this is over. The Lithuanian who presides over my cupboard has been told to tell everyone to try 'The Borough Building.'

"Not long ago, I personally opened my kitchen door to find facing me a great gaunt Irishman, standing on one foot like a stork. The sole of the shoe he exposed was conspicuous by its absence. 'Lady, have you now a pair of long, thin shoes?'

"My long, thin husband is appropriately endowed with long, thin feet. Yes, in the attic I could put my hands on a pair of tan oxfords. While opening attic trunks, I came upon a pile of discarded shirts, and a lot of old neckties saved for that far distant day when I should be old enough to piece a silk quilt.

SOCKS JUST ANKLEBANDS

"Ireland sat on the back steps, removed his old shoes, and pronounced the gift oxfords a perfect fit. But, ye gods, his socks were mere anklebands. The entire toes and heels were worn away and exposed a pair of feet belonging to the great unwashed. As he bent over, I saw the frayed elbows of his coat.

"'Wait a minute. Hold everything. I have a suit of clothes I had intended giving the Welfare. Here, take it, also these shirts and ties, go out to the garage, put them on, and come back to let me see how you look,' I said.

"It was a decided improvement. Erin had actually washed at the garage tap.

"'I'll bring you a mirror and my kitchen scissors,' I said, 'You trim your moustache and then you'll be a good-looking man.'

"He smiled, and I understood why the hirsute adornment was worn long. It was to cover a totally lacking upper denture.

"'But not for the likes of you, mum,' he said.

"The kitchen door was shut firmly. My mistake was not in rehabilitating the Irishman, but in recounting the story as a huge joke to various so-called friends. It has come back to me in various garbled versions. But the consensus is that I flirted with a beggar or had an affair with an unknown at the back door.

"Next came the experience of the surly foreigner who one day demanded 90 cents. He wanted to get to McKeesport. As a matter of fact, I had not 90 cents in the house, but was considering giving him 10 cents for street car fare as far as Pittsburgh, and was doing some lightning calculating as to how much was the toll from Pittsburgh on.

No, I won't give you 90 cents, I said, 'but I'll . . .'

"The Slavic underlip shot out. 'It's rich people like you wat keeps us poor ones down. Damn you, curse you an' yer family!'

"Once more the kitchen door was shut, this time hastily. The police were telephoned. From my description, the erstwhile mendicant was picked up in a local speakeasy, and found to have already spent more than the 90 cents he had demanded for fare to McKeesport.

"Then, I shall never forget Mr. Aloysius Basco. He humbly knocked one evening, just as the good husband and I were doing the dinner dishes on the Lithuanian's day off. I had at the moment remarked that there was enough vegetable soup left to feed a hungry man.

OFFERS HIM LIFT

"Mr. Aloysius Basco, whose wall-eye wavered to the S. S. E. while his other strayed to the north, was hungry and tired, and not begging clothes. He was treking it to Baltimore, where his brother-in-law was a carpenter and had a bit a' work for him.

"Now, it happened that the husband must on the following morning drive as far as Somerset, Pa. Would Mr. Aloysius Basco condescend to sleep that night in our garage, and after a hearty breakfast, depart on a goodly lap of his journey in the old family Packard? Mr. Basco would.

"Four boxes were hastily assembled in the tool-shop end of the garage. The old box springs were carried from the attic, set up, and sheets and blankets brought.

"The next morning the husband sallied forth to waken our impromptu overnight guest, and bid him come eat waffles and sausage in the kitchen.

"He's not there. His bed hasn't been slept in. What the heck," he called.

"I went to the garage. Truly, there were Mr. Basco's uncreased pillows and no sign of our wall-eyed guest.

"'Did you take my golf clubs out of my bag?'" Suddenly the husband began to see daylight.

"'Where's my brace and bit? Where's my Stilson wrench? Where's that new four dollar drill? Where's my hack-saw?'

"Gone, all gone!

"You cannot expect anyone who began life as a mucker to know the laws of hospitality, nor can you any longer expect me to feed the itinerant beggar."

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Bag of Tricks

Philip E. Barney, of Tampa, Fla., recently had the pleasure of playing in a Duplicate game in which he found a hand that contained an enormous number of coups, trick plays, maxims and rules of Bridge. In reporting the hand he remarks that he got a top-score on the board but did not realize until he talked it over the next day how many features the hand really had. It contained, as he states, about everything except a Vienna Coup, and not only illustrated the following plays: (a) common Bath Coup, (b) false-card, (c) finesse, (d) Deschapelles Coup, (e) strip, (f) squeeze on the tenth trick and (g) throw-in, but afforded an opportunity for the application of the following rules: (h) obtain a count on the hand, (i) always return your partner's lead, and (j) take advantage of opponents' errors.

The hand and bidding at Mr. Barney's table were as follows:

West, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A 6 2 ♡ 8 4 ◇ 9 6 5 ♣ A K J 10 9 7
♠ 3 ♡ K Q J 7 2 ◇ A 10 4 3 2 ♣ 8 2	North / West / East / South	♠ 10 9 8 7 5 4 ♡ 9 3 ◇ K 7 ♣ Q 4 3
	♠ K Q J ♡ A 10 6 5 ◇ Q J 8 ♣ J 6 5

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	Double (1)	Pass (2)	2 N T
Pass (3)	3 ♣	Pass	3 N T
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Two clubs were bid at some other tables.

2—Probably hoping for a spade bid by South.

3—At some tables three diamonds were bid, but in view of North's Double and South's strong response, such a bid seems rather dangerous. As a matter of fact, a diamond Opening would defeat the contract.

West led the heart King and Queen, which Mr. Barney permitted to hold. West then for some reason shifted to his spade singleton, explaining later that he thought it might hit his partner's strength, if any. This was won with the King, Mr. Barney admitting that he false-carded from habit. He then took the club finesse, which failed. East now had an opportunity for a Deschapelles Coup if, as he thought, South held the diamond Ace and his partner possibly the Queen. However, he failed to take advantage of it, returning instead a spade. Mr. Barney now ran off the clubs, discarding the diamond Knave and 8, and then played the third spade. West had failed to follow on either spades or clubs, and discarded four diamonds and the heart 2. He was plainly marked with the diamond Ace as the basis of his Opening bid.

Thus reasoning, Mr. Barney now led the diamond Queen. West won the Ace and returned from his heart Knave-7 to South's Ace-10 tenace. Had he instead discarded three diamonds and two hearts, Mr. Barney, of course, would have played the heart Ace, catching the Knave and making the Ten good.

"In the ordinary Bath Coup, which one of my favorite masculine partners, H. L. DeWolf, calls the Saturday Night Coup, you have the Ace-Knave-small and duck when West leads from his King-Queen, hoping he will lead both. In this hand West had the King-Queen-Knave and I hoped he would lead all three. But as he wouldn't at first, of his own free will, I applied the thumb screws, thus squeezing out his hearts' blood and also his diamond's blood. This is a Double Bath Coup in two insallments, or something."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Gloves

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A believes that at a formal evening affair gloves can be tucked in at the wrist during dinner and while dancing. B states that they can be tucked in while one is dancing, but that they must be taken completely off during dinner. C declares that they should be taken off during dinner, and that they should be either discarded entirely, or worn completely during the remainder of the evening.

Which of the three is correct?

B.

Strictly speaking, C has the correct idea about the wearing of formal gloves with formal clothes. Before dinner the gloves should be taken off and placed on the lap with the napkin. But true it is that we see many, many wearers of formal gloves tucked in the hands of the gloves. But I think that you will admit that this way of wearing the gloves looks awkward and pointless.

Wedding Gift for the Boss?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am secretary to a junior executive and have been working for him for four years. He is to be married within a short time and the office force, collectively, is giving him a gift. Would it be proper for me to contribute toward this gift or is it proper for me to give him a gift individually?

C.

This is just as you choose, but it would seem to be a bit more appropriate for you to join in the collective gift.

How to Keep Well

Backache Is Warning

Dr. Copeland

I can think of no complaint more universal than the common backache. Almost everybody has had it at some time or other. It afflicts young and old, man and woman, rich and poor alike. It is often accepted as a condition of life and one that cannot be remedied.

This is an unwise attitude. Contrary to a common belief, backache is not a disease, but is a symptom of some disease or internal disturbance. Unfortunately, it is the sign of many different disorders and a great deal of study may be necessary before the underlying trouble is detected. In former years, backache was diagnosed as "lumbago." The modern physician does not accept this interpretation. In fact, the word lumbago was long ago discarded.

As I have said, there are many causes for backache. It may be due to inflammation of a nerve, muscle or internal organ. Do you know that liver and gall bladder disturbances often have pain in the back as a prominent symptom? Kidney disease is another common cause of backache. Female pelvic disorders, infected teeth, nasal sinuses, tonsils, certain postural defects, particularly faulty habits of sitting or standing, severe strains, bruises or dislocations, are other causes that must not be overlooked.

In all instances, the cause can only be determined by a careful physical examination of the patient. Whenever necessary, laboratory tests, such as urine and blood analysis, as well as the X-ray, are used to confirm the diagnosis.

Do not neglect a backache. Make every effort to discover the underlying cause.

Above all, may I warn you against self-medication for this condition. Many sufferers from backache believe they are victims of kidney disease. They resort to so-called "cures" but fail to seek proper medical advice.

If you are a sufferer from backache and are anxious to obtain relief, consult with your physician. He will take the necessary steps to determine the cause. Do not be misled by well meaning friends who advise you as to the treatment and cure of backache. Its cure can be accomplished only by scientific and skilled prescribing.

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Husband's Request Thrills Madge

My heart thrilled to the protest in Dicky's voice as he demanded, "What about Madge?" when they were planning the method of taking him to the hospital. It is the peculiar thrill which comes when one realizes that one is needed by the person one loves best, and comes in its perfection only to a wife of years' standing, when her husband asks for her presence beside him in time of need.

My father's voice was quick in asking a countering question.

"Do you wish her to go with you?"

"Of course I do." Dicky's voice was querulous. "That is, if she wants to go."

He smiled up at me whimsically, and I flashed an answering, comradely smile back at him.

"She wants to go," I said with emphasis, and then Katherine's murmur sounded again in my ears.

"What about Faith, if we both go?" she asked.

I caught my breath in dismay as I remembered the panic that had been mine for Faith, Junior and Roderick, after Lee Chow's departure. In the face of his insinuated threats, did I dare leave my children, even for my husband?

I shot a glance at my father. He had shared those fears of Lee Chow, even if he had not voiced them, and I wondered what he would say to my forsaking the role of protecting mother for that of consoling wife.

I had not long to wait. He spoke directly to Katherine, as if, incredibly, he had heard that murmured query of hers.

TERROR LESSENED

"I am sure it will be perfectly all right for you both to go," he said. "Remember, Mr. and Mrs. Underwood are both here, and will do nothing save look after the children until we return."

I turned a radiant face to my father. If he thought it was all right for me to go, and meant to accompany Dicky himself, then his fears for the safety of the children must have abated in the last few minutes, and my own terror was proportionately lessened.

My father brought me out of my reverie with a soft command. "Get a wrap, darling. We are about ready to go."

I looked over at Dicky, and saw that my father was right. Katherine had completed her preparations for his removal, and had taken from a chair the cape which she had brought into the room over her arm, and which she now was adjusting over her uniform.

Lillian was talking to her in a low tone, but as I started for the door my best friend, who never once has failed me in all our long years of intimate association, came quickly after me. With her arm in mine she went through the door and into the hall with me.

"There's nothing for you to worry about now," she said reassuringly. "The worst is over, and everybody's on the job to see that nothing else happens."

I stiffened instictively and faced her.

EDITH NEAR COLLAPSE

"Then you know—" I said breathlessly.

Her eyes were clear and candid as they answered my questioning gaze.

"I know nothing," she said, emphasizing the verb, "but conjecture—that is something else again. I've been used to putting two and two together and making five or six out of the addition for a good many years. As far as that goes—come down to cases. How much do you absolutely know, yourself?"

"Very little," I told her honestly, "but—"

"Suppose we lay our mutual lack of knowledge on the table for a few hours," she said briskly. "You have to go with Dicky; I have to look after the children while Katherine is gone with you. And if I mistake not, I'm going to have my work cut out for me in another direction."

My eyes followed here to where Edith Fairfax sat in an arm chair, facing the door out of which we had just come. Her face was almost entirely drained of color, and her eyes were unnaturally large and dark. Harry Underwood was seated by her side, bent toward her, and I saw that he was holding both her hands in an iron, restraining grip.

"On the verge of collapse," Lillian murmured. "Come along with me! Hurry!"

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

Air Dictionary Feature Begins Today; First Contest to Be Announced Tomorrow!

By J. JAMES MOORE,
Pittsburgh Wing Commander.

Greetings, Junior Birdmen. Today we start the first of our many column features with the inauguration of our "air dictionary." More than one thousand words, terms and aeronautical phrases have been compiled for this dictionary which will be published in a series. Ten definitions will appear in this column every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The dictionary is arranged alphabetically so that you can keep them in your scrap book in perfect order. Every Junior Birdman should become thoroughly familiar with the meaning of all these aeronautical terms and phrases. Read them over, study them carefully each day, and tuck them away in the corner of your mind so that when you come across them in your junior aviation and aeronautical work you will not even have to refer to your scrap book.

Air Dictionary
List Number 1

Among today's list you will find such familiar terms defined as ace, acrobatics and aeronaut. Also such unfamiliar terms as accelerometer, aerodyne and aerograph. Various technical terms will be left out from time to time but will be included in an addenda at the conclusion of this dictionary. This is done for a purpose that will be explained to you later on. Here are the first words in our first feature:

Absolute Altitude—The height of an aircraft at which it is flying above the earth over which it is winging its way. Not the height above sea level.

Ace—A title given to either a male or female pilot who has, for one reason or another, distinguished himself or herself in aviation. In times of war it is a term given to fliers who have brought down several enemy planes, usually five or more. Eddie Rickenbacker is America's greatest World War ace, having brought down more German planes than any other pilot in the American air forces.

Adjustable Propeller—A propeller with blades which are so attached to the hub that the pitch may be changed while the propeller is not revolving. The blades are twisted to whatever pitch position is desired.

Aero—An abbreviation for aeronautics.

Aerodynamics—The branch of dynamics that treats of the motion of air and other gaseous fluids and of the forces acting on solids that are in motion relative to such fluids.

Aerodynamic Volume (or air volume)—The total volume of space in an aerostat (lighter than aircraft such as a balloon or Zeppelin), including its projecting parts.

Aerodyne—A term for aircraft that derive their lift in flight chiefly from aerodynamics, such as a balloon or zeppelin.

And so members, we end our first list of air dictionary terms, which in aeronautical circles is more readily referred to as a nomenclature. This will be the most complete list ever published anywhere and has been compiled with the assistance of the national advisory committee for aeronautics and other valuable references. Don't miss the second list which will be published on Wednesday.

First Activity Tomorrow

Tomorrow we are going to step right along and announce our first activity for you junior birdmen and birdwomen. A contest that is simple and easy to enter. No model flying or building of any sort. But an activity which will offer you an opportunity to win an interesting prize from your local wing and a national prize from New York headquarters.

Every boy and girl who has enrolled as a member, whether he or she has received a membership card as yet, or not, will be eligible. In a day or so we expect to be caught up with the "plane load" of memberships coming in, however, and then we will maintain our performance so that all applications will be attended to the very day they are received. If you haven't received your membership as yet, even though you might have been one of the first to send in your application, don't let that worry you. You will receive it in a day or so.

Don't forget to watch tomorrow's column for the first announcement of our first activity—and then watch our dust fly!

July 28—First annual Junior Birdmen "all America" national model plane derby to be participated in by winners of all Junior Birdmen wing city meets held on July 11th.

Many other features and activities will be announced from time to time and will be included in this calendar which will be published in our column.

Senator Reed Discusses New Deal

Helen Menken, Theater Guild star, plays the role of Queen Elizabeth in an original drama presented during the "Big Show" on WJAS from 9:30 to 10 o'clock tonight.

Mady Christians, Gertrude Niesen and Erno Rapee's Orchestra supply the music.

* * *

Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, is heard over WCAE tonight at 10:30 in a discussion of Presidential power over tariffs.

* * *

He and his orchestra, furnishing the musical background for tonight's Contented Hour, on WCAE at 10 o'clock, introduce the new eye-smoke antidote for the first time on the air, though it was written some 30 years ago.

* * *

* * *

FREDERICA

The world air premiere of Franz Lehar's operetta, "Frederica," with Richard Tauber in the leading role, is broadcast from London over CBS-WJAS this afternoon from 3:40 until 4:15.

* * *

Walter Damrosch and his symphony orchestra are heard over KDKA tonight at 10 o'clock in the second of their series of concerts embracing friendly, familiar music.

* * *

* * *

Josef Pasternack and his orchestra build this evening's 9:30 program on KDKA around a special quartet consisting of Charles Harrison, Willard Amison, Walter Preston and Frank Croxton—all star soloists.

* * *

The Queen

Equip Coffin With Radio Microphone

By AIRCASTER

Radio at last has penetrated into the graveyard . . .

At New York University, O. H. Caldwell, engineer, told a class of the fellow who dreaded the possibility of being buried alive, and who had engineers equip his coffin with a mike, and a line running to a loudspeaker.

The line is to be kept energized for a year after the man dies, and then tested regularly . . .

There are mean fellows around who say that Joe Miller did the same thing and that's where the comedy comes from.

* * *

Equally interesting is that yarn now circulating on radio row, about the executive of a factory in the Midwest, who lost his job.

With his few remaining dollars he purchased time on a radio station, and used it to appeal for another job—and got it.

* * *

BRITISHERS

Doug Fairbanks, with Mrs. Charles Laughton, wife of the famous cinema star, together with a group of other British movie celebrities, will stage a 40-minute program, to be broadcast via WJAS from London next Saturday, at 3:20 p. m.

* * *

If they can find studios big enough to hold all of them, all the Kentucky colonels able to walk, or hobble, will crowd into one program on KDKA May 4, the eve of the Derby, at 10:30 p. m.

* * *

That is a novel employment scheme of George Olsen's . . . He finds unemployed musicians and farms them out to bands in the sticks, until they stand out, and then puts them in his own band, borrowing the technique of the big leagues.

* * *

* * *

Harry Horlick, the swell fiddler and leader of the Gypsies, has a new selection all ready for President's Day . . . It is called, unoriginally, "The President Roosevelt March."

But Harry, being on the air Mondays, can't play it until April 30.

Shakespeare Program On WCAE Today

Sun-Telegraph Family Program is moved today to 4:30, for at 4:45 it broadcasts the anniversary of Shakespeare anniversary celebration.

Humboldt's "Fire-Proof Fish" is described by A. W. Henn, curator of ichthyology, in the Carnegie Museum Education Series tonight at six on WCAE.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

A fine letter from Clarksville, Pa., comes from Violet Tasovao.

She also has heard from the President. She had written to him on the occasion of his birthday thanking him for all the fine things he did for her daddy and the other mining men.

She says that she didn't expect to hear from the President but she did and treasures the letter as her greatest possession today.

* * *

Lieut. Griffith was with us again last Saturday and told us that up to that time there was 200,000 checks already mailed out by the Department of Military Affairs to Pennsylvania veterans as compensation for war service. The total number of applications to date is 380,000.

Many people are worried because they have not received any acknowledgement from the department of the receipt of their application blanks. This acknowledgement is a card bearing a number.

You don't have to worry because in a great many cases the department has had to send to Washington to check with the veterans' files there on certain information and this has delayed the sending out of numbers:

Sometimes the applicant moves or for some other reason the post office is unable to make delivery of a check already sent for.

So far the Globe Trotter, through the radio, has been able to locate every missing man.

At present Lieut. Griffith has the checks for

WALTER McEWAN, Ingomar; WILLIE KRALICHIE, last address Kirkpatrick street; HARRISON THOMPSON, East Lexington avenue; JOHN ROSHINSKI, Mt. Pleasant, Pa., and the returned application of STANLEY MIKOS, Wilmerding.

If any of the above, with proper credentials identifying him, will appear at Lieut. Griffith's office, 406 Nixon Building, he will receive his check. Of course, Stanley Mikos' check isn't there, but he is to present himself anyway.

If it is impossible to come to the Lieutenant's office let me have the present address of any of the above and he will be contacted there.

BARDOLPH EXONERATED BY STATE SUPREME COURT

FLOOD CONTROL OUTLOOK HERE BRIGHTENS

17-Reservoir System Being Studied by U.S., Davison Reports

George S. Davison, president of the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh, today announced that prospects for the construction of river control reservoirs in the Monongahela and Allegheny valleys have been increased here following an investigation by members of the Mississippi River Commission.

Mr. Davison said he believes the commission to be at work on a plan for a system of 17 reservoirs in the upper Ohio and its tributaries, which would include eight in the Allegheny and Monongahela valleys.

According to Maj. [illegible] D. Styer, district officer of the United States Army Engineers, the reservoir system would cost approximately $120,000,000. Protection against floods would be afforded to Pittsburgh, Wheeling, Cincinnati, and Louisville.

Plans for the reservoirs were originally submitted to the Public Works Administration which has approved only one project, a $12,000,000 reservoir in Tygart Valley, in the headwaters of the Monongahela.

Condemning the PWA for delay in sanctioning further projects, Mr. Davison said:

"If the Tygart River reservoir can be considered a federal project, there is nothing to prevent a similar reservoir in the Allegheny Valley from being in the same classification."

COURT TO HEAR RELIEF PLEA

A petition to postpone eviction of 25,000 families on relief for at least 30 days was to be presented in Common Pleas Court today by Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar. Within 30 days it is expected that a more secure rent relief program will be adopted.

The Sheriff's action will be the result of a meeting Saturday attended by Gollmar and members of the legislative committee investigating the County Relief Board. His co-operation was as[illegible]d by the committee which seeks to prevent outbreaks similar to one last Wednesday when one man was shot and two others were injured when officers evicted a family on the North Side.

SYMPHONY FUND DRIVE PLANNED

Seeking funds to finance the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra for a two-year period, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, president of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society, today announced a campaign to raise $100,000. The campaign will be launched May 15.

This is the first time in the existence of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society that an appeal to the public has been made. The action was taken, Mrs. Hall said, in order that Pittsburgh musicians, affected by the depression, may have an opportunity for employment.

State Postmasters Meet in Homestead

Postmasters from more than 80 cities and towns in Pennsylvania will attend a meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Postmasters' Association in the Elks Hall, Homestead, tomorrow. They will be hosts of Postmaster William A. Kessler, of Homestead, who organized the association in 1915. Harry Wilson, of Blairsville, Pa., is president of the body.

Teddy, Jr., May Demand Recount Or Contest Will

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

New Deal seems to have its friends and its enemies. Young Teddy Roosevelt likes it not.

Being a Republican Ted speaks as a civilian observer. As the son of a President he is astonished to find a cousin domiciled in the ancestral halls. He doesn't know whether to demand a recount or contest the will.

Well, Ted, the Democratic branch of the family is on the north side of the tree. It's held back by the cold winds and the frost. But when it blooms it is no morning glory.

It's in full blossom now. The New Deal is proceeding by easy stages like a turtle climbing steps. Young Ted doesn't know the difference between a parade and a wire-walking act.

Ted, you cheer the parade, and when you see a wire-walking act you hold your breath.

Psychology Employed by Dickens to Hold Love of Maria

'Miss Leigh Has of Late Thrown Herself In My Way—You Are My Only Interest,' He Wrote Sweetheart

passed between us without reserve. In proof of which assertion she not only detailed certain facts which I undoubtedly thought she could have heard from none but yourself, but she also communicated many things which certainly never occurrd at all, equally calculated to excite something even more than ordinary angry feelings.

On hearing this yesterday (and no consideration on earth shall induce me ever to forget or forgive Fanny's not telling me of it before) my first impulse was to go to Clapton; my next, to prevent misrepresentation, to write immediately.

I thought on reflection, however, that the most considerate and proper course would be to state to you exactly what I wish to do. I ask your consent previously for this reason—because it is possible that you may think that my writing a violent note would have the effect of exciting ill nature which had better be avoided.

I candidly own that I am most anxious to write. I care as little for her malice as I do for her, but as you are a party who would perhaps be mixed up with her story I think it is proper to ask you whether you object in my sending the note which I have already written. I need hardly say that if it be sent at all, it should be at once, and I therefore hope to receive your decision tomorrow, assuring you that I will abide by it, whatever it be.

I will not detain you or intrude upon your attention by any more observations. I fear I could say little calculated to interest or please you. I have no hope to express, no wishes to communicate. I am past the one and must not think of the other.

Though surprised at such inconceivable duplicity I can express no pleasure at the discovery, for I have been so long used to inward wretchedness and real, real misery, that it matters little, very little to me what others may think of or what becomes of me—I have to apologize for troubling you at all but I hope you will believe that a sense of respect for and deference to your feelings has elicited this note to which I have once again to beg your immediate answer.

CHARLES DICKENS.

* * *

DICKENS was rather clever in "putting it up to Maria" to decide whether or not he should cross swords with Miss Leigh. If she urged him on it would naturally show that she was still interested in him, but in this as usual she disappointed him. Instead of encouraging the rupture with Miss Leigh, she immediately came back at him with defiance and recrimination.

As to what Mary Anne knew or how she found it out, we can only surmise; and one person's guess is as good as that of another.

Anyway, it brought matters to an issue, and young Dickens seems to have been quite upset at hearing from Mary Anne that Maria had confided to her "ALL THAT HAD EVER PASSED BETWEEN THEM WITHOUT RESERVE," all of which he underscored heavily in his note. Possibly it had something to do with the events that led to young Dickens being debarred from the Beadnell home; or the reason why Maria was sent to Paris.

How Maria could have had the coldness of heart to wantonly increase the misery of this unhappy youth is difficult for any charitable mind to understand.

After denying that she had told any secrets to Mary Anne or had said anything against him, she rebuked him for objecting to anything she might choose to say, and she went on to state that his attention to Miss Leigh had been very noticeable, that they had been seen together a great deal, and questioned his integrity by declaring that his letter was rather inconsistent in view of the fact that he was evidently very fond of that young lady.

The letter was delivered to him by Henry Kolle on Wednesday, May 15th, and he answered it instantly. Note the impetuosity in the present correspondence of Maria and Dickens, as it occurs again—in much altered tones—in a later correspondence, beginning in February, twenty-two years after. Dickens' answer read:

18 Bentinck Street,
Thursday 4 o'clock.

I cannot forbear replying to your note this moment received, Miss Beadnell, because you really seem to have made two mistakes. In the first place you do not exactly understand the nature of my feelings with regard to your alleged communications to M(ary A(nne) L(eigh), and in the next you certainly totally and entirely misunderstand my feelings with regard to her—that you could suppose, as you clearly do (that is to say if the subject is worth a thought to you), that I have ever really thought of M. A. L. in any other than my old way you are mistaken.

That she has for some reason and to suit her own purposes, of late thrown he self in my way, I could plainly see, and I know it was noticed by others.

For instance, on the night of the play, after we went up stairs I could not get rid of her. God knows that I have no pleasure in speaking to her or any girl living, and never had. May I say that YOU have been the sole exception?

"Kind words and winning looks" have done much, much with me—but not from her—UNKIND words and COLD looks, however, have done much, much more. That I have been the subject of both from you and as your will altered and your pleasure changed, I know well—and so I think must you. I have often said before, and I say again, I have borne more from you than I do believe any creature breathing ever bore from a woman before. The slightest hint, however, even now of change or transfer of feeling I cannot bear and do not deserve.

Again, I never supposed nor did this girl ever give me to understand that you ever breathed a syllable against me. It is quite a mistake on your part, but knowing (and there cannot be a stronger proof of my disliking her) what she was; knowing her admirable qualifications for a confidante and recollecting what had passed between ourselves, I was more than hurt, more than annoyed at the bare idea of your confiding the tale to her of all people living.

I reflected upon it. I coupled her communication with what I saw (with a jaundiced eye perhaps) of your own conduct; on the very last occasion of seeing you before writing that note I heard even among our own friends (and there was no Mary Anne present), I heard even among them remarks on your own conduct and pity—pity, Good God!—for my situation, and I did think (you will pardon my saying it for I am describing my then feelings and not my present) that the same light butterfly feeling which prompted the one action could influence the other.

Wretched, aye, almost brokenhearted, I wrote to you—(I have the note for you returned it, and even now I do think it was written "more in sorrow than in anger," and to my mind—I had almost said to your better judgment—it must appear to breathe anything but an unkind or bitter feeling)—you replied to the note.

I wrote another and that at least was expressive of the same sentiments as I ever had felt and even should feel towards you to my dying day. That note you sent me back by hand wrapped in a small loose piece of paper without even the formality of an envelope and that note I wrote after receiving yours.

It is poor sport to trifle on a subject like this: I know what your feelings must have been and by then I regulated my conduct.

In return to the question of what is best to be done. I go to Kolle's at 10 o'clock tomorrow evening and I will inclose to you and give to him then a copy of the note which if I send any I will send to Mary Anne Leigh.

I do not ask your advice: all I ask is whether you see any reason to object. You will perhaps inclose it after reading it and say whether you object to its going or not.

With regard to Fanny (Dickens's sister), if she owed a duty to you she owed a greater one to me—and for this reason because she knew what Mary Anne Leigh had said of you: she heard from you what she had said of me and yet she had not the fairness, the candour, the feeling to let me know it—and if I were to live 100 years I never would forgive it.

As to sending my last note back pray do not consult my feeling but your own. Look at the note itself. Do you think think it is unkind, cold, hasty, or conciliatory and deliberate?

I shall—indeed I need—express no wish upon the subject. You will act as you think best. It is too late for me to attempt to influence your decision. I had said doubtless both in this and my former note much more than perhaps I ought or should have said had I attempted disguise or concealment to you and I have no doubt more than is agreeable to yourself.

Towards You I never had and never can have an angry feeling. If you had ever felt for me one hundredth part of my feeling for you there would have been little cause of regret, little coldness, little unkindness between us.

My feeling on one subject was early roused: it had been strong, and it will be lasting. I am in no mood to quarrel with anyone for not entertaining similar sentiments, and least of all, Miss Beadnell, with you. You will think of what I have said and act accordingly—Destitute as I am of hope or comfort, I have borne much and I dare say bear more.

Yours.
CHARLES DICKENS.

WITHOUT waiting for a reply to this letter he called at Kolle's the following evening, Friday, May 17th, with another note and the first draft of the letter he proposed to send to Mary Anne. It will be seen that the correspondence had now attained a very cold and lofty air. Dickens' not to Maria read:

18 Bentinck Street,
Friday.

Agreeable to my promise I beg to inclose you a copy of the note I propose to send to Mary Anne Leigh, which you will perhaps be so good as to return to me (as I have no other copy from which to write the original) as soon as possible.

I had intended to have made it more severe but perhaps upon the whole the inclosed will be sufficient—Until receiving my answer you may make to my last note I will not trouble you with any further observation.

Of course you will at least on this point (I mean Mary Anne Leigh's note) say what you think without reserve and any course you may propose or any alternation you may suggest shall on my word and honor be instantly adopted.

Should anything you may say (in returning her note) to me make me anxious to return any answer, may I have your permission to forward it to you?

I find I have proceeded to the end of my note without even inserting your name. May I ask you to execuse the omission and to believe that I would gladly have addressed you in a very, very different way?

CHARLES DICKENS.

Charles Dickens' letter to Mary Anne Leigh, which he mentions and his decisive letter to Maria Beadnell will be disclosed in tomorrow's instalment.

This picture by Frank Atone, called "The Dust," depicts typical home life in London during the period when Dickens was courting Maria. Alfred Tennyson is seated on the settee, Dickens bends over the piano.

BISHOP CITES SCHOOL SAVING

Catholic schools in Pittsburgh save the city approximately $4,300,000 in caring for 43,000 children, Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, of the diocese of Pittsburgh, said in an address at a celebration of Catholic Education Day in the Boys' Catholic High School, Fifth avenue, yesterday. He characterized it as unfair that the federal government supports public schools with federal loans and refuses similar aid to Catholic institutions. He said in part:

"It costs $100 a year to send a child to grade school. And at the same time our Catholic parents with children in parochial schools are paying school tax to the city.

"If the Catholic children were to be turned into the public schools tomorrow, the city could not meet the situation. But when we ask the federal government for a loan to support our schools, we are refused because we are sectarian."

Catholic parents were urged by Miss Bertha G. McEntee, principal of the Washington Vocational School, to take a more active part in the education of their children and to insist on the best education the schools can produce.

EXPECT BANKER TO SURRENDER

Improving from an illness which prevented his arrest on charges of embezzling $106,700, W. P. Ortale, president of the Bank of America Trust Company, was expected to appear in the District Attorney's office today and post $50,000 bond or go to jail.

Ortale has been under guard at the home of his mother in Academy avenue, Mt. Lebanon, since Friday when the bank was placed on a restricted basis by the State Department of Banking. It was the first insured bank to be placed on a restricted basis, according to Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the board of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Under the Sordini Act the bank is receiving new deposits which are segregated and kept subject to withdrawal at any time.

Death Highway Claims Another

"Death Highway," the stretch of road on Route 28, near the Creighton School, was the scene of another fatal accident last night. Emil Sprumont, 55, of Seventh street road, New Kensington, was killed when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Helen Austen, 40, of 1442 Burtner road, Natrona Heights, according to a morgue report. He was walking on the highway at Pittsburgh street.

BANKER FREED OF GUILT IN COLLAPSE

Convicted By Jury Here on False Entry Charge

Charles A. Bardolph, former president of the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company, won his second court battle today that definitely clears him of criminality in connection with the bank's failure.

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court, sitting in Philadelphia, affirmed the Superior Court, which held that Bardolph was not guilty of making false entries, a charge on which he had been found guilty by an Allegheny County jury.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park had appealed from the Superior Court's decision, stating that the questions involved were of importance in banking procedure in the state.

'BAD BANKING'

Superior Court held that the former banker in crediting the Agricultural Exchange with amounts of drafts before they were collected in other cities, may have been indulging in bad banking practice but he was not guilty of making false entries.

The Franklin Savings and Trust Company, a depository for city funds, closed in 1931 with losses approximating $1,700,000, about half the bank's resources.

The right of a part-time worker to collect workmen's compensation was upheld in an opinion by Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer, reversing the Superior Court in the case of Simon P. Romig. His claim was upheld by the Lancaster County Court.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., April 23. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, we just got over "Be Kind to Animals Week," so now you can start again writing to your congressman. Saturday President Roosevelt had at the White House his graduating class of Harvard, 1904. There was over 300 of 'em, and all Republicans. I think he was just quietly rubbing it in on 'em, for the press couldn't name a one of 'em that anybody had ever heard of. I think F. D., with his usual sense of humor, was just in a subtle way impressing on the boys, "if there hadn't been a Democrat in the class, youse guys would never have got to even see the inside of the White House."

Will Rogers

It only illustrates that every Harvard class should have one Democrat to rescue it from oblivion. Yours, WILL.

P. S. C. REJECTS CORAOPOLIS LIGHT PACT

Finding a contract between the Borough of Coraopolis and the Duquesne Light Company discriminated unjustly in favor of the borough the Public Service Commission has refused to approve the greement.

Three courses remain open to the borough in obtaining service according to John M. Walker, attorney for citizens protesting the contract. The borough may appeal to Superior Court, get a regulation five-year contract with the company, or proceed with a municipal plant he said.

CONTRACT PROVISIONS

The rejected contract provided that the company furnish Coraopolis with light for 10 years and power for five years at regular P. S. C. rates. But in addition the company was to pay the borough $75,000 for two Diesel engines, miscellaneous equipment, and the services of an engineer.

The engineer, Peter F. Loftus, was to get $10,000. Testimony revealed the engines and equipment were worth from $21,000 to $25,000. The commission's opinion read:

"The remaining $50,000 to $54,000 . . . is very apparently a rebate . . . resulting in the company's rendering service at a special low rate to the borough."

The record reveals that prior to making the contract the borough council had authorized construction of a municipal electric system.

Bonds in the amount of $75,000 had been subscribed for this, according to Walker. The Diesel engines, Walker said, were to be the nucleus of the system.

$50,000 'GIFT' SEEN

The commission suggests that the contract provided for a "gift" of $50,000 to $54,000 from the company to the borough to deter the borough from construction of its wn electric plant.

One of the factors influencing the contract, Walker said, was a threat by the light company to bring an injunction if the borough attempted to set up its own facilities. Light is now furnished under an expired contract with the company, Walker explained.

Leaders in the protesting citizens' group were George H. Minch and George Selzer, Walker said.

Educators to Attend School's Anniversary

The one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Pennsylvania's public schools will be observed at a luncheon of educational leaders in the Chamber of Commerce Thursday. Speakers will be Dr. Charles H. Judd, of the University of Chicago; Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction, and Marcus Aaron, chairman of the Pittsburgh Board of Public Education, who will preside.

ADULT SCHOOL PROBLEMS TOLD

Parents must be educated before children can be taught, says Charles Mason, member of the Pittsburgh Adult Education Council, attending the conference of the Progressive Education Association in the William Penn Hotel this week.

To carry on their work successfully, teachers must be socially adjusted and well-balanced mentally, Dr. Laura Zirbes, of Ohio State University, told a symposium of teachers.

Describing himself as under the stigma of the "soap-box orator" type, Harold Rugg, of Columbia University, quoted from his book, "The Great Technology" and from the axioms of Locke to impress upon educators the need of a new social order. Rugg declared:

"We must invent a new system of distribution so that every man, woman and child will have a fine minimum of necessities; none shall have more until all have the minimum.

McNair, Jail Warden To Dine at Church

Mayor McNair and Warden John McNeil, of the County Jail, will be guests of honor tonight at the annual father and son banquet of the Seekers and Sewers Sunday School class at the West View Presbyterian Church. Senator H. P. Brandt and Prof. Jack Landis, of Perry High School, will also be guests.

East Liberty Man, 70, Hit by Auto

A 70-year-old man was in Pittsburgh Hospital with a head laceration after being struck by an auto while walking at Rippey street and Highland avenue last night. James Mullen, 318 North St. Clair street, the injured man, was taken to the hopital by the driver, Allan Reynolds, 205 Carnegie place, police said.

MT. RUSHMORE CONTESTANTS WARNED

Bear in mind, Saturday, May 12.

That is the closing day when all entries must be received by 12 o'clock noon. That is only three weeks away. If you are participating through an organization that has an active judging committee in co-operation with the Pittsburgh Rushmore Memorial Committee, your 600-word text must be received by that committee chairman. If you are entering through a school, college or university with its own committee, the date applies to you. And if you are an individual participant, entering your text direct to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee, the same date applies.

But there is sufficient time to complete your text, even to begin your plans to write a text based on nine specific episodes of history that will form the inscription on the national monument being carved on the South Dakota mountain. The competition, open to every man, woman and child, is being sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers. Read the details daily in the Sun-Telegraph.

If you want the complete information in a handy folder form, a free one is available at the downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street. It will be mailed on request to the Pittsburgh Rushmore Editor, care of the Sun-Telegraph, upon receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you have not entered the competition, begin today.

FOR HOSTESSES SEEKING THAT DEFT TOUCH

For your adult friends hot lobster sandwich with Newburg sauce, judged today's best, is a dish supreme. Serve it the next time they gather at your home, and when they leave, these friends of yours will positively beam praise at you.

When it comes to your youthful friends you want somthing a little simpler, perhaps a stuffed fig salad or honey wafers. If it's mealtime and you want to serve them the unfairly disliked spinach, dress it up as Mrs. William Thomson does when she makes children's spinach casserole. The youngsters want to come again.

What are your ways of overcoming food prejudices? Prudence Penny at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph would like to know. For your most successful recipes which she incorporates into her prize winning column she will pay you either $5 or $1. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. H. C. FLETCHER,
611 Ivy street, East Liberty.

HOT LOBSTER SANDWICH WITH NEWBURG SAUCE

Five tablespoons butter.
One cup cooked lobster meat.
Three tablespoons sherry flavoring.
Yolks of three eggs.
One half teaspoon salt.
One cup cream of milk.
Two teaspoons Worcestershire sauce.

Melt two tablespoons of butter in a frying pan and heat in it the lobster meat, cut in smaller pieces. To make the sauce melt the rest of the butter, add the salt and sherry flavoring, then the cream or milk and heat to boiling. Beat the egg yolks in a bowl. Pour into them part of the hot sauce, stirring constantly, then pour it back into the saucepan and cook for two minutes over boiling water, stirring constantly. Add the Worcestershire and take from the fire. Have ready for each sandwich two slices of buttered bread or toast. Spread the hot lobster over one slice, top with the second and pour the Newburg sauce over all. Serve immediately.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MISS ELSIE BERGER,
Center and Locust streets, Emsworth.

STUFFED FIG SALAD

Drain canned figs and save syrup. Cut in four petals, spread apart and in center place a ball made from cream cheese mixed with chopped filberts. Serve with cream fig dressing.

CREAM FIG DRESSING

Heat one-quarter cup fig syrup to boiling. Beat one egg yolk until light and add syrup slowly while beating. Stir and cook three minutes in double boiler, remove from fire and stir occasionally until cool. Add one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon cinnamon and one-half teaspoon lemon juice. Just before serving add one-third cup cream beaten stiff.

MRS. M. ROTSTEIN,
A Oakland Square.

HONEY WAFERS

One-half cup butter.
Two-thirds cup sugar.
Two eggs.
One-half cup honey.
Grated rind of one lemon.
Two cups flour.
One teaspoon salt.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One dozen almonds, chopped fine.

Blend butter, one egg and one yolk (saving one white for top). Add honey and grated lemon rind. Stir in flour, salt and baking powder sifted together. Drop on buttered tin. Brush top with slightly beaten egg white. Sprinkle with almonds. Bake for 15 minutes in a moderate oven.

MRS. WILLIAM T. THOMSON,
2245 Brownsville Road.

CHILDREN'S SPINACH CASSEROLE

One can spinach.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
One cup milk.
One half teaspoon salt.
One half cup buttered bread crumbs.
Four slices hard-cooked eggs.
One fourth cup grated cheese.

Drain and chop spinach. Make a white sauce as follows: Melt butter, blend in flour, add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thick. Add salt. Place a few crumbs in bottom of baking dish, add half the spinach, a layer of sliced eggs, and half the white sauce. Sprinkle with half the cheese. Repeat, cover with remaining crumbs and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) until brown.

MARY GRIFFIN,
2020 Bayson avenue, Banksville.

SALAD CANAPE

Four small ripe tomatoes.
One cupful cottage cheese.
Onion and lemon juice.
Salt and paprika.
Scald, peel and cut tomatoes in halves. Partly scoop out centers, salt and chill thoroughly. Season cottage cheese well and refill tomato cups. Serve each half on an attractive small plate, thread and butter slices with crisp leaf of lettuce beside, not under, each serving. Serves eight.

MISS ELEANOR STAHOVICK,

WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

ONE of the mysteries of life is how much care a man will take of thoroughbred animals—noting when they are "off"...and toning them back to the "pink of condition" to increase their daily usefulness—yet will shamefully neglect his own run-down condition.

Certainly, there is a pardonable pride in an animal's healthy appearance...but human beings are more important than animals. Yet some people just hope when "run-down" that they will "come around."

It is just good "horse-sense" to reflect and reason that your so-called "tired feeling" may come from a lowered red-blood-cell count and the hemo-glo-bin in these cells.

There is a remedy specially designed to bring back strength to weakened blood...and no one can be strong, healthy, happy, and full of vitality when in a run-down condition.

If you suspect an organic disease consult your physician...if you feel weak...lack a keen appetite...if your skin is pale and off-color...try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite...your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. It is truly a blood and body tonic. You will find it at all drug stores in two convenient sizes...the larger size is more economical. © The S.S.S. Co.

THE Magic FLAME

. . . . FOR MORE THAN A MILLION MEALS A DAY

Magic Flame . . . chief cook for more than a million meals a day in Pittsburgh homes . . . magic flame that means so much to modern living . . . magic flame that burns steady, even, and blue . . . magic flame produced from Natural Gas.

Beyond the boundries of the city, far away over the hills in the heart of the gas fields, nature has stored this precious fuel; where, aged in the earth deep below the surface, it is born to be useful, but hard to get. By wells that are drilled thousands of feet down; by pipe lines that are laid through rugged country; by huge compression stations that "boost" it on its way; by processes that purge it of dirt and moisture and impurities; by men who sweat and toil; it is finally delivered to the city, to your home ready to use.

Watch it as it burns, as it becomes that magic flame for cooking, and for water heating, househeating, refrigerating, or incinerating . . . watch it and know that all you need, or all you can ever need for any purpose is yours to command from a vast territory of more than a million acres of rich gas producing land . . . the fuel that does so much, so conveniently, for so little.

FASCIST WAVE ENGULFING WORLD, KNICKERBOCKER WARNS

ENGLAND STANDS AS LONE BARRIER BETWEEN U. S. AND NEW MENACE

Editor's note—"Will Fascism come to England?"

H. R. Knickerbocker, brilliant foreign correspondent of International News Service whose recent series on "Will War Come?" attracted world-wide attention, sets out to find the answer.

In a series of six articles he details the growth of the British Blackshirts. Sir Oswald Mosley, their leader, tells Knickerbocker that his movement has grown faster than any such movement in history.

Knickbocker suggests that the United States has cause to be deeply interested in this British movement.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, April 23.—Fascism has come to two of the four great powers of Western Europe and more than 100 million inhabitants of the Continent live under its banners today. The Fascist wave has engulfed Germany and Italy. It is lapping at the democratic foundations of every state in Europe.

Will it reach America?

Between us and the continent lies England. And the British Isles are in more than a geographical sense, more than a naval sense, a barrier between America and Europe. They are a spiritual, moral, political barrier as well.

If England goes Fascist that barrier is down. It would be difficult to conceive of America holding out alone, the one democratic great power left on earth of Fascism swept over England and conquered France. In both countries today democracy is definitely on the defensive. Certainly one important factor for an estimate of the future of democracy in America is its future in Britain. Will Britain go Fascist?

MOSLEY'S BLACKSHIRTS

Already the leader of the principal Fascist organization in Britain, Sir Oswald Mosley, master of the Black House, head of the Blackshirts, claims that his movement has grown faster than any Fascist movement in history. It is 18 months old. It refuses to reveal its membership figures and from highest Fascist sources comes only the statement:

"We have more than one hundred thousand, less than a million."

Whatever his numerical following, Sir Oswald Mosley has concentrated the attention of Britain upon his movement. The great Rothemere Press with a circulation in London alone of nearly 4,000,000, and of at least 6,000,000 throughout England, is beating the tom-tom for him. Is Mosley the Hitler of Britain?

Here in the ancient city of London the taxicabs are built by legal regulation to turn around on a dime. They have to be able to revolve almost in their length in order to get through the winding cowpaths that are the thoroughfares of this capital of eight million inhabitants today.

VISIT TO 'BLACK HOUSE'

In one such taxicab, twisting and worming its way in the roaring traffic of the metropolis, an investigator of the future of democracy in the Western World can drive in 12 minutes from the House of Parliament to an address in Kings road, Sloane square, where the organized forces of uniformed Fascism have their headquarters. It is called in popular parlance the Black House.

Between the noble seat of democratic government in Britain and the dingy headquarters of its Fascist enemies lie 12 minutes taxi ride. Between their conceptions of government lie centuries of the struggle of Britons to become free men. And between the date when freedom became secure and the date when it become once more seriously menaced lie almost exactly 100 years, for the Reform Act that made the British Parliament what it is today came in 1832 and today in 1934 the Black House has arisen to threaten to wipe out everything that had been achieved in those 100 years of democracy.

DEMOCRACY ON DEFENSIVE

British Fascism may not come through the Black House. It may not come at all. But the Black House is the best symbol of the forces that in one or another form may put democracy on the defensive in Britain and have already grown so strong that men of every class and party are asking the question:

"Will Fascism come to England?"

Next the Black House is a barracks and arsenal of the British Territorial Army. The field-guns, the soldiers of the armory polishing shells, give the Black House next door a borrowed air of militarism.

Over the Black House waves a flag, so grimed by the soot of London that only close inspection reveals it as a Union Jack. At the door of the Black House stand two young men. They are dressed in black trousers, black jerseys buttoned up with high necks like Russian shirts, and each bears upon his breast an insignia.

SYMBOL OF POWER

It is a shield with the Union Jack as background and the lictors of Imperial Rome, a bundle of rods with an axe in the center, upon it. These are the symbol of the supreme power over the lives of the people. They represent what they represented for old and new Rome, that rods bound together mean strength. The insignia is the insignia of the British Union of Fascists. That is the name of the organization that hopes one day to be for Britain what the national Fascists meant for Italy and the National Socialist German Workers' party meant to Germany.

Blackshirts swarm in the Black House. It was formerly a church school for girls. Today, in the dormitories where pious young ladies slept under the guardian eyes of their teachers, row upon row of cots give rest to the robust bodies of young Fascists.

They jump to attention and give us the stiff-arm salute. There are 120 of them quartered in the building. It covers nearly half a city block. For an hour we walked through its labyrinthine corridors. Like the Britain that the Black Shirts hope to build, the Black House is virtually self-contained.

PANTRY WELL-STOCKED

It has its storeroom with every variety of food and drink. Its kitchens are large enough to supply headquarters corps up to 200 men. A large dining room serves regular meals and a bar serves snacks.

The propaganda department has its own radio station and printing presses. The periodicals "Fascist Week" and "Blackshirt" have a considerable circulation.

This is headquarters of the Defense Corps, modeled after the Nazi "S. S," "Schutz-Staffel," meaning defense staff, the black-coated practorian guard of Hitler.

Its organizer, Francis Hawkins, sat before a large map of London in another room and explained the tiny flags that dotted its surface.

Each flag represented a branch of the Defense Corps. They claim 50 such branches in London alone, and declare they have already founded branches throughout England.

IN ALL NATIONS BUT ONE

On another floor the head of the Foreign Relations Department, Dr. Fister, expounded on the world-wide growth of Fascism. He showed pictures of massed Fascists in Buenos Aires, displayed a sketch of the Fascist organization alleged to be operating in the Soviet Union, and declared that in all the world there was only one country where no Fascist organization had been founded. That country, he said, was Mexico.

For the development of its own foreign relations the British Union of Fascists already has branches in Berlin, Cologne, Milan, Rome and Paris. In the British Empire it has affiliations with the so-called new guard in South Africa, Australia and New Zealand, with the British Union of Fascists in Canada, and the Ulster Fascists in Northern Ireland.

Down in the courtyard back of the Black House a row of motor trucks stood. They were the subject of an interpellation in the House of Commons not so long ago. It was charged that the Black Shirts had provided themselves with armored cars. We looked in them. They were ordinary trucks filled with seats to carry men, and their only armor was a grill "to keep out flying beer bottles."

WHISTLE HITLER TUNE

In the whole building there was no sign of any kind of armaments. The Defense Corps, the Blackshirts argue, is not a private army. The law against private armies in Britain is strict. Only one Briton is permitted to own one. He is the Duke of Atholl and his privilege goes back to medieval times.

But down in the kitchen one of the cooks was whistling the "Horst Wessel Lied," the Nazi marching song that became the national anthem of Hitler Germany. It is the favorite tune of the Blackshirts. And here are the words of the British version, written by E. D. Randall and published by the B. U. F.:

"Comrades: The voices of the dead battalions
Of those who fell that Britain might be great,
Join in our song, for they still march in spirit with us,
And urge us on to gain the Fascist state!

"The streets are still; The final struggle's ended;
Flushed with the fight we proudly hail the dawn!
See, over all the streets the Fascist banners waving—
Triumphant standard of a race reborn!"

The song pictures street fighting, civil wars and "dead battalions." The British Blackshirts have had no dead so far. Yet the Black House has an infirmary. It might become important. Just now no room in the Black House is so important as the one that houses its leader, Sir Oswald Mosley. What sort of man is he to whom his followers sing:

"Mosley! Leader of thousands!
Lead Us! We fearlessly follow
To conquest and freedom—or else to death!"

POLICE IDENTIFY PAWNED LOOT

Seven recent robberies in the Pittsburgh district were believed to have been solved today in the arrest of Albert Josephson, alias Harry Warwick, in a pawnshop in Baltimore, according to Baltimore police.

Loot found at the time of Josephson's arrest was said to have been identified by City Detectives Thomas Morgan and Elmer Henry and Chief of Police William Kane, of Mt. Lebanon, who went to Baltimore at the request of authorities there.

Pittsburgh detectives are said to have identified some of the recovered loot as that taken from the home of A. R. Meredith, Pennsylvania Railroad official, at 800 South Negley avenue, and the apartment of Anna Beckman and Florence Henning, 5557 Hobart street.

Italy Dedicates Longest Rail Tube

BOLOGNA, Italy, April 23.—(AP.)—Italy hailed today the dedication of the world's longest double-track railway tunnel—an 11 1-3 mile hole through the Etruscan Apennines which cost millions of dollars and the lives of 98 men.

Dedicatory ceremonies were climaxed yesterday with the passage through the tunnel of the royal train bearing King Victor Emanuel.

String Orchestra Announces Board

The Pittsburgh String Orchestra announced the following board members yesterday for the season 1934-35: Mrs. Ada Hammond, Dr. M. Bernfeld, Della Herring, Mrs. Ethel Reeder Jones, Mrs. Mary Loftus, Marguerite Marquette, Samuel Rosenzweig, Dr. M. W. Rubenstein, Cecil Schwartz, Mrs. Helen Hunt Allen, Frank E. Friedman and Mrs. Helen L. Willman.

Ferdinand Pillion has been named conductor for the coming year. The orchestra will give its final concert of the season at the Hotel Schenley May 1.

Police Summoned by Alarm Are Too Late

Memos on a Columnist's Desk.

Regarding the Maxim Litvinov—Miles Wallach story. It wasn't fantastic, as you set forth, at all. Parisian clippings came in confirming the fact that Maxim had several aliases including the name Vallach—Russ for Wallach. He's also been known as Graf, Finkelstein, Buchmann and Harrison when he got into the beards of the Paris police . . . Frances Perkins of the Cabinet detests the appellation of 'Madam Perkins" and waited until she was so introduced on the air the other day to let the public know she hated it. Madam Perkins argued that it was "positively vulgar."

I hear Sam H. Harris is seeking authors to write the next Marx Brothers opera . . . Let's take a day off and jot it down—ahem!. . . Here's a drink which is a grand pickup for breakfast—it's the Coffee Cocktail, to wit: One egg shaken up in glass of port which has been sweetened with a touch of sugar. Ice lightly and serve with a sprinkle of nutmeg—and you don't have to swear off.

"Old Spinning Wheel" still leads the list for song sales—second is "Waron Wheels" and third is "Somebody Else's Shoulder" . . . This'll amuse you. Jack Benny's motor car sponsor, you know, let him go when his contract expired—he wanted the best waltz music—Wayne King's . . . So he couldn't get King and is using Victor Young's crew and what do you think? Wayne King's orchestra is playing at the same time on the opposition network!

Patrolman Frank Norton's wife says her husband had to do his duty in arresting the lady who fed the birds during the stormiest weather, and was under orders . . . Your poke at "Moulin Rouge" for pirating a situation was nothing. You overlooked the fact that the entire idea was that of "The Guardsman!" . . . Well, the curfew law for night life has been voted on favorably—the 4 a. m. rule was passed by the Board of Alderman . . . Guests will have to order their drinks before 3, though—that's the ABC rules, you know . . . Calls all day from the night clubs to say thanks . . . I trust the managements understand that they mustn't take advantage of the extra hour to make the entertainers work unless paid extra—because the musicians will get extra money—if they play for dancing.

A Miss Benson called about Martha Mansfield. Says Mansfield is broke and homeless and her pride keeps her from contacting her family in Lodi, Cal. . . . Wonder if she knows how ill her 86-year-old grandma really is—and that pride is something to forget at such a time . . . N. Y. U., I hear, offered Ripley the honor of having a library named for him—if . . . If, that is, he kicked in with $250,000 . . . For a million they'd establish the Ripley School of Journalism to rival Pulitzer's . . . Anything for money, huh? . . . Olsen & Johnson gave a party in H'wood to celebrate Joe Miller's 300th an'y . . . They were merely 14 years wrong—he was born in 1648 . . . Perhaps that's part of the gag . . . When Sidney Fox calls anybody on the phone she actually says: "This is sweet little Sidney Fox calling." Fevvensakes!

Charley Vail, the cop at 72nd and CPW, was so embarrassed the other day. He found a cat and her 3 kitties in a box—left by someone—and carried them all the way to the station house—while brother cops tittered . . . Walt Bullock and Al Goering, in Bernie's band, who wrote the Rip Van Winchell song, have one called "A Bowl of Chop Suey and You'ey"—which they say may be the hit of "Magoo" . . . Bob Hope is disappointed in his own "short" and is gagging: "What do you think they'll do with Dillinger when they catch him?" (Answer): "Make him sit through Bob Hope's 'short' twice!" . . . Ann Lester got sugary notices in Boston with the new "Gypsy Love" show . . . The anonymous donor of $60,000 to the N. Y. Philharmonic Society's fund was Mrs. Christian Holmes.

Sheila Barrett is back again. Now at the St. Moritz grill . . . Carl Latham, the railroad man of Chicago, and Barbara Phillips, dancer, will marry in June . . . Arliss will soon do "Richelieu"—he's wanted to do it for years . . . Bee Lockhart, who does nudes at Chez Folies, is State Senator Lockhart's dotter (he's from Duluth) . . . Did you hear Etting sing "Riptide?"—ahhhh! . . . In England, by the way, I hear "Nana" is called "Lady of the Pavements" and that the ditty hit of Coward's "Conversation Piece" is "I'll Follow My Secret Heart" . . . Heard a grand description of an imitator today—"A swell memory and a lousy conscience."

I like this story about Darryl Zanuck, who believes much of his success as a producer is due to his ability to please the mass public . . . He sent his barber Sam to see the preview of his "Affairs of Cellini" to get Sam's reaction . . . The barber returned and said: "It's a fine picture but the ordinary movie fan won't know who this Benvenuto Cellini is" . . . Zanuck wagered the price of the shave he was wrong, and nailed the first man to pass the shop. It was a janitor . . . "Do you know who Cellini was?" he asked . . . "Sure," was the reply. "Fredric March!"

Here's a new low . . . I hear the trees near the mansion of one of the richest men in town—are protected by wire fences—and they're charged with juice—to "punish" the dogs . . . Stevie's at 130 West Tenth is a hit . . . Wonder why Stevie doesn't rename it . . . If you don't think The Nut Club is nutty—they won't check your rubbers for you! . . . Here's a tip that sounds crazy, but it makes good copy . . . The Bremer kidnapers have an alibi if caught . . . The story is this—they had $200,000 in Bremer's bank and even after the bank reopened (following the moratorium) they couldn't get it—just fifties or so . . . They needed it all pronto, so they took Bremer and demanded the 200 Gs . . . Thus, they will argue, they merely took their own money!" . . . Oh, all right—you told me to make notes of anything! . . . Remind me to tell you the one about Mae West at the White House.

—Your Girl Friday.

Comedy Has Songs

Pat Paterson is co-featured with Spencer Tracy and John Boles in "Bottoms Up," comedy with songs that will open Thursday on the Fulton screen.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Dream of My People," screen feature made in Palestine, will open in the Nixon tonight, after which it is to be shown twice daily throughout the week. There is no story connecting the various scenes, although there is a narrative in English, and songs by the late Joseph Rosenblatt, noted Jewish cantor, who died suddenly while the picture was being made.

The birth of Shakespeare is being observed today by Carnegie Institute and by the drama department, Carnegie Institute of Technology, the activities of the latter to include a presentation of "Henry IV, Part One," tonight in the Theater of the College of Fine Arts, for guests of Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Tech.

The Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse will present "The Second Man," by S. N. Behrman, in the Brookline School auditorium Wednesday and Thursday evenings, and in the Frick School next Monday night. The four parts in the comedy will be played by Regis Manning, Tillie Kreiger, Betty Fouche and Will Disney. This group, which developed from last season's Pittsburgh Summer Playhouse, will open its summer season in the Arnold School in June. M. E. Fierst continues as general manager.

International Club To Hear Pitt Coach

Dr. John B. Sutherland, Pitt football coach, and chairman of the international rooms of the Cathedral of Learning, will be the main speaker at a meeting of the International Club in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow. Attorney Emanuel F. Schifano is president of the organization.

Deserted on Trolley, Baby Sent to Home

Inspector Jerry Deasy, of East Liberty Police Station, has turned over to the Rosella Home for Foundlings a Negro baby found deserted on a No. 82 street car Saturday night. The motorman turned the child over to Corner-man Joseph Roach at Penn and Center avenues.

Jim Cagney To Remain Tough

By JIMMY STARR.

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.—Hello! James (Red Headed Terror) Cagney, who has proved more than once that he's tough on the screen, isn't slated for any sissy roles. Hal Wallis, the Warner production chief, is watching out for that. Wallis has just selected Frederick Hazlett Brennon's yarn, "The Perfect Week-End," the rip-roaring adventures of a truck driver, (and a toughie at that), in a small town, as Mr. Cagney's next movie.

It's Wallis' plan to keep Cagney fighting his way in and out of situations. The fans and exhibitors like him best that way, and they're going to get what they want!

A short, short story—for years and years Ray Mayer had tried to get out of vaudeville and into a big Broadway show. At last he got a break. He was engaged for Frank Fay's Revue. Then it took Ray years and years to get back into vaudeville!

George Bancroft owes Paramount another picture, according to his last contract. But the actor and the studio execs can't get together on a yarn. Unfortunately for the film factory, George has the choice of selection.

He was scheduled for "Ladies First," with Frances Fuller, as his leading lady, but George turned it down. It all seems to be a case of everybody agreeing to disagree.

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . The love scene between Sidney Blackmer and Mary Boland in "Down To Their Last Yacht" was so HOTCHA all the extras refused to go to lunch for fear they would MISS something . . . Swellest gesture of the week—When Vic McLaglen heard that an extra girl on the "Cleopatra" set had $77 stolen from her purse, he sat right down and wrote out a check for the amount . . . Warren William was at the Hollywood Police Station, but NOT under arrest. He's studying fingerprint methods for that "Dragon Murder Case" he's to do for Warners . . . Buster Crabbe has been borrowed from Paramount for a role in RKO's "Arabella" . . . Sid Grauman pulled a swell gag on Eddie Hillman the other eve at the Cocoanut Grove. While Eddie was gabbing away, Sid lifted his watch. A few moments later the announcer stated a valuable watch had been found. Eddie raced up to the house detective who was primed to put him through all manner of silly questions, which finally put Eddie in no less than a FRENZY. He doesn't yet know that Sid started the rib . . . Alan Dinehart has set his play, "Alley Cat," for New York production this season . . . Paul Muni's headed for Mexicali to collect atmosphere for his role in "Border Town."

Some Circus Sidelights—Wally Ford in the front row with his youngster. He alibied: "Had to bring the baby, you know"—but you should have HEARD him scream at the clowns! Nancy Carroll and her daughter, Howard Emmett Rogers and a flock of kids. Met Mabel Stark in her dressing tent—with a LIVE leopard in her lap. It seems the little kittie didn't want to stay in his cage. It's needless to say I cut the interview shorter than short!

After spending many thousands of dollars preparing "Mary and Elizabeth," a costume drammer in which Margaret Sullivan and Mrs. Leslie Carter were to play. Universal has finally and definitely shelved it. Reason: Afraid of too many lawsuits charging plagiarism.

Snoopings of Cinemaland—Alexandra Carlisle has returned to Hollywood to open a dramatic school. She got the idea after working in ONE picture at a major studio . . . Connie Cummings recently choo-chooed to New York. She paid no heed to the "Don't Play Cards with Strangers" sign—and took a guy she described as "Slippery Sam" to the tune of $200 . . . Leslie Fenton, who has been trying to stage a comeback in the movies, has resorted to doing "Little Theater" plays to attract attention . . . Velez and Yolanda, the swelegant dance team now at the Cocoanut Grove, were offered term contracts as movie actors by Paramount—but said thumbs down!

A swell gesture—Mrs. Jack Warner will operate a hat store in Beverly Hills, all profits going to local charities!

Boris Karloff and Victor McLaglen in "The Lost Patrol," dramatic story of a group of British soldiers lost in the desert. It will be the screen feature in the Warner beginning Thursday.

Students Act Tomorrow

Three one-act plays and an abridgement of "The School for Scandal" will be presented at a studio matinee by the drama school of the Carnegie Institute of Technology in the Union of the Administration Building at 3 o'clock tomorrow. The public is invited, and no tickets are required.

The short plays are Willis R. Jones' "Spiced Wine," directed by Roy Minet; Anna B. Joder's "Flash-Back," directed by Janet Feather, and George N. Savage's "Little Prison," directed by Jean Speller. These have been supervised by E. W. Hickman, of the factulty. The players are Joseph Batchellor, Polly Rowles, Marie Noir, Marcia Leety, Amalia Rose, Mary Mehler, Helen Ruth Deike, Jean Speller, Janet Patrick, Ruth Hornbeck and Franklin Webb.

Annual Tech Exhibit To Be Held Friday

Mother of 4 starts campaign to cut down STOCKING RUNS

JANE, MRS. GOLDSMITH, NANCY and BARBARA are worried about constant stocking runs. They decide to make a test—perhaps the Lux way of washing might cut those costly runs down.

JANE and NANCY carry on the test. One pair of stockings is washed after each wearing with Lux—the other pair rubbed with cake soap.

THE GOLDSMITH FAMILY isn't bothered by constant runs now! The Lux way of washing cuts down on runs, so that stockings stand even strenuous activities like skating!

"We cut them down 64%," says MRS. GOLDSMITH

Four active girls in the family . . . expensive stocking runs all the time . . . then a Lux test by mother and daughters that cut runs way down!

That's the story Mrs. W. DeL. Goldsmith has to tell. She and her girls made a simple stocking test. Each took two pairs of stockings, washed one pair with Lux, rubbed the other with cake soap. Their records showed 64% fewer runs in the Lux stockings than in the ones rubbed with cake soap!

Why don't you save money this way? Lux saves stocking elasticity, so the silk gives instead of breaking so often. Cake-soap rubbing and soaps with harmful alkali weaken elasticity. Lux has no harmful alkali—safe in water, safe in Lux!

"With Lux, stockings don't go pop all the time!" BARBARA

"Lux is good news for my allowance!" ANNE

"Lux is swell—it's wonderful economy." NANCY

"With Lux, my stockings fit better—wear longer." JANE

MY HUSBAND'S SOCKS—Mrs. Goldsmith adds: "I'm washing my husband's socks just the way we do our stockings and it's amazing how much longer they wear. I like Lux for wool socks, too, because it doesn't shrink or fade them!"

Love Match

MAMIE VOSS could hardly be described as the neighborhood belle. Her face and figure weren't the sort to cop any beauty cups. Under ordinary circumstances, Ferdy wouldn't have accorded the girl a second glance.

These were not ordinary circumstances, however. For one thing, Ferdy was broke. He had moved into Mamie's neighborhood when his obligations elsewhere had become too pressing. When he learned about the money that would be settled upon Mamie when she married, he was entirely certain that he couldn't have picked a better spot.

"That Mamie Voss," his landlady told him, "the one whose father owns the grocery store down the street—it'll be a lucky man that marries her. Her father is simply crazy about her. Everybody knows that he's been putting away money ever since she was born, almost, so's she'd have what he calls a dowry when she gets married. I guess, by the look of things, she won't ever need it."

"Yeah?" Ferdy's eyes glittered. "About how much dough would you say? This dowry, as you call it, how much do you think it is?"

"It must be thousands and thousands," the woman confided. "He's been saving for years."

And from that moment on, Ferdy entertained a very definite respect for Mamie Voss.

This, reasoned Ferdy, was the opportunity he had been waiting for all his life. No more worries about money. No more poor-paying jobs and the necessity of labor, which he never enjoyed. Suppose the girl was no raving beauty? He needed the dough. And once he got his hands on it, the rest would be easy.

It was a simple matter to manage an introduction to Mamie. It was extremely simple to convince her that he could not resist her attractions. Simple enough when he gazed into her eager eyes—and thought of the money.

Within the space of a very short time, Ferdy had laid his doubtful fortune at Mamie's oversized feet amid protestations of undying love.

"Darling," she cooed coyly, "I'm all yours. But of course you must talk to Papa. I know, though, that he won't refuse to let me marry you. I'm sure he'll be very happy, too."

Ferdy was joyful. Thus far it had been easy. He felt not the slightest misgivin, at the prospect of talking to Papa Voss.

Mamie's papa was waiting for him in the parlor the very next evening. He was beaming jovially, and his handclasp was hearty.

"My boy," he chortled, "my little girl has told me the good news. I can only say that I am glad, very glad."

He hesitated, cleared his throat, and frowned in a troubled manner.

"Before we go any further," he stated, "there is one little angle that must be discussed, although it is a bit difficult to know just how to begin. You are new in our midst, but possibly you may have learned of my intention to settle a large sum of money on my daughter when she married.

"Forgive me if I speak frankly, but I must think of my little girl's happiness. Ferdy, my boy, please do not be offended if I ask you whether or not this money has—er, well, anything to do with your desire to marry my daughter. We are both men of the world. We know that there are men who would marry a woman for her money alone."

By the time he'd completed his little speech, Ferdy had the appearance of a man who was suffering from a mortal wound.

"Mr. Voss," he protested, "you pain me. I love Mamie from the bottom of my heart. I care not a whit for her money or anything else. Only for the dear little girl herself, I'd marry her if she were penniless. In fact, I'd prefer it that way to prove that I really love her."

"Then," smiled Papa Voss, "you have my consent and my blessing."

When the older man left the room, Ferdy mopped his brow. Then he recalled the ringing statements he had made and smiled contentedly. Beyond any doubt, he had convinced the old guy that the money angle was of no importance whatsoever. He congratulated himself. He had done a good job.

Mamie and Ferdy were married a very short time later. The woman was happy as she gazed upon her trembling bridegroom. And Ferdy was happy as he thought of the fortune that would soon be theirs.

While Mamie was doffing her bridal raiment, her papa drew his son-in-law aside. He draped an affectionate arm around the younger man's shoulder.

"My dear boy," he declared, "I can't tell you how happy I am to see my little girl married to a worthy man. Yes, indeed, it's a great load off my mind. I've always been afraid that I'd die before she was well provided for."

Ferdy stared at him blankly.

"You see," went on Papa Voss, "that dowry I spoke to you about the night you asked me for Mamie's hand, well, it was a nice little fortune. It was tough luck that I had the money deposited in a bank that closed up last year.

"That was why I felt that it was best to talk to you about it that night. However, you showed me that the subject was painful to you. Then, too, seeing that you love Mamie so deeply that the fact that she has no money wasn't of the slightest importance, I knew it didn't matter whether I told you then or now."

JUNIOR PATROL

We would like to see how well you can write, fellows!

Many of the greatest writers, who wrote many interesting books and stories, started writing interesting things when they were children.

And some of the greatest poets who ever lived died at just about the same age that many fellows, and girls, too, are thinking about going to work after their graduation from college. Shelley and Keats, whose poems many think are the most beautiful ever written, were young men when they died.

So you see you don't have to wait until you are old and tired before you start to write, when you don't have anything else to do. Good writing is done when a fellow or a girl concentrates on it, and puts work into it. But, of course, you have to know how—you have to have a talent for it.

For some people writing seems to come as easily as breathing. Jeffery Farnol, who wrote many thrilling books, especially books about adventures in England and sailing the Spanish Main, says that anybody can sit down and write a book. And it seems that way to him. He writes good books, but his words flow freely, and he doesn't have to sweat over every sentence.

And then other critics tell us that the harder the writing the easier the reading. This seems to be the way many of the world's best stories were produced. Their authors rewrote them, and rewrote them, making improvements each time.

But one thing seems to be sure. You learn to write by writing. And if any Junior Patrol member wants to try, or is trying to write now, we are glad of it, and we would like to see some of his work.

Now here's an idea! How about writing Junior a letter telling him about the most beautiful thing you know? Or write a letter describing your street, or your house, or your teacher. Send them in to Junior. We will print the best ones right here in the Mail Box.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.

Arnold Child, 7, Dies From Auto Injuries

Walter Miskow, 7, of 1713 Third avenue, Arnold, died in Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, last night, a few hours after he had been struck by an automobile. Anthony Cimimo, 44, of 308 Seventeenth street, Arnold, alleged driver of the car, took the injured boy to the hospital. Police later released him on his own recognizance and ordered him to appear before the coroner.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

TRAINS SHIFT WITH TIME

Commuter trains on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad will be scheduled approximately one hour earlier, eastern standard time, beginning next Sunday, to conform with daylight saving, according to announcement today. These include trains to Beaver Valley, Brownsville and Connellsville.

Two new Saturday trains will be added on the Beaver Valley line. One, No. 21, will leave Pittsburgh at 12:35 p. m., arriving at West Aliquippa at 1:15 p. m., and the other, No. 18, leaving West Aliquippa at 2 p. m.

Train No. 49, Pittsburgh to Youngstown, will leave Pittsburgh at 4:45 a. m.; train No. 80 will leave Youngstown at 7:25 a. m., arriving at Pittsburgh at 8:50 a. m.

With few exceptions, all trains operating between Pittsburgh and Erie, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, Toronto, Springfield, Worcester, Boston, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and Chicago will remain on present schedule, eastern standard time.

Carmela Ponselle Reported Improved

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP.)—Carmela Ponselle, opera singer and sister of Rosa Ponselle, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was reported in an improved condition today at the Medical Arts Sanitarium.

Miss Ponselle is suffering from a gall bladder ailment.

BLIND 19 YEARS, BEGINS TO SEE

CINCINNATI, April 23.—(AP.)—Blind for 19 years, Wilbur Francis Carr, 24, piano tuner, walked from a hospital here today and renewed his acquaintance with things he has not seen since childhood as the result of an unusual operation.

Nineteen years ago, a piece of coal struck Carr's left eye, causing such injury that its removal was necessary. Three months later infection in the right eye caused the iris to contract until it had obliterated the pupil.

This week a tiny "core" was cut through the front wall of the eye, permitting light again to enter. Full recovery will be a long process, Carr has been told, but he says:

"I remember what things looked like when I was a kid, but it's swell to see stuff like airplanes and new autos."

Mrs. Felix Plans Meet in School

Mrs. Anne E. Felix, candidate for Congress in the Thirty-second District, will speak tomorrow night at C. B. Connelley Trade School. Others on the program are J. Malcolm MacDonald, E. Lowry Humes and Mrs. Annette Johnson. Another meeting will be held for Mrs. Felix Thursday in Frick Training School. Former Supervisor of Internal Revenue C. G. Lewellyn and Charles Fagan will speak. J. J. Kerr will preside.

AILING ARM FORCES TRAYNOR FROM BUC LINEUP

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Good Average by Bucs.
Smith Makes Fine Start.
Flannels Show Contrast.
Change in Pilot Types.
More Ring Comparisons.
Bradley's Annual Gloom.

If Pie Traynor's arm ailment and Paul Waner's leg injury yield to treatment quickly, Pirate fans can feel well satisfied with the result of the first trip. The showing of Larry French, Heinie Meine and Bill Swift as starting pitchers left considerable to be desired, but there is no reason to fear they will not quickly regain their normal effectiveness, and otherwise no fault can be found with a record of three victories against two defeats in the first five games abroad. If the Bucs could be depended on to keep up that average for the entire season, you could feel pretty sure of the pennant. And it's all the more encouraging because it was made on the road, where a poor showing cost them the flag last year.

Hal Smith

It is hoped Hal Smith's excellent pitching yesterday means he has thrown off the jinx that trailed him during the closing stages of the 1933 race, when he had to be lifted from six of the last eight games he started, and he won only one game after August 12, against five defeats. The capable right-hander is off to a brilliant beginning, and his fine work, on top of Ralph Birkofer's neat game a few days earlier, strengthens the promise that the club's young pitchers are going to do their share in the new season.

FLANNEL STYLES CHANGED IN BASEBALL

Phil Troy, veteran traveling secretary, after making the spring trip with the Red Sox, says the main change to impress him, as compared with the old days, was that in the matter of flannels. In the bygone the only flannel that a player took to camp was a red shirt to be worn on the ball field. He carried also a baseball bat, some chewing tobacco and a change of clothing. Troy observes that now there are several flannel outfits. The player may still take along the red flannel shirt, but he makes certain that he has also two or three sets of flannel trousers, brown and white or gray, together with flannel sports coats, and he is a whole lot fussier about having his flannel trousers and coats than he is about the red flannel shirt. Once a player who had two extra collars was putting on the dog.

Troy saw another marked change in the camp scenes. In the old days, he recollects, the players would sit on the porch after the workout, bite off a chew, and start talking about baseball. They would review the practice of that day, discuss various players and talk about the old times. Now the boys may chew tobacco on the field, but the instant practice is over they get rid of the chew. They go to the hotel, duke themselves out in snappy ensembles of flannels—tie, shoes and socks to match—go in to eat dinner, which used to be supper, and then, if they sit on the veranda, it's to talk about bridge, golf, automobiles, politics or the dance they are going to attend.

TIME MAKES CLUB MANAGERS LESS SEVERE

The comparative experiences of Detroit first basemen, 27 years apart, show that in managerial customs, as in many other respects, baseball is not what it used to be. Sam Otis recalls that in 1907 Claude Rossman, then playing first base for the Tigers, was ordered by Manager Hughey Jennings to advance a runner into scoring position with a sacrifice bunt. Claude had different ideas, and when a nice fat pitch came sailing over the plate he kissed it out of the park for a home run.

Mickey Cochrane

Did Rossman get a pat on the back when, with a wide grin on his face, he crossed the plate and was met by Manager Jennings? He did not. "That will cost you just fifty bucks!" roared Jennings. "If we were to lose this game it would cost you plenty more, and it's only because you're a lucky stiff that you didn't hit into a double play. Hereafter, you do what you're told to do." In a recent game, Hank Greenberg, present Tiger first sacker, was instructed by Manager Mickey Cochrane to bunt and move up two runners. Like Rossman, Greenberg decided to swing. He didn't make a homer, but he did crack out a double to score both runners. But all it cost him was a mild reprimand from Cochrane, and in fact, Mickey was inclined to give Hank credit for outsmarting the opposition.

RATES TWO MODERNS EQUAL TO OLD STARS

Mike Leonard, called the Beau Brummell of the ring in the '90's, and who recently celebrated his sixty-third birthday anniversary, doesn't agree with other fistic stars of the past that none of the latter day fighters can be compared with the old timers. He concedes an equal ranking to at least two of the modern battlers. They are Jack Dempsey and Jimmy McLarnin, whom he pronounces old-time types that would have been successes then as they were many years afterward.

Leonard, who went a 20-round limit with Joe Gans in 1897, says he doesn't consider Benny Leonard as having been in the same class as the old Negro lightweight champion. "Benny was as good as he could be," he remarks, "but no wnere near Gans." Mike recalls that few fighters of yesteryear were disfigured like those of today. He says most of the bashed noses and cauliflower ears come from training in the gyms; boxers take blows on the ears instead of ducking or blocking.

TURFMEN WINK AT BRADLEY'S PESSIMISM

With the approach of another Kentucky Derby, Col. E. R. Bradley, the Gil Dobie of the turf, is at it again. Gloomily, he tells the world that he has no chance to win this year's classic; further, that none of his entries will be even in the money. He predicts that the winner will be Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, victor in last year's Belmont Futurity, and that there won't be a chance for any other starter, particularly his own. The colonel, the only owner ever to win the Derby four times, has four entries in Bazaar, Baker's Dozen, Boy Valet and Blue Again.

Col. E. R. Bradley

If he had any hopes at all, Bradley says, they would be pinned on Bazaar. But Bazaar is a filly, and Bradley has said many times that a filly cannot win the classic. Turfmen are winking at the rating given Bazaar, as well as at the colonel's seeming pessimism in general. He was just as gloomy in other years, and when his horse came home in front he chuckled and said, "I didn't believe he could do it." Racing men now are wondering whether his boost for Bazaar isn't just a smoke screen to take attention away from his real hope, perhaps Baker's Dozen. The latter started only once as a 2-year-old and finished second, but showed that he preferred to go a route. Immediately he was put away in cold storage and has not run since. In 1921 Bradley let it be known that Black Servant was his best bet, but along came Behave Yourself to win, after being covered up. Two years ago Brother Joe was supposed to be the Bradley crack, but Burgoo King won.

Pirates Home to Open Local Season--A Baby in the Family

MELLON HORSE IN MARYLAND CUP RACE

BALTIMORE, April 23.—(AP.)—Sixteen entries, in tip-top shape and many of them already winners, were entered today for the forty-first annual running of Maryland's most famous jumping classic, the Maryland Hunt Cup, next Saturday in Worthington Valley.

Such notables as Hotspur II, recent winner of My Lady's Manor point to point; Captain Kettle, winner of last year's cup; Troublemaker, 1932 winner and holder of the cup's course record, and Vaudeville, winner of Saturday's Grand National, were in the lists announced by Charles B. Reeves, secretary of the Maryland Hunt Cup Association.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: 11 CENTURIES OF POSSESSION—The "Histerhof," also called "tom Hister" (zum Hister), has been in the possession of the same Hiesterman family for 1,100 years. The farm is situated in the Hermannsburger Heide in what is known as Lower Saxony, although the official name of the province is Hanover, Germany. The actual leasehold records preserved in the archives of Hanover go back to the year 1330, but the homestead was built 1,100 years ago and is known to have been inhabited by the Hiesterman family from the day of its construction. It is an unwritten law handed down from father to son that only white horses may cross the threshold of the Hister stable. Hence no black or brown horse has been housed there during the past 11 centuries.

PIRATES BEAT REDS IN CLOSE GAME, 5-4

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Happy, yes, when they realize they are due to partake of the pleasures of three weeks of home cooking, after their many weeks of travel, yet the camp of the Buccos holds a sad note.

The regret concerns the team's popular captain, Harold Joseph (Pie) Traynor, who is as good as lost for the home opener tomorrow. When the classy Buccos take their position against the clever Cardinals of St. Louis, Traynor will be looking on disconsolately from a dugout seat, for his ailing right arm has rendered him unfit for play.

Indeed, Manager Gibson and the other Pirates will be tickled if Traynor is able to go in the course of the next two weeks. The sore arm which you have been hearing about and looking at for more than two years reached a climax in the Saturday tilt with the Reds. Just before the start of the clash in Cincinnati yesterday, Traynor went to Manager Gibson and admitted he could go no further.

THEVENOW AT THIRD

Tommy Thevenow will be at the hot corner when the Buccos stage the home inaugural on the morrow. Little short of a miracle would be required of the medical specialists were Traynor able to shake off his ills with the treatment he is scheduled to get today.

Paul Waner injured his right leg near the thigh as he chased O'Farrell's triple in the fourth inning yesterday. He had to leave the game later, but he said last night he thought he would be able to play tomorrow. The injury is a painful sprain. He watched the Bucs in their drill here today and said he would try to play in the opener.

The main body of the Buccos reached home about 2 o'clock this morning. In the stillness of the dark they rolled to their temporary homes in a merry mood. Their good feeling was engendered by the events of the afternoon in Cincy, where they registered a 5-to-4 victory over Bob Farrell's Reds. The triumph was recorded in the ninth inning.

The Pirate squad went through a workout at Forbes Field this morning. It was confined mainly to batting, due to the condition of the infield as a result of yesterday's rain.

On the way to Pittsburgh Boss Gibson announced a probable change in his battlefront in the

BAD WEATHER STOPS GOLFERS

By TOM BIRKS

With the weather anything but conducive to the playing of good golf many of the country clubs in the district are putting on social events during the week to keep the golfing fraternity in a good frame of mind until more appropriate weather comes along.

The first event of the week is scheduled at the Highland Country Club tonight, where the golf committee has arranged a smoker. A full program of entertainment will be on tap and a series of Bobby Jones' movie shorts will be shown. These shorts, illustrating all kinds of shots, are always well received by devotees of the links.

On Thursday, Chartiers Heights and Greensburg will hold affairs. The Chartiers club plans a stag for old and new and prospective members.

At Greensburg, it will be the opening day and Perry Del Vicchio already is taking starting times for members. Golf, dinner and bridge should attract a large crowd.

Tomorrow, Denny Shute, British open champion, will be a visitor here.

Schenley Park is scheduled to open on Friday, and the North and South County Parks on Saturday.

Cincinnati Women Take Bowling Lead

INDIANAPOLIS, April 23.—(AP.)—The Tommy Doll five, of Cincinnati, soared into first place in the seventeenth annual women's international bowling tournament in progress here with a sizzling total of 2,616 pins.

A Cincinnati team also took over second position in the standings when the Moelders hit 2,418.

GRANT BEATEN BY SHIELDS

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 23.—(AP.)—He didn't win but the hero of the fourteenth annual Mason and Dixon tennis tournament was Bryan M. Grant, Jr., pint-sized package of Dixie dynamite.

The nimble Atlantan, five feet, three inches tall and weighing only 120 pounds, accomplished the downfall of the biggest man in the tournament, six feet, four inch Lester Stoefen, and came within a few points of beating the second biggest competitor, six feet, three inch Frank Shields, in the final round yesterday.

He couldn't quite make the grade against Shields and the country's No. 1 ranking player finally emerged the winner after five sets, 2-6, 1-6, 6-3, 8-6, 6-4.

FRASER WINS TITLE

MOUNT RAINIER, Wash., April 23.—(AP.)—Don Fraser, Seattle, flashing down the snowy sides of Mount Rainier for five miles at speeds often approaching a mile a minute, won the Pacific Northwest silver skis race yesterday by less than one-half the length of his shining hickory staves. His time was 10 minutes 49 3-5 seconds.

Says Honus WAGNER

To the Sports Editor: Don't you bet some of those air mail contractors would like to be at bat when the President throws the first ball?

Honus Wagner

The season's getting away to a good start and the boys sense a lot of interest by the fans. Looks like the people want to forget their troubles of last year. I don't know any better way to forget 'em, either, than to see a lively game of ball.

I know I get a thrill every time I put on a pair of spiked shoes, even if I am only 30 years old.

HONUS WAGNER.

LON WARNEKE TURNS IN SECOND ONE-HIT GAME OF SEASON

CARDS VICTIMS OF CUB ACE'S FINE WORK

Associated Press.

Those who predicted the Chicago Cubs would have to rely upon their tremendous slugging power to get into the National League pennant race evidently overlooked Lonnie Warneke, the tall right hander from Mt. Ida, Ark.

He has pitched two games so far this season, won them both and allowed just two hits, one each to Cincinanti and St. Louis.

Following up his opening day performance against the Reds, Warneke turned in the same feat against the Cardinals yesterday as the Cubs won the weirdest kind of game by a 15-to-2 score. The only blow Lonnie allowed was a double by Jim Collins in the fifth, which led to the two St. Louis runs. It followed a walk to Spud Davis; then a passed ball let Davis score and Collins reach third. Jim tallied after Gene Moore's fly.

CUBS HIT HARD

Meanwhile, the Cubs rapped the Brothers Dean, Dizzy and Paul, and Jim Winford and Clarence Heise, for 22 hits, including Chuck Klein's third homer and one by Gabby Hartnett.

The victory gave the Cubs the league lead, as the champion Giants suffered their season's first setback at the hands of the Braves. The score was 6-5 as Boston rapped Fred Fitzsimmons freely and held onto its early lead, even after Homer Peel hit a pinch homer in the ninth.

The Brooklyn Dodgers handed the Phillies their sixth straight defeat, 7 to 5, collecting their winning runs on a four-run outburst against George Darrow in the eighth. The Pirates nosed out Cincinnati, 5-4, in the other National League contest.

A crowd, rather than any particular game, furnished the American League feature. The Boston Red Sox, who have been gunning for attendance records ever since the season started, drew a paid attendance of 44,631 to Fenway Park to see them take an 8-to-1 licking from the Yankees and Lefty Gomez.

SENATORS WIN

The champion Washington Senators found a flinger who could go the route and defeated the Athletics, 4 to 3, behind Al Thomas. The first Sunday game in Philadelphia drew a 20,000 crowd, which saw Thomas outpitch Roy Mahaffey.

Memorial Honoring McGraw Is Planned

NEW YORK, April 23.—(INS.)—A memorial will be erected at the Polo Grounds this summer honoring John J. McGraw, who led his teams to 10 pennants and three world championships during his 30 years' service as manager of the New York Giants.

Members of the present club, especially those who worked under McGraw, will be allowed to contribute to the expense of the memorial, the club announced.

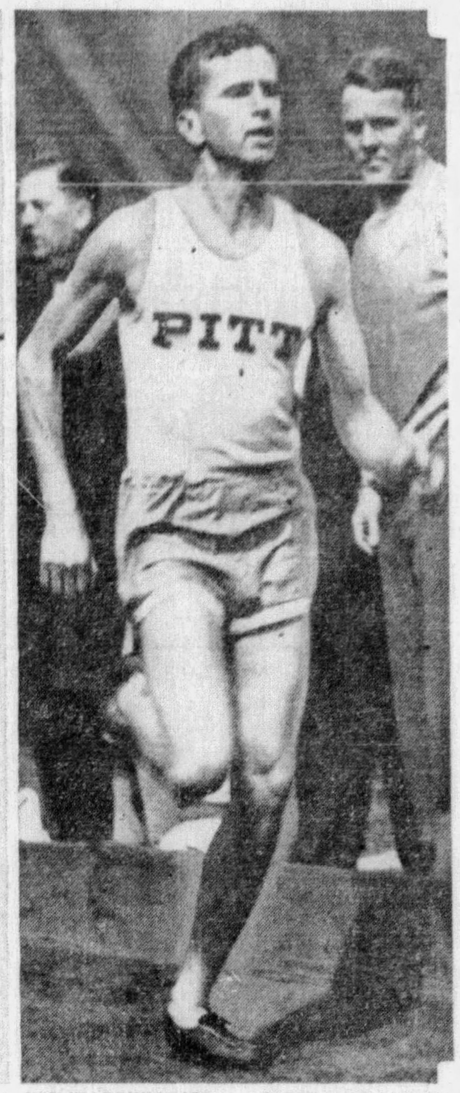
More Pitt Track Stars---Best Vaulter and Miler in the District



PETE PELUCHA OFF ON POLE VAULT JAUNT. HERE HE'S UP AND OVER . . . A SLICK BIT OF WORK . . . HAS THE FORM OF A CHAMPION KEN WAGONHOUSER . . . GREAT MILE RUNNER

Off to a fine start with a decisive victory over Temple University in the dual meet in the Pitt Stadium last Saturday, the Panther varsity track and field team appears to be headed for a great season. Among the stars upon whom Coach Carl Olson is banking heavily for points are Pete Pelucha, pole vault ace, and Ken Wagonhouser, one of the most promising milers in Pitt's history. Olson expects Pelucha to clear 13 feet before the season is over, and Wagonhouser has given every indication of being a 4:20 or better miler. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

NEW LEAGUE PLANS SEASON

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 23.—(AP.)—Four clubs, Washington, Greensburg, Monessen and Charleroi, have been granted franchises in the Pennsylvania State Baseball Association, a class D minor circuit, which plans to open its season May 17.

Two other clubs are to enter later, with McKeesport, Canonsburg, Jeannette and Donora listed as possibilities, according to Elmer Dailey and Russell Hockenbury, president and secretary-treasurer of the Middle Atlantic League. Daily and Hockenbury hold similar offices in the new league.

The four clubs all will have major league support. Daily said. New York Yankees will aid Washington, the St. Louis Cardinals will help Greensburg, the Boston Red Sox will back Monessen and the Detroit Tigers will sponsor Charleroi.

The league established a salary limit of $1,000 a month. It will hold another meeting Thursday in Greensburg.

A split season of 110 games ending July 4 and Labor Day is planned. It also is agreed to employ two umpires. General admission was set at 35 cents.

Tallman Favors Glenn as Grid Aide

It was made known today that Tallman, who was appointed to succeed Earle (Greasy) Neale, has decided on the youngest of the Glenn brothers for the job that Tallman himself held prior to his promotion.

PITT TRACKERS SHOW CLASS

By JESS CARVER

Pitt's varsity track and field squad may not win all its dual meets this year; in fact, it probably will not, but nevertheless the Panthers have about as well-balancer an outfit as ever has represented the institution.

Poor Temple was taken over the jumps by the Pitts Saturday in the opening dual meet of the season, and in no uncertain fashion. From start to finish, at no time was there any doubt as to the outcome of the engagement. The Owls tried hard, but all they got was credit for same. Any time a team is shut out in five events out of 15, it has little, if any, chance of finishing in the money.

The odd thing about this year's Pitt squad is that there are no really outstanding individual performers. Jim Guay, the hurdler; Pelucha, the pole vaulter; Bill Keller, middle-distance star; Walt Good, broad jumper, and Ken Wagonhouser, the star miler, appear to be the aces, but they can be, and likely will be, beaten. But for a "second-placing" team, however, the squad is hard to match.

WAGONHOUSER STAR

Of the entire personnel, Wagonhouser appears to be the lad most likely to make a name for himself. Wagonhouser appears capable of doing a mile in under 4:20, which will put him in a class with the best in the country. He did 4:27 Saturday in beating Federoff, Temple's highly touted runner (and a right nifty athlete he was, too) and had it been a trifle warmer and the pace been set differently, Wagonhouser might have cracked 4:20. As it was, he practically loafed through the first 880 yards, as did Federoff, and only turned on the steam during the last quarter mile.

Guay is improving daily in his hurdling. All he needs is to develop speed, his form is excellent. Pelucha is a good enough vaulter, who may attain a 13-foot standard before the season is over. He's no Pickard as yet, but he's the best seen hereabouts since the days of the Canadian star.

The Pitt freshman team has the real strong man on its roster. He's Red Tost, of Plumville (yep, that's correct), Pa., and he has the making of a really great star. In Saturday's tough meet with the strong Academy High outfit, of Erie, Red turned in a sensational performance. He won the 880 in 2:05.5, the mile in 4:41 and then ran a brilliant and truly sensational anchor quarter for the relay team. He not only ran it, but he won it, beating the Erie anchor man, who had a lead of at least five yards, with a killing spurt during the last 100 yards.

TOST IS STAR

Tost is a powerfully built lad, who'll be even more husky once he fills out. He must weight in the neighborhood of 170 pounds even now, and stands a good six feet, his legs are well developed and he has a stride that is hard to match. What is more, he likes to run.

A team of "old-timers" will battle the Pitt varsity eleven on the last day of spring football practice and the veterans already are talking up the game.

Included in the old-timers' lineup will be Skladany and Timmons, ends; Walton and Meredith, tackles; Onder, Milligan and Love, guards; Tormey and Daugherty, centers; Hogan, Sebastian, Clark, Heller, O'Dell, Cutri and Reider, backs.

Not so old-time at that, eh, wot?

MEYER VICTOR

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—Lou Meyer, of Southgate, Cal., the 1933 Indianapolis 500-mile champion, won the 150-mile road race over the hilly Ascot course here yesterday, finishing 100 yards ahead of Ted Horn, Los Angeles. The winner's time was 2 hours 56 minutes 40 seconds.

SCHOOL NET TEAMS OPEN PLAY TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Opening guns of the fourth campaign of the Interscholastic Tennis Conference struggle for the Allegheny County team championship will boom this afternoon as eight squads in three sectors of the circuit swing into action. Additional tussles are listed for Thursday and for each Monday and Thursday thereafter until May 14.

Today's program calls for Suburban Division competition in which jousts between Shady Side Academy and Arnold School on the latter's lot features the Section I slate, while Mount Lebanon, reigning premier, invades Crafton in Section II and Wilkinsburg entertains Turtle Creek Union and Munhall jaunts to Swissvale in Section III. Hot scrimmaging looms, though the fact that in the case of all contenders except Mount Lebanon and Shady Side the lineups are largely problematical precludes advisability of preliminary guessing as to results.

On Thursday, the school stars will tilt as follows:

Section I—Arnold School at Duquesne University Preps.

Cochran Nine Beats Groveton in Opener

The Ottie Cochrans opened their season yesterday by defeating Groveton on the latter's field, 6 to 1.

The Pittsburgh Crawfords took both games of a doubleheader at Monroe, La., winning the first in 10 innings, 4-3, and the second, 6-1.

New Brighton, Beaver Falls, Beaver, Koppel, Ambridge and Ellwood City were admitted to the Beaver County League at a meeting held yesterday in Ambridge.

VETERANS SPUR FIGHT AGAINST LEAGUE

Veterans' organizations from all parts of Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania continued today to send in signatures to petitions being circulated by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers, protesting any movement which might force this country into the League of Nations and the World Court.

S. Wesley Hawlings, adjutant of the Hood Vanatt Post No. 307, American Legion, of New Florence, Pa., writes and informs the Sun-Telegraph that the members of the post have gone on record indorsing the movement started by the Sun-Telegraph and the Hearst papers. In addition he sent in a petition bearing the signatures of nearly all the post members.

LAUDS CAMPAIGN

From Cleveland Elmer J. Joyce, commander of the Frank F. Dugan Post No. 2133, Veterans of Foreign Wars, writes that his post has completed petition and has sent it to the Sun-Telegraph. George A. Seddon, of the Harry L. Greenwood Post, American Legion, Philadelphia, also sends in a petition bearing the names of many of his comrades. Seddon writes:

"We thank you for the privilege you have extended us by letting us fill out one of the petitions against participation in the League of Nations and World Court. Please send us a few more petitions."

Frank J. Salmon, commander District No. 3-B, Department of Pennsylvania, Veterans of Foreign Wars, writes in, enclosing a long list of signatures. In his letter, he stated:

"Enclosed please find petition to the Congress of the United States. Please be advised it has been a pleasure to help in this cause. If I can be of further service please do not hesitate to let me know."

PETITIONS POUR IN

Scores of other petitions are being received from patriotic groups. Individuals also are acting as volunteer workers, circulating petitions among their neighbors and friends. Charles L. Bier, of 207 Briggs street, South Hills, sent in a petition more than four feet long. It bore the signatures of more than 150 neighbors from the Saw Mill Run boulevard district.

Any individual interested in the movement can become a volunteer worker. Petitions may be obtained from the League Court Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh. How about you? Have you signed a petition yet? Are you willing to stand by and see propagandists force this nation into new foreign entanglements which might bring about another war with American troops fighting on foreign soil? If you wish to prevent entrance of the United States into the League, you can do your part by signing a petition and circulating petitions among your friends.

By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Review of Reviews

It is a truism that the cost of government in the United States—local, state and federal—has increased during the last generation much more rapidly than the national income, with the result that the relation between tax payments and total income has changed appreciably in this period.

It does not necessarily follow that the burden of government today is greater than it was a quarter of a century ago. If we apply to the nation the theory of progressive taxation which the federal income tax law applies to individuals, it becomes entirely possible that a nation with an income of $85,000,000,000 can afford to pay annual taxes of $15,000,000,000 as easily, at least, as a nation with an income of $30,000,000,000 can pay a tax of $5,000,000,000. In other words, the nation as an individual "enjoys" an increase in capacity to bear burdens in relation to its income as that income mounts beyond the subsistence level. This argument was good in 1929, but not so good in 1933 and 1934.

The chart shows the per capita cost of local governments in 1904-1931, and breaks those costs down into the principal purposes for which they are incurred. It may be noted that our local governments, in spite of the prodigious increase in debt, nevertheless devoted a smaller portion of their total income to the service of that debt and to other capital purposes in 1931 than they did in 1904. The respective figures are 35.7 per cent for 1931 and 43.9 per cent for 1904.

Another surprising change, entirely contrary to what might ordinarily have been expected, is the decline in the relative importance of highway expenditures. In 1904, when the crude forebears of the American automobile were just polluting the pure country air, our local governments were devoting 6.9 per cent of their budgets to highways, whereas in 1931 they spent 4.85 per cent of their income on roads.

However, a definite increase, absolutely and relatively, has taken place in the expenditures for education. In 1904, 17.3 per cent of local government costs were incurred for the same purpose. The cost of protection remains relatively the same.

Statistics on local government finances have always been the despair of statisticians, because governments in this matter are insistently individualistic, with the result that it becomes extremely difficult to compare the costs of "Four Corners" with those of Kalamazoo. This independence in accounting is now being subjected to pressure from the federal government.

As a result of the financing of local costs by the PWA, Uncle Sam insists upon adequate and uniform accounting information. If Uncle Sam remains in the investment business long enough it may be that our various local governments will eventually issue financial information which will be reasonably intelligible.

BUSINESS CURVE MOVES SLOWLY UPWARD

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, April 22.—Amidst political heresy hunting, on the one hand, and radicalism, on the other, the statistical curve of business continues to move steadily, if undramatically, upward.

Mr. Rukeyser

Progress has been made in spite of labor unrest — natural and pulmotored alike. The upturn is supported by an improvement in employment and payrolls, reflecting a combination of spontaneous economic convalescence and artificial stimulus from governmental spending.

Automobile production has been active in April, and has been a factor in expanding steel orders. The effect of higher prices for steel was to induce covering of requirements, and the barometric steel industry climbed above 50 per cent of theoretical capacity.

The level headed members of the administration are primarily concerned with re-employment. Recently seasonal tendencies have been favorable. In March factory employment was restored to the level prevailing in December, 1930, and payrolls were brought to the status of August, 1931. As compared with February, there was a 4 per cent increase in factory employment in March and a 6 per cent rise in payrolls. The Department of Labor figures that manufacturers have absorbed two and three-quarter million workers more than a year ago, and that there has been a $79,000,000 pick-up in weekly wages. Since March there have been numerous wage increases.

INTERPRET WAGE INCREASES

Of course, these wage increases must be interpreted in the light of currency revaluation, which tended to reduce the purchasing power of existing wages. Accordingly, the nominal subsequent wage increases are in reality restoration of invisible wage cuts incidental to the new monetary policy.

As a matter of fact, all comparative statistics nowadays should be carefully modified to allow for monetary changes, shifts in seasonal trends, and also for changes in methods of gathering statistics. Unless this is done, statistics will be something like they were in Mark Twain's day. Mark Twain, it will be recalled, once remarked that there are three kinds of lies, namely, lies, damned lies, and statistics.

As government spending tapers off, in accordance with the President's budgetary program, gross volume of business and employment could be sustained and expanded, it is believed, if genuine economic balance were restored through a further relative rise in farm prices.

GOVERNMENT CAN HELP

If government policy were centered on attaining such an equilibrium, rather than on irrelevant reforms and punitive measures, business, now moving haltingly and irregularly forward, would gain more confidence and assurance.

The political pin-pricks have kept executives and investors uncertain. Nothing would cheer the prosperity-makers like an announcement of a sensible political slate for the next year or two.

Likewise, the action of the British exchequer in announcing a decrease in the income tax stands in sharp contrast to the attempt of the United States Senate to boost rates. At a time when business is in need of working capital, it seems imprudent to bleed it white with excessive taxation. At this stage, it would be more helpful to recovery to bear a larger share of necessary expenditures through borrowing, rather than from taxation.

UNION PACIFIC CUTS DEBT

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP.)—The Union Pacific Railroad Company's funded debt was reduced $7,229,495 last year by retirement of equipment trusts, according to the road's 1933 pamphlet report issued today. As of December 31, last funded debt outstanding was $348,192,215 against $355,421,710 at the close of the previous year.

The company's equipment trust holdings in nonaffiliated systems decreased $2,364,618, and the total face value of holdings of bonds, notes and equipment trust of other than affiliated companies was $75,348,764 at the end of 1933 compared with $77,713,382 at the close of 1932.

As shown in the preliminary statement Union Pacific had 1933 net income of $21,578,196, equivalent after dividends on the preferred stock to $7.92 a share on the common against $20,634,888 or $7.49 a share in 1932.

ADVERTISING VOLUME UP

NEW YORK, April 23.—Advertising volume in March not only maintained but surpassed the record of gains which have been recorded during the past nine months, Advertising Age reports. Newspaper advertising in 77 cities last month totaled 144,451,000 lines, a gain of 30 per cent over the corresponding month of 1933.

Automotive advertising continued to lead the way with a smashing increase of 141.7 per cent. The total for March, 1934, was 8,261,796 lines, while a year ago it was 3,418,000 lines. Other general advertising gained 37.7 per cent, rising to 27,480,000 lines. Store sales increases were reflected in a jump of 21,268,000 lines in retail advertising to 84,717,000, a gain of 33.5 per cent.

Financial advertising, which has been showing losses almost joined the procession of increases with a gain of 5.6 per cent, going to 3,006,000 lines, and classified, another division which has been showing minus signs, emerged with a gain of 8.5 per cent for March. The total was 20,367,000 lines, against 18,867,000 lines for last year.

Magazine advertising is also sharing in the increases, Advertising Age reports. March figures for 84 publications were up 34 per cent, totaling 1,449,000 lines as compared with 1,083,000 a year ago.

Wheeling Steel's Bookings Expand

The Wheeling Steel Company is operating at 80 per cent of capacity and present prospects are that this rate will be maintained throughout the second quarter, due to heavy bookings placed in the past several weeks.

The company's net loss for the first quarter will be in the neighborhood of $58,000. Losses in the first two months of the year were nearly offset in March.

Cotton Consumption Increased in March

NEW YORK, April 23.—World consumption of American cotton in March had a slightly larger than seasonal gain over February, says the New York Cotton Exchange Service. The total was 1,177,000 bales against 1,089,000 the previous month and 1,201,000 in March, 1931.

Steel Pipe Price Raised $7 a Ton

NEW YORK, April 23.—According to schedules filed with the American Iron and Steel Institute, new base prices for standard and line pipe have been filed, effective April 27, at Lorain, O. The new minimum basing discount filings represent an advance increase of about $7 a ton.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, April 23. The market was due ⅜ to 1c higher, opened unchanged to ⅛c lower, and at 1:20 p. m. was off ⅛ to ⅜c.

MORGAN WINS OVER CURRY

The Morgan Soccer Club defeated Curry in a regular Keystone League game, 2 to 1, at Morgan yesterday afternoon. Morgan scored first through Fiorentini and a little later, Buff Donnelli, who was making his last appearance on local soccer before leaving with the American team for Italy, tied the count. Pete Dresmich, however, gave the home team the lead with a good shot. It was one of the best games of the season. The lineup:

BARTO MATCH DELAYS CARD

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Amateur bouts at McKeesport Palisades arena.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Bunny Buntach, manager of Barto, thinks Mike rates a good spot off that performance and he is holding out against accepting Matchmaker Lew Raymond's proffer of a match for Mike with Johnny Durso, whom he has fought three times already.

JACK CURLEY HONORED

TRAYNOR LOST TO PIRATES

event that Traynor is missing and that eventuality is conceded. Paul Waner and Fred Lindstrom will change positions in the Pirate order if Manager Frisch uses a southpaw pitcher against the Freebooters. The home boys expect to face Bill Hallahan or Bill Walker. In such a case, Gibby will break up a succession of left-hand swingers which would arise were Lindy to bat second.

Gibson qualified his previously announced slab plans for the jumpoff battle at the Oakland orchard. Heinie Meine or Burkofer will pitch the opener with the dope favoring Meine. Birky's success against the Redbirds in their own coop makes him a possible starter. Gibson may not make a definite choice on the question until tomorrow.

Traynor's reliable understudy came through with a fly that scored the winning run in yesterday's moist frolic. Thevenow drove a fly to Hafey to score Gus Suhr, who had opened the round with a highly important walk coaxed from Joe Shaute.

Cookie Lavagetto deserves much praise for his part of the winning marker, for it was Cookie who drove it half of the distance. The Italian kid tried twice to sacrifice and, failing, he singled over Piet's head as Suhr took third. Gus had to carry the mail to score as Hafey is one one of the best throwers in the league and he put a lot on the ball after taking Thevenow's fly.

Larry French gave a loose mound exhibition and was relieved with two out in the sixth. Hal Smith carried on like a champion and received credit for the victory. Hal yielded but one hit.

The Buccos shelled Si Johnson off the slab in a jiffy. L. Waner's single was the signal for a four-run drive that produced five hits. Larry Benton relieved the kid in the midst of the offensive. Lombardi batted for Benton in the second and Shaute came in to work six runless rounds before Suhr broke through with his run.

The Reds reached French for three hits and run in the second and they added two more in the fourth on three more blows. They had tied the score in the sixth with a four-run drive when French made way for Smith.

Chillysauce

Winning three of their five engagements in the first week of the National League race, the Pirates are in a good spot in view of the 22 home battles facing them. The stab performances of French, Meine and Swift have not been encouraging, but there is cause for satisfaction in the work of Bickuter and Smith, and Gibson is convinced the hurlers mentioned, together with Red Lucas, will come through.

Tony Piet was credited with 21 chances without a slip in the two-game series of the Pirates and Reds. Tony could almost shake hands with Jim Bottomley in a few assists and other times he flung out old buddies from behind second. He got over the ground like a dancing master.

Manager Gabby Hartnett and the fighting Irish catcher Gabby Keenen for one, are both sensitive souls, some of which were of the handle variety. Larry has had a time of it despite his failure in bruising two starts.

Lloyd Waner got himself doubled up at second in the second inning. Lloyd was on first with one out when Lindstrom put up the hit and run. The centerfielder got a running start as Lindy pulled a lazy fly to short left. Lloyd had reached second as Comorofsky closed in on the ball. The little outfielder sprinted back to first but it was said he failed to observe the necessary formality of touching the bag on the return journey. Bottomley took Conroy's throw and then pranced to second to touch the bag. Umpire Pfirman allowed the double play.

After the game was over Lloyd claimed he did not overlook second base. He says he was on the bag as Comorofsky made the catch and then hurried back to first. But the umps, as usual, won the decision.

THE GAME OF SOFTBALL —What It's All About—

This is the third installment of a series on the rules of softball being published in connection with a district amateur tournament which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will conduct this summer, the winner of which will represent Pittsburgh in the national tournament in Chicago in September. Players are urged to clip and preserve the series.

RULE 4—TEAMS, PLAYERS AND SUBSTITUTES.

1—Ten players shall constitute a team. They shall be designated as first baseman, second baseman, shortstop, third baseman, left fielder, right fielder, center fielder, short fielder, pitcher and catcher. They may occupy any positions on fair ground which they consider most effective, except the catcher and the pitcher. The pitcher must occupy the position specified in the pitching rules while in the act of delivering the ball, and the catcher must remain within the boundaries of the catcher's box while receiving the pitch.

3—A player who has been removed from the game shall not return thereafter, but, by agreement of the opposing captain, a player who has left the game, or a player not in the game, may run for an injured player without removing the latter from the game.

4—The umpire must immediately be notified whenever a substitution for a batsman, fielder or base-runner has been made, and he in turn must notify the official scorer.

5—When a pitcher has been announced to start the game or to substitute for another pitcher, he must pitch until the first batsman to face him has either been put out or has reached first base, or the side has been retired.

6—A substitute will be considered in the game when he is announced by the umpire, or if no announcement is made, (a) if a pitcher, when he takes his place on the pitcher's plate; (b) if a batter, when he takes his place in the batsman's box; (c) if a fielder, when he takes the place of the fielder substituted for; (d) if a runner, when the substitute replaces the man on the base he is holding.

Tomorrow: The Batting Order.

ROSEN BOUT SET

STOCKS DRIFT IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP.)—Diffident financial markets were inclined to drift indecisively today as traders and investors generally waited for news of a more stimulating character.

Word that the Treasury would export gold if necessary in order to maintain the new parity of the dollar brought a recovery of the American unit in foreign exchange centers. Wheat dropped more than a cent a bushel, but got back most of this loss. Cotton and silver dropped. Rubber futures, on the other hand, edged up to new tops since 1930 as more reports were heard of imminent restrictive measures abroad. Bonds were irregular.

A few preferred stocks and specialties stepped out for sizeable advances. The Warren convertible issue got up 4, and Pressed Steel Car and Mallison Silk preferred were about 3 points each higher. Clark Equipment, Murray Body and Briggs Manufacturing were active and firm. Union Pacific, American Telephone and Southern Pacific were fractionally to around a point better. Santa Fe lost a point, however, and most of the other rails were easier. Auburn, Chrysler, General Motors and Nash sagged. United States Industrial Alcohol lost 2 and the remainder of the alcohol group was mildly reactionary. The metals and aircrafts were mixed and the utilities dull.

The labor situation was again to the fore with strikes at the Fisher Body Company's plant at Cleveland and at both the Fisher and Chevrolet subsidiary plants at St. Louis. There was some discouraged selling of various motor stocks as a result of the new threats toward high production levels.

Followers of the rails were a little nervous because of the apparent breakdown of negotiations in the carrier wage controversy and the possibility that a walkout of the unions might be called unless some compromise is reached before the existing reduced pay agreement expires on July 1.

Speculators in silver seemed to have little hope that Congress would be able to pass a mandatory remonetization bill over the President's veto, notthwithstanding the vote of the Senate silver bloc, and it was generally conceded that only some sort of "permissive" legislation was probable at this session.

Just what, if anything, the administration will do to stem the ebbing tide of grain prices, was a matter of much discussion in the financial sector. The drop in commodities was believed to have furnished new ammunition for the Washington inflationists, but it was not thought their strength would be sufficient to overcome presidential opposition to any further currency expansion at this time.

Some of the selling in the alcohols was attributed to rumors that new stock issues were being considered by a few of the companies. Profits were also expected to be shaded by lower liquor prices which, it was believed, the government would advocate in order to discourage bootlegging.

Corporate Earnings

Hudson Motor Car Company's report for year 1933 shows net loss of $4,409,920 after charges and depreciation, which compares with net loss of $8,459,982 in 1932.

General Baking Company reports net profit of $426,665 for the 13 weeks ended March 31 compared with $424,543 in the corresponding period of 1933.

Commercial Credit Company consolidated net income for the first quarter was $1,085,985.63 after all charges and reserves for Federal taxes, equal to 76 cents a share on the common stock. This compares with consolidated net income of $2,200,745.66 for the six months and $3,107,150.54 for the nine months ended March 31, 1934, respectively.

Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation reports for the first quarter ended March 31, 1934, net income, after all charges, of $4,327,976.47, equal to 48.20 cents a share on 9,000,743 shares. This compares with 18.42 cents a share in the first quarter of 1933, and 22.01 cents a share in the first quarter of 1932.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation report for the March quarter shows net profit of $69,350 after all charges, but before federal income tax, equal to 4c per share. This compares with a net loss of $203,925 in the first quarter of the preceding year. Based on quarterly reports, indicated net profit for the fourth quarter of last year was $39,596. The report for the calendar year 1931 showed net loss of $143,700, comparing with net loss of $799,680 for 1932.

Brunswick-Balke Collender Company reports profit of $14,552.15 for the first three months of 1934 as compared with a loss of $186,548.79 for the same period in 1933.

Walgreen Company semi-annual statement disclosed net earnings for the six months ended March 31 of $1,085,196, equal to approximately $1.25 a share on the common stock. Last year, the company earned $522,152, or 51 cents a share, in the corresponding period.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. reports March quarter net equal to 90c a share on the average common outstanding during the period, against 35c a share in the first quarter of 1933.

Mathieson Alkali Works report for the March quarter shows net income of $277,627 after depreciation, depletion, federal taxes, etc., equal to 38 cents a share on the common. This compares with net of $172,841 or 21 cents a share in the first quarter 1933.

Standard Oil Company of Kansas reports net profit of $131,609 for the March quarter, after charges, equal to 88 cents a share, compared with net loss of $271,134 in the first quarter of 1933.

Twin City Rapid Transit Company had net income of $256,680 in the quarter ended March 31, equal after allowing for dividend requirements on the 7 per cent preferred stock on which there are accruals to 93 cents a common share. This contrasts with net loss of $20,964 a year ago.

Packard Motor Company reports net loss for the first quarter of $1,257,021 after charges, compared with net loss of $1,131,823 in the first quarter of 1933.

Proctor & Gamble Company reports for the quarter ended March 31 earnings of $4,033,841, equivalent to 59 cents a share on the common stock, against $2,[illegible] or 39 cents a share in the previous quarter and $2,151,052, or 34 cents a share for the March quarter last year.

World Now On Wave of Recovery

By B. C. FORBES

A WAVE of recovery is rising throughout the world.

IT IS RISING in countries which have not introduced revolutionary experiments quite as pronouncedly as in our own country, where there have been resort to expedients not remotely envisaged by our forefathers who gave the land its Constitution.

Mr. Forbes

THE TRUTH is that business and financial sentiment lately has been helped here by intimations from Washington that few or no revolutionary new expedients are to be promulgated.

The prevailing feeling throughout the business world is that conditions now are such that improvement will materialize if natural forces are not unduly interfered with by politicians or bureaucrats.

MOST, but not all, latest developments are encouraging.

NOTWITHSTANDING serious recession in wheat prices, precipitated at least partly by bearish predictions offered by our Secretary of Agriculture—to the effect that time is approaching when domestic quotations will more nearly approach the level of foreign quotations—the security markets exhibited impressive resiliency. Average quotations for stocks closed the week appreciably higher, and bonds climbed to new heights since the depression sent them to abnormally low depths. Dividend news helped.

THE INDUSTRIAL trend continues upward.

Employers are heartened by indications that NRA officials have decided to become less bellicose. Instead of bellowing at fillers of pay envelopes, Gen. Johnson is now pleading for co-operation; he has awakened to the realization that unless he can win public approval for his policies, they cannot possibly succeed.

ADMITTEDLY, the new cheerfulness in influential circles is based more on hopefulness than on actualities.

It is now assumed that no ruinous legislation against stock exchanges will be enacted; it is assumed that the securities act, which has paralyzed capital-raising, will be acceptably modified; it is assumed that President Roosevelt plans to swerve toward the center; it is assumed that Congress intends to rub business the right way rather than the wrong way, to encourage enterprise rather than unnerve it by ultra-radical innovations and restrictions.

Whether these hopes will be fulfilled is not yet certain. Within the next few weeks the die will be definitely cast.

AT THE WEEK END there was lively discussion of the prospect of gold exports from America to Europe. No nervousness need be suffered on this score. We could part with a considerable quantity of gold without injuring our economic status one iota. It is entirely improbable that gold shipments will reach undesirable volume.

Meanwhile, money rates here continue to rule extraordinarily low. Also, there has become manifest increased tendency to find profitable employment for idle funds; in addition to overflowing demand for all government security offerings, there is plainly evident purchasing of bonds, both gilt edge and also second grade and also absorption of stocks of sound companies at the low prices ruling.

The difference between the income obtainable from money rented out in Wall street and from money invested in bonds and preferred stocks is most striking. Day-to-day as well as longer term loans in Wall street yield not more than 1 per cent, whereas bonds yield anywhere from 4 to 7 per cent and even more in many instances, while preferred stocks of well known companies are purchasable to yield 6 to upwards of 10 percent.

Manifestly, any pronounced strengthening of confidence in our economic outlook would greatly broaden the demand for high-yielding securities and bring about a reduction in the yield—that is, a rise in price.

INCIDENTALLY, many thoughtful students of financial history are predicting that, before the colossal debt now being incurred by the government can be met, recourse will have to be had to further inflation.

New Well in Texas Starts Acreage Boom

HOUSTON, Tex., April 23.—The oil showing in the Atkins & O'Neill well No. 1 Welder, a wildcat operation in San Patricio County, has developed a lively scramble for acreage in that section. One of the larger transactions reported is that of Humble Oil and Refining Company, which is understood to have purchased a block of 7,000 acres adjoining the Atkins-O'Neill tract.

Wholesale Prices Recede Slightly

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The wholesale commodity index of the National Fertilizer Association for the week ended April 21 stands at 70.7, or a decline of 4 fractional points from the week preceding.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LI.

She stepped from Bill, trembling and breathless with his precipitous greeting. She pushed back her hair and regarded him with blinking, astonished eyes.

"What's the matter, Pippin?"

"Nothing. I wasn't expecting a whirlwind. You rather swept me off my feet."

He faced her, resting one elbow on the table and smiling. "I've been waiting years for this meeting. You can't blame me for being a bit eager! Are you glad to see me, Pippin?"

She answered slowly, surveying him: "Yes, I am."

He was tanned, blond hair slicked back a blithe, outdoor look about him. Yet changed—greatly changed. The lines of his face strengthened; an assurance about him, a kind of happy audacity that intrigued while it nettled her. He was not the humble, adoring boy lover Pippin had dismissed so lightly from her thoughts two and a half years ago. He was a man, conscious of his power and this, of course, heightened it.

"Well," said he watching her closely, "do I get by?"

She said, a little awed: "I don't think I know you. You're not the same."

"I'm 25 years old, Pippin. I've seen a lot of the world. I've been in all sorts of tight places and managed to get by. I suppose experience changes a person, but I'm just the same underneath."

He kept his eyes on Pippin's face. "You're changed, too. You look a little sad. I wonder why?"

Pippin Uneasy

She gave a soft, nervous laugh: "I just cultivate that haunting lure, Bill. Or is this your cute way of saying I'm looking pinched and tired? You came dashing in, not giving me a chance to dab on the powder or get ready for the great homecoming."

She felt uneasy. Bill had so much poise; he looked at her with confidence and smiled.

"How long do you have to stay here working?"

"I don't have to stay at all."

"You haven't got a date for this afternoon or this evening, have you?" He went on, not giving her a chance to answer: "Because if you have, you're going to break it. Let's go somewhere, and take a cup of kindness now for auld lang syne."

"You're so breezy, Bill!"

"Just happy to find you free. I wanted to surprise you. When it was too late I began to worry—I might miss you. But here you are. It's a good omen."

They went to the St. Francis. They danced. They sat a long while over their coffee and talked.

"It's not misgiving, Bill. I'm trying to figure out what's so different about you."

"It's just age, Pippin, and experience and the thrill and excitement of flying. Are you going to let me take you up in my plane?"

"Have you got a plane already, Bill? Do they let you do that in the navy?"

"I have a leave of absence and can do as I please. I may resign, Pippin, but that depends on a number of things. I remember that once you said you'd love to fly a plane. It's the most thrilling career in the world today. I'll teach you."

Tells of Adventures

Bill had been to Honolulu and to Japan. He told her of the geisha girls and their lovely dancing and that Japanese women were attractive and wistful like Cio Cio San in "Madam Butterfly." He told exciting incidents that happened in the aviation training school. Once when he went up with an older man the engine stalled; they had to make a parachute jump. It was rather frightening at first but in a little while you got so used to it, jumping was scarcely more of a thrill than walking down stairs. He wanted to know what Pippin had done, what her plans were. He asked cautious questions about Gregg, but he didn't mention Kevin's name.

"Tell me more about Japan," Pippin urged. "I do think it's nice to be a man. You can have so many adventures and see so many sides of life."

"Can't you have adventures, Pippin? You haven't floated down Venetian streams in a gay gondola with the dark stranger singing love songs, have you?"

"I still have time, Bill."

He said with a laugh: "It doesn't take long to hop around the world in an airplane. We can stop here and there and let you acquire that past you once thought so necessary."

Pippin laughed. There was a colored abounding vitality about him that intrigued her vastly—a gay serene arrogance. She was glad he asked her to dinner and they would dance afterwards.

Remembers Kevin

As she fastened a band of sapphires in her hair she remembered Kevin had touched the stones. He said: "The same color," and looked in her eyes.

Her hands trembled; the stones tangled; she pulled out a dozen hairs. She leaned against the bureau spent. "Why should I think of him? I'll not think of him!"

Bill looked very dashing. He wore his clothes well and the black and white of his evening dress heightened his sunny color. When they were sitting at dinner he gave Pippin a pleased appraisal.

"Do you remember the night we met, Pippin? You wore green and some kind of flimsy ornament that made your hair red. You were only a little girl, I suppose, but I fell in love with you."

"Yes, but you made me wait a long time for that first kiss."

"Are you annoyed with me, Pippin? I don't think I meant to be so headlong. But I've been longing to see you. I've been nervous about it. Suppose you had completely changed? You might even have been married. So much can happen in a short while."

He didn't take his eyes from her face. It made her nervous, until she realized that he also was uncertain—of her, of himself and of his feeling. He kept going back to their previous meetings as though he were trying to recapture something half lost.

Now he said, musing: "You thought people had to be very well acquainted before they might kiss. You were very innocent. You still are, aren't you, Pippin?"

Like Old Self

"Do you want me to confess, Bill?"

"Heavens, no! Confession is the unpardonable weakness. One should at least bear his sins alone." He laughed and added frankly: "I'm just trying to get you placed. Down there at college four years—an eager person like you would be engaged two or three times or elope. You've been in love, Pippin?"

"All my life. First it was the grocery boy who brought me chocolate wafers; then the man who taught us music and it thrilled me to the marrow when he sang 'Die Lorelei.'"

"I mean now. Are you engaged or pledged to anyone, Pippin?"

She gave a sudden, bubbling laugh: "Can you believe it, Bill—there are at least 2,000 men among my personal acquaintances who haven't even asked me. Indeed I can count on less than one hand the bona-fide proposals I've had."

"Now you sound like yourself, Pippin—gay, audacious—the way I remember you. You never sent me the picture I asked for. But no picture would look like you. It's your color and the light of your hair that makes you different from other girls. I like it fluttering better than all smoothed back the way you have it now. You haven't answered my question. Don't you want to answer it?"

"I'm not engaged. I'm not pledged. I'm not thinking of marriage. I've worked hard at college. I intend to have a few years of peace and freedom."

He gave a happy laugh: "That's all I want to know. Let's dance."

Bill Makes Love

As he led her down the floor he whispered: "Now I feel at home. It's a grand world for a sailor when miracles like this happen!"

When they were driving home, Bill parked the car on the corner of Broadway and Divisadero where the land drops abruptly to the north and east. Stars streamed with wanton brilliance across a vast, limitless sky. The hills fell away; they were dark purple shadows painted low in the far background of the night. Just above Alcatraz went a lighted cloud as though one twirled gaily a shawl of flame. He made her comfortable with his arms about her.

Then he said: "Pippin, will you please take that thing out of your hair?"

She started to obey: "But why? It will all blow."

"It should blow. There, now you look right! Not so far away."

"No, please!"

"You won't let me kiss you? Why? You've surely kissed fellows at college. Should you treat me like this? I've been thinking of you for two years. I remember everything you said. I also remember things I said."

"Not that much of a boy!"

"Well—there it is, it isn't one F—or two. It's that I don't want anything serious."

"Oh! You mean you don't want to lead me along? But you're not engaged? Then listen, Pippin. I'll take the kiss and its chances with it."

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate. Vivian's love affair with Sherry wanes. Vivian disappears and sends a suicide note. Kevin returns. Edward's family and Pippin disapprove of his choice of a bride. Kevin kisses Pippin while on skiing party. Kevin disappoints Pippin, but saves a man's life.

SIGNING THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE—THE SPIRIT OF '76

The news of hiring troops from German Princes of Hesse, Anhalt, and Brunswick by King George III to suppress the rising colonies, the burning of Falmouth, Me., by the British (1775), the publication of "Common Sense" by Thomas Paine (an English emigrant) cleared public opinion of its inconsistence concerning loyalty to the King and English Parliament. Encouraged also by the evacuation of Boston by the British, who made Halifax, Nova Scotia, their base, the Continental Congress declared the royal authority in the colonies ceased (May 15, 1776). The colonies now started to adopt constitutions as independent states.

A committee of the Congress consisting of Benj. Franklin, Thos. Jefferson, John Adams, R. R. Livingston and Roger Sherman, drafted the Declaration of Independence, which was proclaimed on July 4, 1776. It is based upon equality of men, states that governments' powers are derived from the consent of the governed. (U. S. History)

CAESAR'S LANDING IN BRITAIN—HIS CONQUESTS—END OF TRIUMVIRATE

Julius Caesar's military record, eloquency and wealth, backed with that of Crassus, won his election as consul 59 B. C. Together with Pompey and Crassus, the Triumvirate, now ruled Rome.

In 58 B. C. Caesar started his northern campaign, conquering the lands of today's France, Belgium and Holland, even invading Britain (above). Crassus, ambitious to increase the lands allotted to him in Asia, attacked the Parthian empire and fell (53 B. C.). Pompey again joined the Senate; this commanded Caesar to return, disband his legions and present himself as a private citizen before the election to consulship. Caesar agreed to comply if Pompey would do the same. The latter refusing, Caesar led his army toward Rome. "Alea jacta est" (the die is cast) exclaimed Caesar when crossing the Rubicon. Pompey fled to Greece leaving Caesar master of Italy.

LAUE DIAGRAM—PROOF OF SPACE LATTICE STRUCTURE OF CRYSTALS

From the deflection pattern it is possible to calculate the distance between the rows of particles in crystals. Dr. Laue received the Nobel prize for his important discovery (1914).

INFANCY OF AERONAUTICS

The first step to lift man into air was accomplished by the balloon, the second, not less important, was to propel and control the lighter-than-air craft. Henry Giffard, French engineer, designed a cigar-shaped airship, filled with coal gas, equipped with a light steam engine (100 lbs. weight, 5 h.p.). He couldn't make a circular flight. This was achieved by Alberto Santos Dumont, a Brazilian, who circled around the Eiffel Tower, Paris, winning a £4,000 prize (1901).

PASTEURIZING MILK PREVENTS INFECTION

Milk may contain disease-producing bacteria from a sick cow, unsanitary handling or by contamination by polluted water, such as tuberculosis, typhoid fever, anthrax, foot and mouth disease, rabies, diphtheria, disentery, etc. Pasteurizing (heating to 145-160° F. for half hour) kills most of the injurious bacteria while boiling heat (sterilization) destroys also enzymes, which are beneficial. FLAT WORMS AND ROUND WORMS

Flat worms (platyhelminthes) form the fifth phylum of the animal kingdom and the round worms (nemathelminthes) the sixth. Many of them are parasitic, attacking animals and man. The tapeworms (cestoda) belong to the flat worms. They attach themseles to the intestines of man by hooks and suckers of their head (scolex); their body consists of segments (proglottids) provided each with reproductive organs, producing fertilized eggs, expelled by the host. These, eaten by animals, develop into oval cysterici, imbedded in the muscles. By eating infected meat or other food, man acquires the tape worm (above a species).

The trichinella spiralis and the hook worm are two dangerous species of the round worms. Infection by the former occurs by eating infected pork, by the latter also through skin when tiny eggs pass into blood and are carried to heart, lungs, etc. Avoid food not well cooked, handling pets and contact with polluted soil and water. 61-III-B

The Doctor Looks at Politics

How far should we go in rapping the opposition? We are divided into two tremendous political organizations busy cracking down on each other.

If a Democrat does something good the Republicans howl to the high mezzanines. If a Republican has a bright idea the Democrats yodel him down. Yet, both sides have good men who are stubborn patriots and first-run politicians.

Should we merge both parties into one grand, unanimous organization? Can we elect our executives by sound waves rippling from the voice of the people?

That's how George Washington made the grade. How did it work? Several years later they accused George of trying to be king.

One organization split into two through the simple process of fermentation within the party. If this condition is allowed to become chronic it results in more intricate glacial upheavals. Soon the warm water of the political gulf stream is full of small, independeng icebergs at the mercy of minority tides and fusion breezes.

Every question has two sides. With a wrong answer for each one. The simplest example is the query, "Have you stopped beating your wife?" Answer yes or no.

So, it looks as if we must continue to listen to Republicans rapping Democrats and to the Democrats taking their turn at the drums. The only consolation we have is that no statesman is as bad as his opponent claims.

It can't be quite so bad as pictured and oralized. We have heard thousands of reformers pointing with alarm, but not one has yet died of fright.

When you hear a man denouncing the current local administration you can be sure that he is thinking it is nice work if he can get it for himself.

The way we clean house in America is by painting our own names on the glass door.

Save the Training Camps!

The future of the citizens military training camps is hanging in the balance.

At the instigation of Congressman Collins, of Mississippi, the House, upon the hypocritical plea of economy, reduced to less than a million dollars the annual appropriation for the support of the citizens military training camps.

This amount would barely suffice to train one out of seven who will apply for training from each of the 435 Congressional districts into which continental United States is divided.

Instead of training at least 40,000 young Americans with the patriotic initiative to enroll in these splendid schools of citizenship, the House appropriation would permit the training of only 14,000 of the more than 100,000 who will volunteer for this training.

When the War Department appropriation bill reached the Senate, the House appropriation for the training camps was increased to $2,600,000—an amount sufficient to train 37,500.

Unquestionably, the Senate represents the true sentiment of the American people in appropriating for the training of at least 40,000 young citizens with the colors.

It is an incomprehensible policy to spend as much money as the federal government does spend, recklessly and upon unimproved projects, and at the same time to cut down legitimate expenditures for the support of such useful agencies as the citizens military training camps have proved themselves to be.

These splendid schools of citizenship have always rendered great service to the nation, and the service they are so well-equipped to render would be doubly valuable now.

A great many young men in every state in the Union are somewhat demoralized by the difficulties they have encountered in these years of depression. The training camps offer opportunities that would strengthen their patriotism, improve them mentally and physically, and enable them to make themselves more useful and more loyal citizens.

If the citizens military training camps had never been established, now would be the time to inaugurate them.

But we have had them for years. They have proved their value.

The enhanced value to the nation at this time of the citizens military training camps is so obvious that Congress should not hesitate to provide, out of the vast appropriations it is voting for various and sundry purposes, the comparatively small sum of money necessary to maintain and expand this typically American system of training with the colors for national citizenship.

No Coercion of Payroll

The right of every American citizen to vote as he chooses is inalienable. It is the right of public employes as well as of other citizens; yet it has been the custom for the politicians to whom the men on the city payroll owe their jobs to dictate to them for whom they shall vote. For that reason Mayor W. N. McNair's strong stand against any coercion of the payroll in the forthcoming primary is refreshing.

Taking cognizance of reports that various city employes are being ordered to attend political meetings and support certain candidates under threat of dismissal, the Mayor, in a letter to Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith serves notice that such orders are without his authority and can be totally disregarded.

He declares further that "no city employe is permitted to ask political contributions from another."

Other executives have sometimes taken a similar stand without being very much in earnest about it. But Mayor McNair's statement gives the impression that he means everything that he says, and it does him credit.

'Bootlegging Increasing'

Violation of Liquor Laws Should Be Treated As a Criminal Offense.

Commander John D. Pennington, who for some years was prohibition administrator in this district, said while attending the Women's Christian Temperance Union convention in Pittsburgh last week, that "bootlegging is on the increase." Pennington should know.

This remark probably will be capitalized by those who favor the replacement of the state liquor stores with the old system of private ownership of such stores. It will also be capitalized by those who say the prices in the state liquor stores are too high. Both groups profess to see in bootlegging a reason for the changes that they advocate.

It is not to be forgotten that speakeasies were far from uncommon under the Brooks Law, when the liquor business was in private hands.

And in view of the rather modest profits reported by the State Liquor Control Board the charge that prices are exhorbitant, if true, reflects not against the Commonwealth but against the distillers from whom the Commonwealth buys its liquor.

There is reason to believe that the liquor sold by the bootleggers is to a large extent liquor which has been smuggled into the State from Canada or from rum ships off the New Jersey coast and on which no government taxes or import duties have been paid.

The remedy lies in a more careful watch for smugglers and in treating violation of the liquor laws not as a trivial matter but as a criminal offense.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 23.—Diary: Up and rode with my wife to Coney Island, breakfasting at a quaint inn along the shore, watching the birds and fishermen and I thought many men these days had no more of an address than a gull. So back to my city's tirra-tiddles and to my adventuring in words.

In the late afternoon to Rosamond Pinchot's tea to Miriam Hopkins, talking to Nancy Hoyt, Cobina Wright, Buford Lorimer and Gloria Braggiotti. Later dropping Charles Hanson Towne and Charles G. Shaw at their respective chambers and running in a minute to see Jack Howard and his fair bride.

Dinner with Ted Woodyard, the publisher, and to a news reel. Then stopped by the Will Hayses and Sidney Kent and his lovely wife there. Home and reading a week's accumulation of mail, so full of kindly cheer I sat up till dawn answering most of it in my hen-track scrawl.

Variety, as usual, has minted a new slang phrase that has caught the Broad—way fancy. And like most of it, comes from the circus and carnival lots. The phrase is "making a pitch." For example: The fellow intrigued by a new feminine face says: "I'm making a pitch for her."

* * *

The shuddery word "lousy," seems to have resisted all efforts to oust it from modern speech, appearing in almost every sophisticated novel and leaping the barriers of film censorship. It was long an approbrious epithet of the circuses before reaching a gentler society. Jay O'Brien, sportsman, is reported the first to voice it in the upper stratum, bringing it over from the skiing set at St. Moritz to spring at Palm Beach.

* * *

George M. Cohan has long been considered a spawner of slang, although his speech is singularly free of it. He often has a directness that is biting, but it is his own and, spoken by anyone else, falls flat. Thus it never becomes popular argot.

In the most congested sections of New York a fire engine station unexplainably gives the neighborhood a small town manner. Every fire house has an everybody's dog that sleeps there. Also a window cat. Shirt-sleeved firemen tilt against the walls in chairs. Women in aprons wander the neighborhood bareheaded, children munch cinnamon buns along the curb and the corner lamp posts have pipe-smoking leaners. In upstairs windows are women with arms on sill, chins cupped in hand, looking at everything and seeing nothing. The entire block appears to have infinite curiosity in the hubbub of human moods and crochets.

* * *

Dinty Moore's cafe, a glitter of mirrors, brass and mosaic, has outlived nearly all its midtown contemporaries of other days. Famed for its corned beef and—it goes back to the eras of Jack's, Joel's, Rector's, Churchill's and Shanley's. Jim Moore is an Irish sentimentalist, hiding his emotions with gruff bluster. He remains mostly in what he calls "the paddock," an ante room to the kitchen, and his table is often visited by such old timers as Al Smith, George M. Cohan, Sam H. Harris, Herbert Swope, George McManus and Morris Gest. Some of the Celtic waiters have been there 20 years, so long their manner is amusingly possessive.

Bagatelles: Montague Glass always carried a 25-cent royalty check for his first silent screen scenario...Robert Cortes Holliday is Joyce Kilmer's literary executor...Howard Chandler Christy's new fox terrier liked ink so well it isn't here any more...Earl Benham has a high bicycle at his summer place in Connecticut...Deac Aylesworth, radio chief, began his career as a lawyer in a Colorado village...Kent Cooper can play any popular tune of the past 20 years on the piano by ear ...Columnists John Chapman and Westbrook Pegler are sons of working New York newspapermen ...Alfred Segal, crack Cincinnati reporter, studied to be a rabbi.

* * *

I seem to make a dandy stooge for children. One, while out calling today, led me down stairs, tippety-tap, through the house and a labyrinth of pantries to the kitchen. Pointing under a table she beamed: "At's where I frowed up!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Will You Become a 'White Zombi?'

You know you will get old some day. You know your hair will turn gray and your flesh will wrinkle. Probably you'll have rheumatism and have to wear false teeth. You may even be bedridden. One can't count on things, like. But you are sure that there are two things you can count on.

YOU WILL ALWAYS BE ABLE TO THINK.

YOU WILL ALWAYS BE ABLE TO FEEL.

No matter what happens to your body, or your pocket-book, you're certain that you can always have interesting, exciting thoughts . . . you can always have warm, comforting feelings.. And as long as you're sure of these, age—horrid as it may be—is not without its compensations.

But you're wrong!

You can't always be sure of feeling and thinking. To the contrary, you can be terribly, tragically sure that, UNLESS YOU PUT UP A STIFF BATTLE, the dreadful day will come when you will no longer think, no longer feel—when you will go around with as little interest or emotion as a stuffed sausage! And that day may be coming very soon.

IT MAY ACTUALLY BE HERE NOW!

That's a disturbing thought. Let's hope it disturbs you plenty. If you're disturbed enough, you may be able to save yourself from the worst of all fates—namely, BEING DEAD AND NOT KNOWING IT.

You know when a body dies. If you saw a person starved to death, you wouldn't have any doubt about his condition. You realize, plainly, that bodies die quickly if seriously diseased or deprived of food, air, water.

BUT UNLESS YOU HAVE MUCH MORE INFORMATION THAN THE AVERAGE PERSON, YOU DO NOT REALIZE THAT THE SAME THING IS TRUE OF OUR THOUGHTS AND FEELINGS.

Thought and Feeling must be nourished exactly as flesh must be nourished. Unless they are fed, they die of starvation or asphyxiation or slow paralysis.

Flesh lives on the things which make flesh—on mineral salts, fats, starches, proteins, water. Thought and Feeling live on the things which make thought and feeling—on information, interest, experience.

If you feed a body well, you have healthy flesh. If you feed a body poorly, you have malnourished flesh. If you stop feeding it, you have starving, dying flesh. Exactly the same is true of your other life of Thought and Feeling.

IF YOU FEED YOUR SPIRIT THOSE THINGS WHICH MAKE THOUGHT AND FEELING, YOU WILL CONTINUE TO HAVE THOUGHT AND FEELING. IF YOU DON'T—YOU WON'T.

And there's the catch. For the things which make Thought and Feeling are not always easy to take. They are tough, rough, humiliating and heart-breaking things. It takes a great deal of courage to seek them, to endure them. But if you want to really live, you'll have to do it—and no one else can help you.

YOU MUST DO THE JOB YOURSELF. You must, yourself, face the conflict and criticism, take the chances, make the sacrifices, which alone keep thought and emotion alive.

IF YOU WANT THOUGHT, YOU MUST THINK. IF YOU WANT FEELING, YOU MUST FEEL, AND IF YOU REFUSE TO DO THESE THINGS FOR YOURSELF, THEY WILL CEASE.

Your body will continue to live. Your organs will function. But you will cease to have a human life. There will be no more real humanity in you than in a well-fed porker. And the most frightful part about it will be that YOU WON'T KNOW IT. But everyone else will—and you will be just about as popular as a walking corpse.

What is the matter with a lot of people? Why are they, in spite of their seeming pleasantness and good sense, so endlessly boring and useless, often so actually repulsive? That is why. They are not living people any more. THEY ARE "WHITE ZOMBI!"

Do you know that horrible, jungle superstition, once filmed so dramatically, of the Living-dead, whose bodies move at their master's command, but whose hearts and brains no longer function?

HUMAN BEINGS WHO REFUSE TO THINK AND FEEL BECOME WHITE ZOMBI!

At some point in their lives they grow too lazy, too selfish or vain or cowardly, to longer endure thought or emotion. Then something in them dies. Often it dies when they are very young. Some people seldom have a real thought after they are 20. Some stop feeling when they are 30.

Have YOU begun to stop? Have YOU begun to be a White Zombi?

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Spring's Traffic Lights

A man doesn't take a girl around these moonlight spring evenings, because he admires her mental qualities, any more than a burglar enters a house because he's interested in interior decoration.

Medusa's little feat of turning a lover into stone was mere child's play beside the feat of a modern girl who so often has to turn a human "stone" into a lover.

* * *

Love is not dead so long as a man takes the trouble to lie to a woman; but when he cheerfully admits the truth, with that "well-what-of-it?" smile of defiance, it's time to order the lilies.

* * *

Marriage used to give a girl a chance to slump down and take life comfortably; but in these days of husband-sharing, the competition doesn't end at the altar—it BEGINS there, and only ends at the grave.

* * *

It requires energy, effort and time to be a consistent sinner. That is why a man who is busy making a living or a career and a woman who is busy making a home and bringing up a family are always the best matrimonial bets.

* * *

By the time a brilliant woman has succeeded in convincing a man that she has his number and can beat him in an argument, she has usually succeeded in convincing him that he doesn't love her.

* * *

The faster a man's pace, the more likely he is to be tripped up and roped in by the wrong girl.

* * *

In these days, the only dependable chaperone that will keep a shy young man safe from being kissed by the wild, bold gals, is a passion for spring scallions.

Nothing seems longer than waiting for the traffic lights to turn from red to green—except waiting for a man to discover that he's in love, instead of just suffering from spring fever.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Song

Love, let me bring
To you a part
Of this glad spring
Which in my heart
Lifts leaf and bud
In sanguine songs,
For all joy's flood
To you belongs.

All other springs,
Swift-winged, went by;
Through this March rings
New ecstasy,
And till you came,
No April's kiss
Woke with its flame
Perennial bliss!

ISN'T IT SO?

Most women spend so much time talking that they have no time to listen.

People who study long and hard become so wise that they don't worry any more than the ignorant.

Human Side of the News

Discovery of the North Pole One of the Events Which Make April Notable in American History

By Edwin C. Hill

THIS MONTH of April stands out on the calendar of American history. For it was in April, 17 years ago, that the Congress of the United States declared war against imperial Germany. Patient for more than two years against repeated provocations, President Wilson, in one of his most dramatic appearances at the Capitol, had reluctantly cast his gauntlet, and Congress sealed his decision with its constitutional authority.

With that decision and that declaration, made 17 years ago, our country entered another phase of its existence, one which was to transform it for better or for worse, and only the coming years will tell.

It was also in April, 25 years ago, that Commander Robert E. Peary realized his dream of a lifetime and stood on the top of the world. For 20 years the indomitable Peary had struck out for the goal that adventurers had sought for three centuries, the farthest north, the North Pole itself.

* * *

World in Ignorance For Five Months

THE THRILLING tale has been told many times, by Admiral Peary himself, by his stalwart lieutenant, Capt. Bob Bartlett, and by others, but it never loses its dramatic force. Planting the American flag at the spot from which all directions ran south, Peary had the whole spinning earth under his weary feet. And then he turned about and drove his dogs back through snow and ice to the rim of civilization, and it was not until five months later that the world knew he had won.

He had been fortunate as well as brave. He had had the breaks in luck denied to so many who had faltered on the long road, or who had given their lives to the romantic quest.

One of the greatest of all these was the Englishman, Sir John Franklin, who headed into the Far North in 1845 with an expedition of two ships, the Erebus and the Terror, and with 134 chosen officers and men.

Not one of them ever returned. Their whitened skeletons were found many years later, but the two ships were missing, the whole a mystery which has baffled all speculation for the better part of a century.

But here is a strange fact. The British brig Renovation passing through an immense ice field off the banks of Newfoundland some 80 odd years ago, sighted, at three miles away, a huge berg. Upon this floating mountain of ice, lying not far apart, were two stout, three-masted wooden ships. One was on her beam ends, with only stumps of masts and bowsprit intact. The other, well upon the ice, stood upright, intact, with every appearance of having been stripped and abandoned.

The ice field was too dangerous to penetrate, and the Renovation went her way, her people firm in the belief that they had seen two ghost ships, the lost Erebus and Terror of Sir John Franklin.

Of all the puzzles and mysteries of the frozen North, this tale of the disappearance of Franklin and his whole company, and of his two ships that went out to sea on a mountain of ice is the most intriguing and enthralling.

Mussolini Hears Opera Hooted

NOT WITHOUT humor is the situation of Benito Mussolini; sweeping the Italian elections and then going to the opera the next night to hear an audience boo the performance off the stage with not the slightest regard for the presence of Il Duce in a stage box. Signor Mussolini has done many things. His word is law. His very frown is a ukase not to be disregarded. But even he, in all his glory, must bow before the thunder of the gallery gods.

And bowed he has, for the news from Rome is that by his command the opera by Luigi Pirandello called "The Changeling," is ruled off the boards, not be presented again in Italy.

The reaction of a European audience to a performance which it dislikes must be seen to be appreciated. Not even our English cousins take it quietly when they are dissatisfied with an entertainment, or entertainer, for which they have paid their good shillings to witness.

In fact, the English moviegoer won't even sit through the picture. If they don't like it, they raise such a storm that the only thing to do is to take it off and put on a substitute, or give them return tickets for another show.

This is not the first time that the gallery gods have turned thumbs down on the 67-year-old Pirandello, who is pretty much the Bernard Shaw of Italy, both in his beard and in his writings.

He's been doing ultra modernistic stuff for the theater for the last fifteen years, and the best known of his works, "Six Characters in Search of an Author," was acclaimed by his Irish prototype as the best play of all peoples of all time.

A few years ago, Pirandello launched another piece in Berlin, which he called "Tonight We Play Extemporaneously." The action called for a group of actors planted in the audience and this group was to voice its disapproval, walk out and bang doors.

Within twenty minutes the customers were heart and soul with the planted actors, whistling, stamping and shouting until the leading lady swooned in her tracks and the stage manager rang down the curtain as he shouted, "Impudent mob" across the footlights.

Congressional 'Attorneys' Hit by Garner

By James T. Williams, Jr.

AS VICE-PRESIDENT of the United States, Mr. Garner, is charged by the Federal Constitution with the duty of presiding over the sessions of the Senate. As president of the Senate he has no vote excepting a casting vote when there is a tie vote on a pending proposal. Even then it is the Vice President's privilege either to break the tie by voting in the affirmative or to withhold his vote, in which case the motion is lost.

But Vice President Garner showed no hesitancy about exercising his rare privilege of voting when a motion of Senator Borah, of Idaho, to take up his bill to prohibit senators and representatives in Congress from acting as attorneys where the United States has an interest in the case. The vote on this motion was a tie. Mr. Garner's vote broke the tie and brought up the bill. But as this occurred in "the morning hour" the bill was laid aside when 2 o'clock came and the regular business before the Senate replaced the Borah bill.

Sooner or later the Borah bill will become a law and the courage shown by Vice President Garner in bringing it before the Senate will be rewarded. The Borah bill was recently reported favorably to the Senate from the Committee on the Judiciary, of which Senator Norris, of Nebraska, is chairman. It provides:

That no Senator or Representative or delegate in Congress shall receive any compensation whatever, directly or indirectly, for any services rendered to any person, corporation or association, either by himself or another in relation to any proceeding, contract, claim, controversy, charge, accusation, arrest or other matter or thing in which the United States as a party is directly or indirectly interested before any court whatever.

During the administration of the first President Roosevelt a United States Senator from a Middle Western state was sent to jail for practicing before one of the executive departments while a Senator in Congress. The theory of the statute under which he was punished is the theory upon which Vice President Garner and the Committee on the Judiciary favor the extension of the rule to all governmental agencies, as provided for in the Borah bill.

* * *

"No Man Can Serve Two Masters"

THE THEORY is that "no man can serve two masters." Consequently no Senator can serve both the public interest, which as a national legislator he takes oath to serve, if at the same time he is accepting fees to serve some special or private interest as an attorney.

To the brief debate that followed the vote of the Vice President which put the Borah bill before the Senate a notable contribution was made by Senator Logan, of Kentucky. He served his state as chief justice before coming to the Senate. His argument in support of the bill was straightforward, logical and sincere. It was on this wise:

"No one need tell me that, when a Senator represents some great railroad company, and a question affecting that railroad company comes before the United States Senate, the railroad company, through its representatives, does not approach the senator more as a client to a lawyer than as to a United States Senator representing the whole people.

"I suspect I am, so far as money and property are concerned, the poorest man in the Senate. I am rich in a good many other respects which I think are worth while, and I do not care much about these other matters. But I would find some way of making a living without accepting fees from those who have business with the Congress of the United States or would go home and resign and represent them as a private citizen."

* * *

Public Sentiment Supports President

THERE WOULD be a number of compulsory retirements from both houses at the coming elections if the list of clients which certain senators and representatives in Congress serve as attorneys should be broadcast to the public in the meantime.

President Roosevelt is making headway in ridding the national committee of his party of lawyers who practice before the various agencies of the government. Public sentiment supports the President's leadership in this direction.

And the leadership of Vice President Garner, Senator Borah and Senator Logan to apply the same purge to both Houses of Congress will command public support north, east, south and west, when the issue becomes crystal clear to the people of the several states and congressional districts of the Union.

"No man can serve two masters." No member of either house of Congress can serve with equal fidelity both the public interest and special interests at one and the same time.
